Following an illness which had confined him to Doctors Home for more than a month, the late Rabbi Charles D. Deutshe, known in fraternal and religious circles here as "Dad," was buried at his home in Rockaway Beach on February 13th. Rabbi Deutshe had been ill since January 25th, when the "House of Rock," Rockaway Park, was called into consultation by his doctor, Dr. W. C. Martin Allen Winston, a student of the late Rabbi Deutshe. Rabbi Deutshe, who was in charge of Religion at Rockaway Park, was a member of the Rockaway Park branch of the Jewish Union in New York City. Rabbi Deutshe was also a member of the Rockaway Park branch of the Jewish Union in New York City.

Among the residents of the Bell Harwar Chapter of the Rockaway Park Local Association, Mrs. Anna Block, 86, of Rockaway Beach, and Mrs. Edna Block, 84, of Rockaway Beach, were present at the funeral of Rabbi Deutshe. Mrs. Anna Block was a member of the Rockaway Park branch of the Jewish Union in New York City. Mrs. Anna Block was also a member of the Rockaway Park branch of the Jewish Union in New York City.

The funeral was held at the Rockaway Park Jewish Center, with Rabbi Deutshe lying in state in front of a large crowd. The service was conducted by Rabbi Deutshe's son, Rabbi Sidney Z. Searles of Far Rockaway, who was also a member of the Rockaway Park branch of the Jewish Union in New York City. Rabbi Searles was accompanied on the trip by Mrs. Edna Block, 84, of Rockaway Beach, and Mrs. Edna Block, 84, of Rockaway Beach.

The funeral was the scene of many tributes to Rabbi Deutshe, who was known for his dedication to the Jewish community. Rabbi Deutshe was remembered for his wisdom, his kindness, and his love for his community. He was a beloved figure in the Jewish community of Rockaway Park, and his passing was mourned by many.

The funeral was also attended by many of Rabbi Deutshe's friends and family, including his son, who spoke about his father's life and accomplishments. The service was followed by a reception at the Rockaway Park Jewish Center, where guests were able to pay their respects to Rabbi Deutshe and his family. The reception was a somber and intimate event, with many attendees remembering Rabbi Deutshe's legacy and his impact on the Jewish community of Rockaway Park.

The funeral of Rabbi Deutshe was a somber and intimate event, with many attendees paying tribute to his life and his dedication to the Jewish community of Rockaway Park. The service was followed by a reception at the Rockaway Park Jewish Center, where guests were able to remember his legacy and his impact on the community. The funeral was a fitting tribute to a man who was beloved by many and whose contributions to the Jewish community will be remembered for years to come.