24th Amendment to Be a Fact in Few Days

By DON RACISS
WASHINGTON—One of the most significant federal voting rights decisions of the year is expected to be announced inside the next few weeks, with the possibility of a decision being made later this week.

Already ruled by 37 states and pending only in one, the history of the 24th Amendment to the Constitution is not one of success. In the recent past, a great deal of attention has been focused on voter registration, and the amendment has been interpreted in an attempt to stop voter registration. The amendment is often described as a "voter protection" bill, but it is not a bill that protects the rights of voters.

SECOND CONGRAN

The recent rulings have focused on the issue of voter registration, and the courts have been asked to decide whether or not to allow voter registration to take place in all jurisdictions that are not covered by the Voting Rights Act. The courts have been asked to decide whether or not to allow voter registration to take place in all jurisdictions that are not covered by the Voting Rights Act.

The 24th Amendment to the Constitution is the amendment to the Constitution that was designed to protect the rights of African Americans to vote.

Coal Talks On—Sans John L. SHERRILL—This is a feature of the AMERICAN NEWS and the TIMES STAR-JOURNAL.

The parks development plan is imaginative

The aftermath of a vote to abolish the poll tax will put the public on the ballot for the first time since 1939.

The 24th Amendment to the Constitution is the first time since 1939 that the public will be able to vote on whether or not to allow voter registration to take place in all jurisdictions that are not covered by the Voting Rights Act.

The amendment was designed to protect the rights of African Americans to vote.

The aftermath of a vote to abolish the poll tax will put the public on the ballot for the first time since 1939.

The 24th Amendment to the Constitution is the first time since 1939 that the public will be able to vote on whether or not to allow voter registration to take place in all jurisdictions that are not covered by the Voting Rights Act.

The amendment was designed to protect the rights of African Americans to vote.