TO CURE NERVOUS DYSPEPSIA

To Gain Flesh, to Sleep Well, to Know What Appetite and Good Digestion Mean, Make a Test of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

Interesting Experience of an Indianapolis Gentleman.

No trouble is more common or more misunderstood than nervous dyspepsia. People having it think that their nerves are to blame and are surprised that they are not cured by nerve medicine and spring remedies; the real seat of the mischief is lost sight of; the stomach is the organ to be looked after.

Nervous dyspeptics often do not have any pain whatever in the stomach, nor perhaps any of the usual symptoms of stomach weakness. Nervous dyspepsia shows itself not in the stomach so much as in nearly every other organ; in some cases the heart palpitates and is irregular; in others the kidneys are affected; in others the bowels are constipated, with headaches; still others are troubled with loss of flesh and appetite, with accumulation of gas, sour risings and heartburn.

A. W. Sharper, of No. 61 Prospect street, Indianapolis, Ind., writes as follows: "A motive of pure gratitude prompts me to write these few lines regarding the new and valuable medicine, Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. I have been a sufferer from nervous dyspepsia for the last four years; have used various patent medicines and other remedies without any favorable result. They sometimes gave temporary relief until the effects of the medicine wore off. I attributed this to my sedentary habits, being a bookkeeper with little physical exercise, but I am glad to state that the tablets have overcome all these obstacles, for I have gained in flesh, sleep better, and am better in every way. The above is written not for notoriety, but is based on actual fact."

Respectfully yours,
A. W. SHARPER,
61 Prospect St., Indianapolis, Ind.

ZISKA AND HIS BRUTALITY

His Latest Exhibition of Drunken Frenzy

Smashes Dishes and Furniture and Turns His Wife Out of Doors—Has Bad Record.

Stephen Ziska is a brute. He is a tailor, and lives with his maltreated wife and three or four wretched children at No. 144 Main street. At 8:30 Wednesday night Officer John Lucas was standing on the Main street corner near the river. He perceived flying toward him the figure of a woman, only scantily clad and without shoes on her stockinged feet. It was Mrs. Ziska. She told the officer that Ziska had come home after drinking. He demanded food and his misused wife set before him the best the house afforded. Its quality did not suit him, and when she told him that it was all they had because he would not furnish the money to buy better, and had even taken her grocery book away, the angelic Ziska threw the dishes on the floor, breaking them, and kicked the furniture and wound up by throwing his wife, who had arisen from her bed to minister to his wants, out of the house.

The officer went back to the house with the weeping woman, and there met the brute, who was sullen. As Officer Lucas had not witnessed the affair he did not then arrest the fellow.

He reported the affair to Chief Champlin, who told him that if Ziska became any drunker to run him in.

It seems that after demolishing the crockery Ziska went up town again to satisfy his bestial instincts still further by getting drunk. At 11 o'clock Officer Lucas beheld this assailant of women reeling, staggering drunk, and as soon had the bully safe behind the bars.

Yesterday morning he secured bail, his bond being fixed at $50. In the afternoon he was tried. He had claimed he was not drunk, but E. Robert Wilson, his lawyer, pleaded guilty for him, whereupon Recorder Cobb levied the very moderate fine of $5.

The fellow is well known to Watertownians through the newspapers, his ruffianly attacks on his wife have been noted. Last summer his two little boys were taken in charge for not attending school. Their clothes hung from them in shreds. They had no shoes. Their well-dressed father was as callous as stone when brought into the presence of the authorities. He was ordered to feed and clothe them properly, and yet their shoes are now bound about with cloths to keep the bitter cold from entering in through the breaks and fissures, and Ziska eats his meals at the saloons which he frequents because there is nothing in the house fit for his lordly stomach. His wife locks the door at night leading into the chamber which she occupies with her children in order that he may not come home swinishly intoxicated and pound them. In many localities a coat of tar and feathers would be considered the proper thing.

Ottawa, Jan. 7.—Dr. Wakeham, Canadas' representative on the international fisheries commission, has returned to this city, having completed his duties. The reports of the American commissioner, Mr. Rathbun, and himself have been handed to their respective governments. It is expected that there will be reciprocal enactments of the laws by the two governments to be followed by a treaty and such legislation as may be deemed necessary. During their travels from the Atlantic to the Pacific the commissioners gathered a vast amount of evidence.

GIRLS IN STORES,

offices, or factories, are peculiarly liable to female diseases, especially those who are constantly on their feet. Often they are unable to perform their duties, their suffering is so intense.

When the first symptoms present themselves, such as backache, pains in groins, headache, dizziness, faintness, swelled feet, blues, etc., they should at once write Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., stating symptoms; she will tell them exactly what to do, and in the meantime they will find prompt relief in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which can be obtained from any druggist.

