Marie Jose Taken to Rome by Circuitous Route to Avoid Plotters

HEERED ON DEPARTURE

by Way of Basle; Due Monday Morning; to Wed Wednesday

Brussels, Jan. 4.—(Associated Press)—Taking a circuitous route to avoid enemies of her betrothed, Marie Jose today was en route to Rome, where on Jan. 5 she will become the bride of Humbert, Prince of Piedmont and Italian heir. She should reach Rome today morning.

The three special trains which left here at 8:40 p. m. last night crossed France an hour later at Mont-Aulnoy, proceeding toward Basle, Switzerland, by way of Arvicelle, Longuyon, and Nancy. Shorter more direct routes were abandoned because of danger of terrorist activities.

Extraordinary police precautions marked the departure of the royal train. Planned along the railway station and surrounding streets a throng of spectators before King Albert, Queen Elizabeth, Princess Marie Jose, the crown prince and princess, and Prince Charles arrived.

There were cheers from crowds on the left bank of the river, however, as the pretty 23-year-old princess was taken to the train which was to bear her to her homeland. Queen Elizabeth also cheered. It was her first public appearance in four weeks. She looked very pale but waved a cheerful farewell to the crowds.

Princess Marie Jose walked with her father at the head of the procession from the railway station, which had been decorated in her honor, to the waiting train. Once aboard the train her face was obviously misty as she looked out from an elaborate window. She waved her hand to the crowds and countrymen, most of whom seemed genuinely sorry that the princess was leaving home.

Several times in her emotion, the princess buried her head in her hands. She was seen to be weeping so strongly guarding against her departure and the orate precautions against mishap were known to have saddened her. She was recognized by several times in her emotion.

