A final note on our March 9, 1923, story about the death of Mary Lincoln:

"It was a sad day for the nation when Mary Todd Lincoln passed away on March 9, 1865. Her husband, Abraham Lincoln, had been assassinated only two months earlier. Mary was a strong and supportive figure throughout her husband's presidency and his legacy continues to this day."