CAUSES OF LONG LIFE.

Noted Men of Great Age Have Held Various Opinions.

Cornaro, who was a great rake in his youth, but who reformed and lived to be 104, ascribed it to careful diet and the control of his passions. "He who seriously wishes to enjoy good health," he writes, "must learn to keep his passions in subjection to reason, otherwise all temperance will go for little." President John Quincy Adams, hale and hearty at 90, ascribed his success as a long liver to the fact that he regularly gave eight hours to sleep, eight to exercise and eight to work, and had taken regular air baths every morning, walked in his bedroom in a perfectly nude state, summer and winter alike, with the windows all open, for half an hour. But this is an impracticable recipe for longevity for residents in city blocks, says the New York Recorder. The grand old men of our day are much divided in the advice they give to their would-be imitators.

M. Barthelemy Saint-Hilaire, the famous French scholar, who recently entered on his 90th year full of physical and intellectual vigor, ascribes his good fortune to strict adherence to the old precept, "Early to bed and early to rise," with steady work during waking hours.

Mr. Gladstone attributes his longevity to his habit of taking a daily walk in all weathers and to his giving his 32 bites to every morsel of food. Oliver Wendell Holmes placed his faith on equability of temperature.

Dr. P. H. Van der Weyde, an American octogenarian, not long ago offered himself "as an example of the benign influence of the study and practice of music." Some aged persons give the credit of their long lives to abstinence from tobacco, alcohol or meat; others to their indulgence in all these things. One old lady, having reached the age of 100, maintained that single blessedness is the real elixir vita, and she ascribed the death of a brother at the tender age of 80 to the fact that he had committed matrimony in early life.

M. Ferdinand de Lesseps believed in horse riding. In a letter M. De Lesseps delivered himself as follows: "I shall always feel deeply grateful to Lavisse, my riding master, who, from my earliest years, made me share his keen passion for horses; and I am still convinced that daily horse exercise has, in a large measure, been the means of enabling me to reach my 84th year in perfect health." Carlyle was also a great rider almost to the end of his long life, and he not only rode, but groomed his horse himself.

Note the curious fact that nobody who lives an extra long life ever ascribes it to luck. Yet luck is often a controlling element. Only a short time since a New Yorker, who had become an expert horseback rider as a means of health and longevity, following the De Lesseps and Carlisle formula, was riding in one of the city parks, when his horse became frightened, ran away and threw him. His neck was instantly broken. The gates of life and death swing out and in on the same hinges. All the health rules in the world will not relieve the gift of long life against the chapter of accidents, which is the largest chapter of all in the books of human experience.

Learning to Skate.

A learner should, if possible, get some friend who is steady and strong on his or her feet to assist her or to the ice, and when on to hold her up while she is "finding her feet" by crossing hands. Short steps should be taken at first, as if striding, not forgetting to lean forward and to put the weight on the foot that is in advance. This is one of the first principles of skating and one that many who are endeavoring to teach themselves are often considerable time in discovering. As soon as you have gained a sufficient amount of confidence and balance, it is best to discard all but occasional assistance. In learning one should turn one's toes out, but when proficient enough to attempt the outside edge, the toes must be turned in, otherwise it will be impossible to use the outside edge of the skate.

When skating on either edge the shoulder corresponding to the foot being used must be advanced, this rule applying equally to both forward and backward skating. Remember, whether you are skating forward or backward, on the inside or on the outside edge, to always turn the head and look in the direction in which you are travelling. In striking off on the outside edge be careful not to fall into the bad habit general among beginners of stooping, and then regaining the balance by a jerky, sudden throwing back of the head. If you desire to skate easily or gracefully all sudden or jerky movements must be avoided. It is, of course, necessary to bend the knee when striking off, but doing so need interfere little with either the position of your body or head, and as soon as you have regained the balance, and are fairly off on your edge, the knee must be straightened, otherwise it will be impossible for you to develop either easiness or power. Always hold the head well up, steadily resisting the desire (which many learners possess) to watch your feet on the ice. Carry the unemployed foot well behind the one in use, keeping the toe turned outward and downward. Do not let your elbows stick out sidewise. It is not graceful, and it often causes inconvenience to other skaters. Carry the arms easily and naturally.

