Watertown Daily Times.

WATERTOWN, JUNE 14, 1870.

The State of Delaware has received a great deal of abuse first and last, because she refuses to give up the whipping post. Delaware knows her business. States, like New York, which abolished the whipping post long ago, have recently put aside the gallows, and now suffer murderous wretches to go unpunished. With whipping posts amongst us, it is possible we could now and then get a criminal who deserves to be hung, whipped.

The monthly decrease in the debt is not the only encouraging financial statement we receive showing that the country, under a wise Administration, is hastening to Resumption, and consequent prosperity. The commercial statistics for nine months of the current fiscal year show that we have imported $6,000,000 less and exported $45,000,000 more than during the same time in 1868-9, and, moreover, the increase of imports and exports carried in American vessels has been marked and significant.

The President has signed the Army bill, which reduces the standing army of the United States, on the 4th of July, 1871, to thirty thousand men.

Army officers employed in civil duties on leave of absence, such as Ministers abroad, military secretaries of the President and others, are required either to vacate their civil appointments or to resign their military commissions. By these and other provisions which we have heretofore explained, the bill will save over $4,000,000 annually.

CASH AND CREDIT.

The REFORMER has been published about twenty years, subscribers being trusted until they were ready and willing to pay.—Reasons existed for giving credit to newspaper patrons when the paper was started, that do not now exist. First, most newspaper establishments gave credit then; now very few city offices do. Second, the country is better off than it was twenty years ago, and there is more cash among those who reside in the agricultural districts. Third, there are more cash transactions among all classes of the people than formerly, and less credit.

In view of these and other considerations we are seriously meditating the plan of sending out our Weekly for only cash in advance, after the expiration of the present volume. If our subscribers knew what a task it is to keep the accounts of over five thousand people, how much trouble it occasions us, how much the system costs, and the extent of our losses under it, we haven't a reasonable man on our large list who would not say, "Stop it. I'll pay for my paper in advance, and when I get so poor I can't do it, I will have it discontinued."

In nine cases out of ten, there is not the slightest reason why the newspaper patron should ask credit. Not the slightest. He can pay this year as well as next, and if he is afraid of losing the interest, we will be liberal and discount that! A more paltry or pernicious custom never existed than that of getting trusted for the price of a newspaper subscription for an indefinite period.

That a man who makes a bill of $50 or $100 with the merchant,—who buys a wagon or cart or some other implement of a mechanic,—should sometimes require credit, we can readily understand. He gets trusted, and pays the merchant or mechanic for waiting. But would he think of asking credit for $2? We think not; and if he did, it is not likely he would get it. Suppose the patrons of our railroads should demand and receive credit. Suppose all the people who pass over the Rome & Watertown road should ride "on tick," and the company, when pressed for money, should send out a collector to get in their dues! We suspect that by the time they had pursued this system one year, they would be ready to abandon it.—The credit system would break down the New York Central railroad, and its President, Commodore Vanderbilt, in a month.

Some newspaper publishers adopt the plan of keeping the subscriber's account on his paper, where he can see it every week, and we are thinking of doing the same thing after the present year. Mr. William Neaks will then find his name printed on the margin of the paper, and right along against it the words "Aug. 17, 1871," which will signify that he has paid to that date. It will be pleasant to a man to see that he has paid ahead, and not less so to the publisher, who will smilingly say, "Bill Noaks is all right; he will do to tie to." It will give him good credit everywhere, for we tell you that the man who pays for his newspaper ain't going to cheat anybody. No sir.

Shall We have the New Railroad?

EDITORS TIMES:—In a former communication I asked you to say that "the work of building the new railroad will commence just as soon as the subscription is made up to the specified amount, and no sooner." Since then scarcely any progress has been made in new subscriptions, and while I find a very strong desire for this road, and that about all tax payers and business men deem it essential to the prosperity of Watertown, but very few have subscribed to the stock. In the meantime the survey has been completed, and a very favorable line is found. The right of way has mostly been obtained, and on favorable terms. The subscriptions before made have generally been paid, and with promptness; only one person having refused to pay—while a few who had promised to sign have neglected to do so. The amount now lacking from the town of Watertown is about $15,000. During the present week, the subscription books will be with Mayor Flower, and citizens are invited to call upon him and perfect their subscriptions. If these amounts are made up, the road will be at once commenced, and pushed on to completion, as entirely responsible parties stand ready to take the bonds of the town of Watertown.

A meeting of the Directors is called for Saturday of this week, and if these subscriptions are not then full, the undersigned, as President of the company, will recommend that the corporation be dissolved and the project abandoned.

The Directors will not be warranted in undertaking to build the road, until the whole amount necessary for its completion to Carthage is in some manner provided.

Briefs.

—Disraeli's next novel is to be "The Wonders of Alroy."

—Dickens' "Mysteries of Edwin Druid" was nearly finished at the time of his death.

—Bethovan Centennial Festival opened last evening at the Empire Rink in New York.

—Thermometer in New York city yesterday 86°.

—Dickens left "All the Year Round" to his son, with many useful hints on its management.

