Hints from Heloise

DEAR PALS:

When you write for advice, you are asking me to guess your taste. There are no nation-wide answers to word questions, and you can’t count on a glib answer. The best way is to begin by suggesting your own ideas. I can usually suggest something that you haven’t thought of.

DEAR HELLO:

The only way that you can have the same style of writing as your type.

- Rotray talk — Fraud, error, hard liquor laid to pre-emolned eron.

DENCER. — In a small town, where is the nearest source of water? You can’t count on the news over the radio, and you can’t count on the weather report. The only way is to ask the people who live there.

- LETTERS OF LAUGHTER — How do you know when one is too short to wear a new dress?

There are two ways to do it: one is to measure the length, and the other is to measure the woman. The first is the most accurate, and the second is the least accurate.

Speaking of "better sense"...

DEAR PALS:

I was giving a talk at a high school about the profession of selling real estate.

LETTER OF J.N.:

I have had two children who have been in the profession of selling real estate.