MUNYON'S TRIUMPH

THE FIGHT AGAINST DISEASE, POISONOUS DRUGS AND OLD FOGYISM DECLARED IN HIS FAVOR

Mr. J. Baumer Tells the Story of His Suffering and Cure.

Mr. J. Baumer, 62 East Twenty-First street, Bayonne, N. J., says: "Eighteen months ago I was so crippled with rheumatism that I could not dress myself. I tried all the doctors in Bayonne, but they gave me up as hopeless. I also tried numerous preparations, but I failed to find any relief. At last I heard of Munyon's Rheumatism Cure and began using it. The effect was marvelous. I improved at once, and found that less than two bottles were sufficient to cure me completely, as I have not had a twinge of rheumatism since."

Munyon's Rheumatism Cure is guaranteed to cure rheumatism in any part of the body. Acute or muscular rheumatism cured in from one to five days. If never fails to cure sharp, shooting pains in the arms, legs, sides, back or breast, or soreness in any part of the body in from one to three hours. It is guaranteed to promptly cure lumbago, stiff and swollen joints, stiff back, and all pains in the hips and loins. Chronic rheumatism, sciatica, lumbago or pain in the back are speedily cured.

Munyon's Homeopathic Home Remedy company, of Philadelphia, puts up specifics for nearly every disease, which are sold by all druggists, mostly for 25 cents a bottle.

For Health.

A decoction of cinnamon is recommended as a drink to be taken freely in localities where there is typhoid fever or cholera, for cinnamon has the power to destroy all infectious microbes. Even its scent kills them, while it is perfectly harmless to human beings. It is said that the defence of cinnamon, when exposed in the sick room will kill typhoid bacilli in 10 hours and prevent fresh cases.

As a rule the woman whose profession is housekeeping puts house first and herself second. It follows that occasionally she "gives out" and she is sure to be abominable tired. The business woman early once learns that she must count herself first and business second. Inasmuch as, to do her work well, she must be well. She conserves her strength by regular sleep, nourishing foods and restful baths. She does this, if she is successful; and the unsuccessful may find that frequently the inability to fill their business positions lies as much in physical weakness that may be remedied as in positive mental weakness.—Health.

First Aid to the Injured.

It is handy to know what to do in the case of accidental injury, when the immediate attendance of a doctor cannot be obtained, and therefore the following hints, given by Dr. Macy in the Ladies' Home Journal, are worth preserving:

Anyone suffering from a severe sprain will not require more than the first speaking to convince them of the advantage of hot over cold water. A flannel bandage should be applied firmly after each treatment. For bruises very much the same method should be followed, although applications need not be continued for so long a time. For wounds or sores the best method is to drip or pour for a few minutes. For ailing or inflamed eyelids, and even for sore eyes, use water as hot as can be borne by dipping. To stop bleeding, very hot water applied to the raw surface will be found efficacious. For many forms of dyspepsia and biliousness, particularly a catarrhal condition of the stomach, a goblet of hot water drunk after a night's fasting will give relief. For continued application in the form of a poultice, as in catarrh of the bronchi, pleurisy, pneumonia, etc., a jacket of cotton batting wrung out in very hot water by means of a towel and covered with oiled silk or waxed paper, should be used.

ONE ON COL. MORRISON.

An Illustration of "Efficiency of Discipline."

Friends of ex-Congressman William R. Morrison, of Illinois, are telling an anecdote of effectsin date relating to the chairman of the inter-state commerce committee, which forms rather cheerful reading these pleasant days of snow and arctic reprisse. Col. Morrison believed in the efficiency of discipline of the mind. He has spent a great part of his eventful career in hotels, and one of his theories has always been that the mind can be so trained that the biggest sort of a hotel fire is powerless to sidetrack the reasoning faculties on occasions when presence of mind is needed. He impressed his theory very strongly upon Mrs. Morrison by conjuring up a variety of awful exigencies and instructing her how to act in given cases.

Fate would have it that the colonel should be put to the test. He and his wife were aroused from their slumbers one night by an alarm of fire. The hotel in which they had their rooms was afire and great confusion and tumult ensued among the guests.

