Spying Charge May Adversely Affect Bills

Congress May Balk At Two E. N. Measures

WASHINGTON, March 6—A spy case here today involving a Canadian diplomat and a U. S. State Department employee was expected to spell trouble for the State Department's proposed budget and the Economic Cooperation Agency's authorization bill.

The State Department has asked for an additional $5,000,000 to improve the security of its 15,000 employees. The budget committee already is considering the request.

The EC Agency, which is authorized by the 1948 Marshall Act, has asked for a $25,000,000 increase in its $100,000,000 annual appropriation to fight the war at home.

The two proposals, both in the House Appropriations bill, are likely to run into trouble in the Senate, where they are being reviewed by the Foreign Relations Committee.

The committee is expected to mark up the State Department budget tomorrow, and the EC Agency bill could come up for action next week.

The EC Agency bill authorizes the agency to spend $25,000,000 in 1949 and $50,000,000 in 1950 for the war at home.

The agency has been criticized for spending more on war projects than on non-war projects.

The State Department budget provides for $25,000,000 in 1949 and $50,000,000 in 1950 for the war at home.

The department has been criticized for spending more on war projects than on non-war projects.

The EC Agency bill authorizes the agency to spend $25,000,000 in 1949 and $50,000,000 in 1950 for the war at home.

The agency has been criticized for spending more on war projects than on non-war projects.

The State Department budget provides for $25,000,000 in 1949 and $50,000,000 in 1950 for the war at home.

The department has been criticized for spending more on war projects than on non-war projects.

The EC Agency bill authorizes the agency to spend $25,000,000 in 1949 and $50,000,000 in 1950 for the war at home.

The agency has been criticized for spending more on war projects than on non-war projects.

The State Department budget provides for $25,000,000 in 1949 and $50,000,000 in 1950 for the war at home.

The department has been criticized for spending more on war projects than on non-war projects.

The EC Agency bill authorizes the agency to spend $25,000,000 in 1949 and $50,000,000 in 1950 for the war at home.

The agency has been criticized for spending more on war projects than on non-war projects.

The State Department budget provides for $25,000,000 in 1949 and $50,000,000 in 1950 for the war at home.

The department has been criticized for spending more on war projects than on non-war projects.

The EC Agency bill authorizes the agency to spend $25,000,000 in 1949 and $50,000,000 in 1950 for the war at home.

The agency has been criticized for spending more on war projects than on non-war projects.

The State Department budget provides for $25,000,000 in 1949 and $50,000,000 in 1950 for the war at home.

The department has been criticized for spending more on war projects than on non-war projects.

The EC Agency bill authorizes the agency to spend $25,000,000 in 1949 and $50,000,000 in 1950 for the war at home.

The agency has been criticized for spending more on war projects than on non-war projects.

The State Department budget provides for $25,000,000 in 1949 and $50,000,000 in 1950 for the war at home.

The department has been criticized for spending more on war projects than on non-war projects.

The EC Agency bill authorizes the agency to spend $25,000,000 in 1949 and $50,000,000 in 1950 for the war at home.

The agency has been criticized for spending more on war projects than on non-war projects.

The State Department budget provides for $25,000,000 in 1949 and $50,000,000 in 1950 for the war at home.

The department has been criticized for spending more on war projects than on non-war projects.

The EC Agency bill authorizes the agency to spend $25,000,000 in 1949 and $50,000,000 in 1950 for the war at home.

The agency has been criticized for spending more on war projects than on non-war projects.

The State Department budget provides for $25,000,000 in 1949 and $50,000,000 in 1950 for the war at home.

The department has been criticized for spending more on war projects than on non-war projects.

The EC Agency bill authorizes the agency to spend $25,000,000 in 1949 and $50,000,000 in 1950 for the war at home.

The agency has been criticized for spending more on war projects than on non-war projects.