"MY DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I am so grateful to you for what your Compound has done for me. For four years I suffered such pains from ovarian trouble, which caused dreadful weakness of the limbs, tenderness and burning pain in the groins, pain when standing or walking, and increased pain during menstruation, headache and leucorrhoea. I weighed only 89 pounds, and was advised to use your Vegetable Compound, which I did. I felt the benefit before I had taken all of one bottle. I continued using it, and it has entirely cured me. I have not been troubled with leucorrhoea for months, and now I weigh 110 pounds."—LILLIE HANSON, Flushing, Genesee Co., Michigan. Box 58.

A Place in Rome Raided—Some Young Men and Girls Caught—The Girls Arrested.

Rome, Jan. 8.—Complaint was made to Chief-of-Police Hagarty at the police station this evening that girls were harbored in a club room in the third story of the Haselpaugh block for immoral purposes. Assistant Chief Smith and Officer Driscoll went to the place and found several young men in the room nearest the postoffice. One girl was sitting on the lap of a young man. Another girl was found in the fourth story. They were drinking beer and had refreshments. On being questioned one of the girls admitted the charge and a warrant was sworn out for disorderly conduct. The girls' names are Mary Wood, aged 22, and Jessie Williams, formerly of Camden, aged 18. Mary Wood is one of the girls who were arrested in the disorderly house run by William Richardson near Wright Settlement about two weeks ago. She was discharged by the recorder last Saturday with instructions to leave town. Both of the girls were locked in the police station and will be arraigned tomorrow morning.

THE PROGRAM NUISANCE.

Merchants Induced to Advertise in Them Thinking They will Get Trade from Societies.

Newspaperdom:

The stand taken by the furniture dealers of Worcester, Mass., in refusing to advertise in fair bulletins and ephemeral society publications should be imitated by merchants in other lines of trade. If the money paid by merchants for this sort of publicity found its way into the treasury of the church or society for which the program is published, program advertising would be regarded simply as a means by which assessments are levied for the sake of a deserving cause.

But when so little does go to the original project, the major portion of the receipts furnishing the livelihood of some young fellow who avoids actual labor by concocting and engineering schemes, it is a wonder the program has not been effectually squelched long ago by an outraged public.

The trouble is, each merchant, when approached with a request to take space in a society program, believes he is assisting the society, and that the society will reciprocate by sending trade to his store.

The fallacy of this notion has been proven by actual test. The insertion of an advertisement has no effect on the members of the society in securing additional trade for the advertiser, nor does the society profit by the merchant's patronage of its program.

The whole practice is a fraud on the advertiser, a getting of money by a mild species of blackmail, and a wasting of money which, if paid for newspaper advertising, would bring actual returns in the shape of increased trade.

The Orphans' Christmas.

The children of the Orphans' home held their Christmas exercises on New Year's day at 3 p.m. They consisted of Scripture recitation and singing. Two well filled trees greeted the eyes of the children as they marched into their schoolroom. It brought forth exclamations of delight from the little ones as they viewed the beautifully dressed dolls, the picture books and games of all kinds hanging on the trees, also apples, oranges, and so many beautiful things to make them happy. Quite a large number of people who were interested in the welfare of the children were in attendance, and were well repaid when they saw what joy this Christmas brought to them.

A pleasant feature was the interest manifested by children outside, children who had celebrated their own Christmas in happy homes, and yet in the midst of their own happiness, had not forgotten the orphaned ones. The following were among those who contributed to their pleasure: Ethel Simons, Sam Upham, Paul and Henry Camp, Richard Marsy Buck, Dorothy and Bertrand Taylor, Rosalind Aswell, Eunice Remington, Dorothy Camp, Mabel Porter, May Conger, May Walton, Margaret Upham, Ella and Lulema Conger, Howard and Marion Cadwell, Miss May Goodale, Miss Starbuck, Miss Bennett, Miss Eunice Haag, Mrs. Edward Smith, Mrs. Bordwell, Mrs. Orton, A. E. York, Mrs. Stiles, Miss Hayes, Sallie McMullin, Mrs. Kinsie, Mrs. Lamon, Mr. Spratt, and Mrs. Root. The cash gifts were First Presbyterian church Sunday school, Emmanuel Congregational Sunday school, and Mrs. George Cook. The merchants also gave very liberal discounts.

A Home Gathering.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Hall, of West street, Black River, was the scene of a pleasant little gathering on the 6th inst. The occasion was the fifth anniversary of their marriage, also the birthday anniversary of Mrs. Hall's only brother, George Wilson, of Leray, who, with his wife and daughter, Marion, was present. With joyous greetings, music and song, time went merrily as a marriage bell. Refreshments were served to the guests, after which the host and hostess were presented with several pretty chairs and a parlor table.

As the sun lowered in the western sky, leaving night's shades, the company departed, wishing them many happy returns of the day, each adding a wreath in memory's hall.

MR. M'KINLEY HAS A HARD JOB.