"Now is the time to put into practice what I have always preached to you, my dear," said the colonel. "Don't get excited. Put on all your indispensable apparel and take your time. Don't lose your head. Just watch me."

He calmed Mrs. Morrison's anxiety, handed her the various articles necessary to her toilet, put on his collar and cuffs, took his watch from under his pillow and placed it in his vest pocket, put on his hat, packed a valise of valuables, and taking his cane, walked with Mrs. Morrison out of the burning building into the street.

"Now, my dear," he said when they were safe, "don't you see what a grand thing it is to keep cool and act with a deliberate purpose in an emergency like this? Here you are completely dressed as though you were going out for a walk and over yonder are several ladies in complete dishabille."

Just then Mrs. Morrison for the first time glanced at her husband.

"You ole eight William" she said "it is a grand thing to keep cool and act deliberately, but if I had been you I would have stuck in the room long enough to put on my trousers."—Washington Post.

The Sea Elephant Nearly Extinct.

[St. Nicholas.]

The California sea-elephant is an animal with a fearfully long Latin name, but a very short stay on this earth. It is the largest of all the seals, its average length when fully grown being from 12 to 14 feet, while it sometimes reaches the astonishing length of 23 feet, including the hind-flippers. It is still an open question whether this animal is of the same species as the sea-elephant of the Antarctic ocean. Our animal, like the other, derives its popular name from the lengthened, tapir-like proboscis, or snout, of the old males, which sometimes projects 6 inches or more beyond the end of the muzzle.

The hair is exceedingly short, very stiff and harsh, and when clean and dry is of a dusky yellowish color. This species once inhabited about 900 miles of the coast of California, from Point Reyes south, but it has been practically exterminated for the sake of its oil. In 1884 C. H. Townsend visited Santa Barbara Island for the express purpose of preserving for the National Museum the skins and skeletons of what were supposed to be the last survivors of the species, then about to be killed by a seal-hunter for their oil. The result was that at the eleventh hour a number of very valuable skins and skeletons were saved for the zoological museums of the world.

About the same time an enterprising collector actually captured five young specimens alive and shipped them to New York, Baltimore, Philadelphia and Cincinnati, which was the first and only time the species was ever seen alive in the eastern United States, and will doubtless be the last. But I am glad to be able to state that these seals are not absolutely extinct, for a short time ago Mr. Townsend assured me that a few individuals are yet somewhere south of San Francisco, in a place that the seal-hunters know not of.

GOT THE HEADACHE?

If You Have, Here's the Way to Rid Yourself of the Weariness and Pain Attending It.

Some people suffer with headaches, many people are worn out and weary all the time, many more people have lame back and backache. Few people understand the real cause of their aches, and fewer yet know how easily they can find a cure. Just a word of explanation before we prove that what we say is true. The back is the key note of the kidneys. It aches: that's a sign that the kidneys are not working properly: it is lame; another sign the kidneys are out of order. The kidneys, you know, are the filters of the blood, but filters sometimes get clogged up. This means in their case that the blood courses through the entire system impregnated with poisonous uric acid, bringing on many a disorder which if neglected means disease, perhaps incurable, and now about the cure:—Don't take our word for it, read what one of your own citizens says. She may be a neighbor of yours, at any rate she makes this statement. She says: My complaint has been coming on for nearly five years; it was not so severe at first but has been slowly getting worse. These are the words of Mrs. H. Hester, who resides at No. 90 State street, and continuing with a description of her case she said: "The pains I suffered were in the small of the back and constant ache there and a sharp pain in the region of the bladder. I was always much worse if forced to bend over or stand on my feet for any length of time. During the passage of urine I experienced a sharp, smarting sensation extremely difficult to bear. The long duration of the disease seemed to weaken me all over and bring me to a "run down" condition. My husband procured a box of Doan's Kidney Pills for me. I began taking them and the good effect from them seemed almost immediate. They drove away all pain completely and did me more good than anything I have ever used. I cheerfully recommend Doan's Kidney Pills and think it a wonderful remedy."

Doan's Kidney Pills are for sale by all dealers, price 50 cents. Mailed by Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. S. Felt & Co., agents for Watertown.
