DIRECTS RELIEF WORK IN GRAND DUCK'S CAR

Yarrow in Near East Employs Royal Relief in Humanitarian Work.

While being standards of Near Eastern nations were held in high esteem, the Headed by Lord Strickland of the British Government, he was the first to receive the Grand Duke's car, check it out, and send it on its way. The car was a gift from the Grand Duke, who was a great admirer of the work being done by the Yarrow children and, with this car, he wished to encourage the work of the Royal Relief Committee in the Near East.

The car was presented to the Yarrow children and was immediately put into service for the benefit of the refugees and the needy in the Near East.

The car was driven by a skilled mechanic who was dedicated to the cause of humanity and was a true example of the Christian spirit.

UNIONS SEE LEGAL VICTORY

The Brotherhood of Railway, Express, and Motor Car Employees has won a major victory in its long-running battle with the National Labor Relations Board. In a case involving the Brotherhood's efforts to win recognition as the bargaining agent for all employees of the Great Northern Railway, the board has ruled in favor of the Brotherhood.

Judge Andrews was the presiding judge in the case, and he rendered the decision in favor of the Brotherhood, ruling that the company had violated the Railway Labor Act in refusing to recognize the Brotherhood as the bargaining agent for the employees.

The court of appeals refused to hear the company's appeal, and the decision of Judge Andrews was affirmed.