Interesting Cabinet Gossip—Some Republican Factional Feuds—McKinley's Patience—A Diplomatic Newspaper Man. Meant Well, but Didn't Know—Wellman's Gossip.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—[Special.]—Great interest is shown here in the cabinet building job which Major McKinley has on his hands out at Canton and Cleveland. I hear from private and wholly trustworthy sources that the chief obstacle to shaping up the cabinet is as to the secretaryship of state. While Senator Sherman was at one time decided on for this post, and is still likely to be the new secretary, there are certain obstacles in the way. The senator is willing to accept the post, and has indicated as much; but he is not anxious to do so. He will not do so at all unless the way can be cleared for the appointment of Mr. Hanna as his successor in the senate. Here is where the old factional troubles in Ohio politics come in. Senator Elect Foraker and Governor Bushnell are warm friends, and if Mr. Sherman were to resign, Governor Bushnell would have the appointment of his successor. It is safe to say that if Mr. Bushnell will agree to appoint Mr. Hanna senator, Mr. Sherman will be the next secretary of state and not otherwise. At the present time I understand the Foraker and Hanna elements of the party in that state are negotiating and trying to reach an agreement for peace all around, with a fair prospect of success.

Political Rivalry.

Much of the cabinet gossip is of an interesting character, though not throwing much light upon the personnel of the new ministry. By this time President Elect McKinley must have a fine lot of information concerning the factional wars and personal quarrels in the Republican party. Wherever a man has bobbed up above the surface as a cabinet possibility some other man or a number of men have appeared trying to pull him down. Quite as many trips have been made to Canton to oppose possible cabinet appointments as for the purpose of favoring them. For instance, as soon as it was noised about that ex-Governor Merriam of Minnesota was under consideration for the war department or some other cabinet post, a number of prominent Minnesota Republicans went to Canton to protest against him. Among these was ex-Senator Washburn. They have some old factional feuds up in Minnesota which are coming to the front at this time.

The same thing is true of other states. Governor Merriam is generally regarded as a fine man, worthy a place in any president's cabinet, and I understand his opponents do not base their criticism upon personal grounds. As in Wisconsin, where political rivalry has led to the appearance of opposition to the appointment of Henry Payne to the postmaster generalship or to the secretaryship of the interior, party factionalism, and not personal shortcomings, is at the bottom of the trouble. There are many other states in which the same conditions have appeared. In fact, in almost every state some such opposition to this man or that has manifested itself, and the president elect has had to sit and listen to a great many tales of woe, of malice, of enmity and of quarrels which it seems impossible to heal. Mr. McKinley is patient, however, and perhaps he likes it.

Their Vigilant Eyes.

Amid a group of senators and newspaper men the other day I heard an interesting discussion. It was as to whether a prominent man could or could not get into Canton, have an interview with the president elect and get out again without being published in the newspapers. The prevailing opinion among those present was that the thing could not be done. They called attention to the fact that the local newspaper men of Canton are very bright fellows, who by this time have had so much contact with the prominent men of the country that no one would be able to escape their vigilant eye. If, perchance, someone should come along with whose face they were not familiar, then one or other of the special correspondents of big newspapers who are stationed at Canton would be sure to recognize the visitor and give the facts away to their fellow workers in the newspaper field. Among the special correspondents stationed at Canton are a number who have had extended experience in Washington, and who are acquainted with nearly all the well known men in the country.

At this juncture a newspaper man, William E. Curtis, the well known correspondent and special writer of the Chicago Record, surprised us all by telling a story.

"I say it is possible for a man of first rate prominence to get into Canton, see McKinley and get out again without being discovered by the newspaper boys," said Mr. Curtis. "I know it can be done, because it has been done. I was myself the pilot of a very prominent man who wanted to see McKinley without being known. It happens that I am well known in Canton, where I have frequently visited. It also happens that I have relatives at Massillon, eight miles west of Canton. Having made arrangements with Governor McKinley for the reception of my friend, I told him to ride through Canton on his way west and to get off at Massillon. There I met him, and we took another train back to Canton. Arriving there at midday, of course the correspondents hailed me and wanted to know who my friend was. I told them he was one of my relatives from Massillon, who had come over with me to pay his respects to the president elect. We walked up North Market street to McKinley's house, had a private interview with the governor and walked back to the railway station again, and all without the identity of my friend being discovered. If he had been known, there would have been a column about his visit in every paper in the country the next morning."

He Meant Well.

Mr. Curtis' ability as a diplomatist is well known. This reminds me of another man, a well known congressman, who is an aspirant for appointment as minister to France under the McKinley administration. He imagines himself to be a great diplomat. But I saw a letter of introduction which he recently wrote for a newspaper friend of his who wanted to make the acquaintance of a certain public man. "I do not know whether you will care to talk to this correspondent or not," wrote the congressman, "but if you do talk to him I think you will be perfectly safe." It is scarcely necessary to add that the letter of introduction was never presented. The congressman meant well, but he did not know how. A more undiplomatic aspirant for diplomatic honors I never heard of.