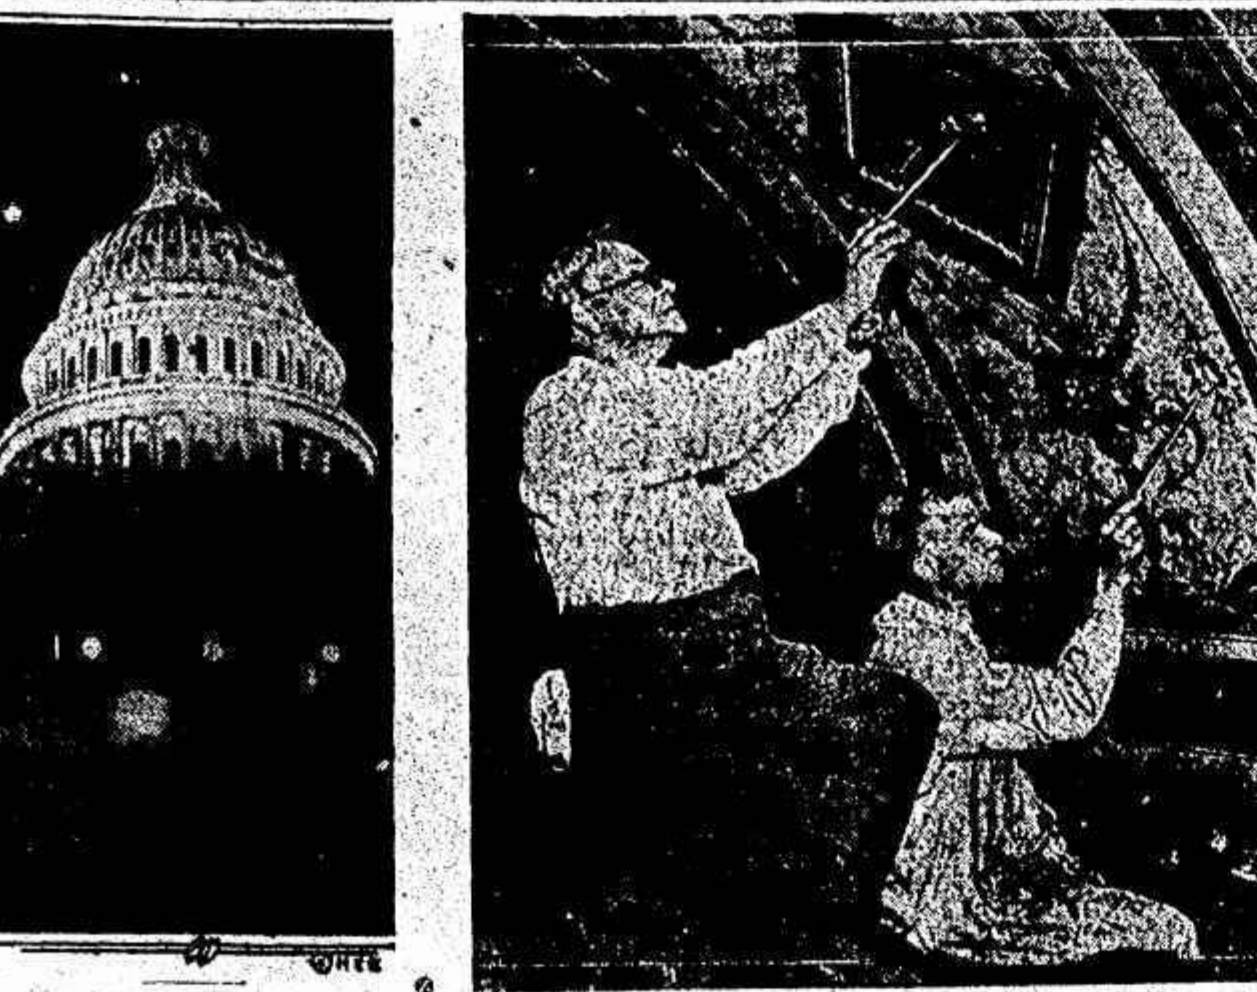

The train started the cheers of the crowds reached the station. "The long live the king," "long live the king," and "long live the king!" before the train bearing the princess disappeared into the night. Marie Jose could be seen still waving her hand to the crowds.

Officials and other dignitaries gathered at the railway station half an hour before the princess and the prince of the royal family. Prince Humbert, who is betrothed to Marie Jose, was seen in full dress uniform. Thirty young girls, chosen pupils of the Brussels school of a convent, were seen to be waving to the train as the party reached the station.

Trains were expected to reach at about daybreak, cutting the distance between the French and Belgium territory would last eight hours, all in the dead of night. The train was expected to cross the French frontier, where enemies of the fascist regime of the House of Savoy live in exile. The railway routing was not a public secret.

There have been several recent allegations of plots against the lives of royal families. A few weeks ago an attempt was made against the life of Prince Humbert during his visit to Brussels at announcement of his betrothal. A recent assassination was an expatriate living in France.

Officials Probe Fire Damaging U. S. Capitol

Navy, assigned to duty at the House of Representatives, reiterated to newspapermen today his statement of last night that he had treated Moberly for suffocation caused by smoke from the fire. He said that he had been informed that the fire in no way would interfere with the convening of Congress Monday from the holiday recess; and that such documents and papers as were charred or water soaked were not a part of the permanent files.

The fire was discovered at 7 p. m. Capitol police turned in an alarm that brought every engine in the business and near-in residential district.

Officials were more concerned over the cause of the blaze than the damage wrought. They said the loss would amount to about $3,000; that the fire in no way would interfere with the convening of Congress Monday from the holiday recess; and that such documents and papers as were charred or water soaked were not a part of the permanent files.

Firemen on apparatus which had to travel over Pennsylvania avenue were appured for the night. The fire was discovered at 7 p. m. Capitol police turned in an alarm that brought every engine in the business and near-in residential district.

Reaching the Capitol a multitude of difficulties delayed the firemen. Most of the doors were locked. Some companies threw ladders against the structure to fight inward. While others smashed the thick plate glass in the revolving door opening from the rotunda to the main Plaza—the entrance through which thousands of tourists pass annually.

As firemen strove to reach the flames thousands of Washingtonians gathered to watch the spectacle. The city had missed the White House fire and last night as word spread that the Capitol was burning, men, women and children hastened to the scene.