—McFarland, Dan, late murderer, is now in Cincinnati—in search of an asylum probably.

—Ida Lewis is to be married this Fall sure. Is that so, Ida!

—Females assort the mails in the San Francisco post office.

Miscellaneous Items.

—The Auburn News says a new express company is to be organized. It is to be got up for the purpose of selling out! That's the question.

—Thos. Carlyle is coming to this country. Though somewhat a cynic, he is a man of brains, and will be warmly welcomed by our people.

—Wm. Gilmore Simms, a novelist of considerable reputation in this country, died at the residence of his son-in-law, in Charleston on Saturday evening, the 11th, aged 64.

—Jefferson Davis has been elected one of the vestry men of the St. Lazarus Episcopal Church of Memphis, Tenn.

"While the lamp holds out to burn,
The vilest sinner may return."

—There is no accounting for tastes. Certain women of Baltimore, it is said, distributed flowers in profusion over the grave of the assassin, Wilkes Booth, on the day for the decoration of the graves of the confederate soldiers.

—A young lady down in Schuylerville, Saratoga county, feels very bad because her feller has gone far away, and thus warbles mellifluously on the west bank of the Hudson:

"Since of your love I was bereft,
I've lost some ninety pounds in heft,
And now have scarcely a teaty left,—
How could you be so cruel John?"

—C. Delmonico, the famous down town caterer of New York, committed suicide, Saturday night, by shooting himself through the head. Mental aberration on account of the death of his wife was the cause.

A Mysterious Berry.

An old "end" of a fellow calling himself Berry, turned up here Wednesday, right from Van Dieman's Land, where he had been banished for participating in the Wind Mill invasion in 1838. He was on his way to Watertown, where he has a daughter whom he has not seen since the memorable event. He came down upon us to inquire if there was "any train to Watertown to-night," and being informed there was none, casually remarked that it was thirty-two years since he had seen Ogdensburg before, and then commenced to tell his story. Having witnessed that fight ourself we took a deep interest in his narrative, which, we confess, was a very accurate account of the proceedings that memorable week. At the close of the touching tale of hardships endured, we responded to his appeal for a little assistance, as did another listener.—After having pocketed the collection, he edified us in recounting many changes which had taken place in Ogdensburg during the past five years. We came to the conclusion that the "old patriot" had been a constant reader of the Journal, or we had been done for and "muzzled"—Ogdensburg Journal.

Laws of New York—By Authority.

[Every law, unless a different time shall be prescribed therein, shall commence and take effect throughout this state, on and not before the twentieth day after the day of its final passage, as certified by the Secretary of State. Sec. 12, title 4, chap. 7, part 1 Revised Statutes.]

CHAP. 366.

AN ACT in regard to public libraries incorporated in the State of New York.

Passed April 28, 1870; three-fifths being present.

Section 1. If any officer, clerk, agent, or member of any public library duly incorporated under the laws of the State of New York, or any other person whatever, shall thereafter willfully cut, mark, mutilate or otherwise injure any book, volume, map, chart, painting or engraving belonging to any public library so incorporated as aforesaid, or shall procure such injury to be done as herein stated: every such person shall be deemed to be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof by any court of competent jurisdiction, shall be liable for each offense to a fine of not more than one hundred dollars, at the discretion of the court, provided, however, that no prosecution shall be maintained under this act, unless the library prosecuting shall have a printed copy of this act conspicuously placed upon its premises, and shall also have a printed copy pasted upon the cover, or otherwise attached to any book or volume which may be claimed to have been injured as before described.

§ 2. This act shall take effect immediately.

STATE OF NEW YORK,
Office of the Secretary of State.

I have compared the preceding with the original law on file in this office, and do hereby certify that the same is a correct transcript therefrom, and of the whole of said original law.

HOMER A. NELSON,
Secretary of State.

LETTER FROM MR. INGALLS—No. 5

MORE ABOUT IOWA—THE STARTING.

UNION PACIFIC RAILWAY, June 7

Away we roll towards the setting sun. The train out from Omaha on which we are, is some three hours behind time, not from any fault of this company, but from the non-arrival on time of trains due here from the east. It is to the credit of the Union Pacific company to say that they prefer to start behind time than to disappoint fifty or a hundred passengers centering here from the east to make connection with the 11 o'clock train from Omaha west. But for this accommodating disposition, we should not have been able to leave Omaha to-day, for though we were on time in person, our baggage was not brought over till an hour after the appointed time. But the train was held back till the last of the expected eastern trains arrived, and till the last passenger and the last trunk was on board. We pronounce this better than to have been off at the appointed time, to the expense and torment of a hundred passengers or so, by leaving either them or their baggage. But at last, all over and in their seats, and a train composed of twelve or fourteen passenger, sleeping, and dining room cars move up the incline, through the bluffs, and out upon the broad plains of Nebraska.

The weather has cooled up materially since our arrival here, from the prevalence of thunder showers. Sunday afternoon one visited Glenwood and vicinity, pouring down rain and hail in floods and violence. Some corn fields are quite badly riddled by the driving hail.

