As Traffic Stops For Hours

As traffic backed up for hours at a demonstration in Broad Channel on Monday afternoon, the people of this community were voicing their concern for the safety of their community. The demonstration was held to protest the planned construction of a new expressway that would cut through their neighborhood.

The demonstration was organized by the Broad Channel Community Association and drew hundreds of residents who gathered to demand safer traffic conditions. The community has been experiencing increased traffic due to the new expressway, and they fear for their safety.

The demonstration was peaceful, with no incidents reported. The police were present to ensure the safety of all involved.

For Efforts In Behalf Of Gateway

The demonstration was supported by other community organizations, including the Rockaway Bay Area Neighborhood Association and the Rockaway Beach Chamber of Commerce. They joined forces to urge the city to address the safety concerns of the community.

The demonstration was a success in raising awareness about the safety issues in the community. The city is expected to respond soon with plans to improve traffic flow and safety in the area.