Police reserves were rushed to "The Hill," to assist the hastily mobilized Capitol police force, which backed the crowd that surged over the broad East Plaza.

So quickly did the crowd assemble, that hundreds were on hand before the fire in the executive offices. Last night he instructed White House aides to obtain all information and they immediately had a White House phone connected with the office of Representative Garner.

After firemen had smashed the east rotunda door, they carried hoses through the rotunda—the one way in which the fire could interfere with the convening of Congress Monday from the holiday recess; and that such documents and papers as were charred or water soaked were not a part of the permanent files.

During the fire, those fighting from the inside could see the smoke that poured through this broken skylight drift up into the light play upon the dome and at times envelop an American flag floating in a gentle breeze over the center of the west entrance. No one explained how the flag happened to be flying after sunset.

Practically all the spectators had left before Moberly was removed from a couch in Representative Garner's office to a hospital. He had been treated at the Capitol by Dr. George W. Calvert, a naval physician assigned to duty at the House of Representatives.

Moberly is 61 years of age. He has been a decorator at the Capitol for nearly 30 years and his paint brush has renovated many of the historic paintings on the walls of the Capitol, as well as the designs along the corridors.

Church Council Denies Stelzle Has Been Fired

Publicity Man Never Accused of Complicity With Film Producers

New York, Jan. 4.—(Associated Press)—Dr. Charles S. MacFarland, general secretary of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, has denied published statements that the council would oust the Rev. Charles Stelzle for "unethical conduct as a publicity man." He also denied stories appearing in the press that the executive committee of the council, at its recent Chicago meeting, had decided to discontinue Mr. Stelzle's services.

The Associated Press, crediting the New York Herald Tribune, carried these statements on Dec. 11 and is glad to carry the refutation issued by the Federal Council through Dr. MacFarland.

The report in question said that Mr. Stelzle was instrumental in organizing the motion picture commission of the Federal Council for the purpose of influencing its action in favor of the motion picture producers and distributors of America, and that he had been known to the Federal Council because of this issue.

"These allegations are entirely untrue," Dr. MacFarland said. "The commission was determined upon, and its organization fully planned, without the knowledge of Mr. Stelzle. Neither Mr. Stelzle nor any representative of the producers' association was consulted or informed until the whole matter was determined."

"Mr. Stelzle was not an officer of the Federal Council. He was engaged originally for a period of six months, which expired three months ago, and is being continued from month to month until the work for which he was engaged has been completed."

Dr. MacFarland also denied that former Governor Carl E. Milliken of Maine had been asked to resign from the administrative committee of the Federal Council for the purpose of influencing its action in favor of the motion picture producers and distributors of America, and that he had been known to the Federal Council because of this issue.

Mr. Stelzle, in a statement issued in conjunction with Dr. MacFarland's denial, stated that he had been guilty of "taking a second salary" from the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America while doing publicity work for the Federal Council of Churches. "It is obviously based upon an inaccurate conception of the nature of my business."

Cylinder Cars re-Featured at N. Y. Auto Show

If of 300 Models Shown Have Power Plants of This Size

NEW YORK, Jan. 4.—(Associated Press)—The thirtieth annual national automobile show opens today at Grand Central Palace with 300 of latest creations of the automobile world displayed by 48 American and foreign manufacturers.

It is the first time since the war that cylinder cars are emphasized in this year's show, in which approximately 100 of the cars on display have cylinders of the eight-cylinder type as compared with about a dozen year.

A 16-cylinder model is exhibited as a Cadillac and two front-wheel drive cars built by the Cord and Rux companies are being shown.

The features outstanding are a 11 transmission, eliminating the whining noise of second speed, and a general tendency to make bodies lower, to carry stream-line effects, to blend three hues in body and to employ the classic line of efficient pottery in headlights and fenders.

No taxicab companies have stalls on the floor and 135 accessories and ship equipment companies are represented. The foreign cars on display are Mercedes-Benz and Buick.

The show will be closed tomorrow and reopened Monday to continue without the week.