The settlement of the State of Iowa is retarded beyond what it would be, I have no doubt, from the lack of a provision in the land railroad grant bills requiring the companies to bring it into market within a given time. Some of the companies, if not all to whom these lands were donated, have wormed along, raising money by private, town, city and county subscriptions to their stock, and have got their roads built, without offering any of their lands for sale—the consequence is, settlers push on to Nebraska, Kansas, or elsewhere, where land can be had at something like government prices. There is no better grain growing land in the world than that of Iowa. Settlers would not pass by it if the price had not been improperly put up by the railroad companies to whom so many thousand acres have been donated. The result is, it spreads our new settlements wider and further apart, and makes them sparser than they otherwise would be, and the growth of population in Iowa is materially retarded.

The passion for real estate speculation keeps well sharpened up here, and reaches well down into the lower stratas of society. We fell in with two men yesterday, who came into Iowa fifteen years ago, and took up forty acres of land each at government prices, $1.25 per acre. Now they have sold it for thirty dollars an acre, and have been over into Nebraska looking for a new location. There are thousands of such cases. It is no marvel that we are a restless people, a moving people—for how can men or women be content to let slip splendid opportunities to make something when there are so many place where

"God's abundance wants partakers,
And unstopped, falls to the ground."

How common it is to hear men relate events of purchases five, ten, or fifteen years ago for a mere song, and of their sale recently for twice, three times, or ten times their original cost. Yes, we answer, and how very much more they might have made had they come over with Columbus and seized upon the whole country, and held it till now! Well, the truth is, the life of one man is not long enough to turn to his account very many great rises in real estate, as rapidly as it goes up in this country. There is too much of it to monopolize; it is too uncertain where population will drift to make sure of your location, so doubt and uncertainty are thrown over every purely speculative transaction, but not over any legitimate settler's prospects—for as sure as that our country is new, vast and fertile, so sure will every foot of improved real estate, wherever located, rise in price for a hundred years to come.

AN ADVENTURE.

Yesterday, myself and a young friend, Fred Rounds, drove down through Glenwood to Council Bluffs, then crossing by horse railroad and ferry, to Omaha, to secure berths for the journey to San Francisco, all which having been accomplished, we were returning leisurely home, our horse trotting gently along, when he came to a little rivulet, which made out of the bluff crossing the road, making a rather deep but not wide break in the road bed. Instead of stepping down into it, as was supposed he would, he sprang with a sudden jump over it, and when the forewheels of the buggy struck the sharp bank on the opposite side it threw the writer over the dashboard of the buggy, and Fred's hands, striking on the rear of the horse, barely saved him from falling out forward in a similar manner. In my fall I caught hold of the thill with one hand, and was enabled to think and act quick enough to straighten out inside the wheels, but outside the horse's feet, and drop flat upon the ground, allowing the buggy to pass harmlessly over and escape being trodden on by the horse. He feeling my presence under him, began to prance and run, and in his flirtations barked one shin bone in two places, hit one elbow rather violently, and thumped me on the right temple. I gathered myself up, picked up my hat and Fred's cap, and began to look for the horse, buggy and driver. Fred had halted him, and stood down upon the ground, as white as a ghost, more scared than hurt. I might not have related this incident but for a psychological fact that I was conscious of accompanying it.

All have heard how, that with drowning men, the memory of much of their past lives runs through their minds with wonderful rapidity and vividness. The period of peril in this case could not have lasted over from three to five seconds, yet there flashed through the mind the thought as means of escape, the end of my journey, telegraphing home, life insurance, disappointments, wife, daughter, friends, &c. How wonderfully electrical are the mind's movements under such circumstances was made manifest, affording a new experience fully compensating for the peril, only I should not care to have it repeated for another similar sensation. One such will do.

The conductor says we shall make up our lost time before reaching Cheyenne.

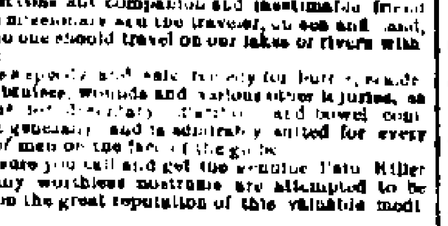
WHAT ARE



THEY ARE NOT A VILE FANCY DRINK

Made of poor Rum, Whisky, Proof Spirits and refuse Liquor, doctored, spiced and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics," "Restoratives," "Appetizers," &c., that lead the tippler on to drunkenness and ruin, but are a true medicine, made from the native roots and herbs of California free from all alcoholic stimulants. They are the Great Blood Purifier and Life Giving Principle, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system carrying off all poisonous matter and restoring the blood to a healthy condition. No person can take these Bitters according to directions, and remain long unwell. $100 will be given for an incurable case, provided the bones are not destroyed by mineral poisons or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair. J. Walker, proprietor. R. H. McDonald & Co., Druggists and general agents, San Francisco, Cal., and 32 and 34 Commerce street, N.Y. Sold by all druggists and dealers. may1-4w
