A petition was circulated by S. E. Stanton this morning, asking the legislature to pass the bill that has been introduced establishing a close season, during the breeding periods, in which it will be unlawful to kill bears in this state. Within two hours Mr. Stanton had secured 140 signatures and the petition will be immediately forwarded to Albany.

THE FAIR.

Over 3,000 Attended Last Night—It Will Close Tomorrow Night.

The Odd Fellows' fair is a magnet that draws the more surely as it approaches its close. Over 3,000 were there last night, the attendance rivaling the second night of the venture. As then, there transpired a crush. Policemen were employed in handling the crowd which sought to enter. When every floor was crowded some hundreds had to be turned away.

It was Pythian night. Watertown and Crowns lodges, with members of Joe Hooker troupe, visited the fair in a body. After entering they drew up, with some difficulty on account of the crowd, in the form of a triangle, being welcomed briefly by Manager Greenia.

There was a spirited contest, resulting in C. Thomson winning the overcoat with 291 votes to 219 for Thomas Mathews. No. 17,403 won the door prize, an organ offered by R. D. Gardner. The holder of the ticket did not materialize last night. Other prizes drawn included slippers, R. A. Holmes; silver teaspoons, W. P. Darby; silk suspenders, W. R. Love; J. A. Nichols, pillow, mukettle, pillow, C. J. Tie; shoes, A. E. Preston; pillows, Harry Woods, Mrs. James Stafford, Oscar Wilde, Mrs. J. M. Corey; Mrs. A. Dryden, carpet sweeper, and 25 or 30 smaller articles.

About 150 were entertained at supper. The last supper will be served tonight, as there will be no time tomorrow night to trouble with one. An attractive menu of the variety order will be provided. Mrs. M. R. Klock is chairman of the committee.

Tonight special attractions will be provided by the Adams brothers, "Con." Daly and the boxing coons. The Maccabees and lady Maccabees will be present in force. There will be dancing as usual.

The fair will resume at 7 p.m. tomorrow, the final night. The smaller articles will be drawn followed by that of the larger ones, including the automobile, which nearly every one in town expects to own. Dancing will be had from 9 till 11:30.

Manager F. X. Greenia requests that all bills against the fair be presented to him at the Otis before Monday night. He also requests winners of unclaimed presents at the fair to call for them before tomorrow night, else they must be again disposed of.

THE WATER SUPPLY QUESTION

N. P. WARDWELL BELIEVES THAT A FILTER IS NEEDED

But It Should be Located on Reservoir Hill, and a Better Supply Should be Procured.

To the Times:

I was very much pleased to see Senator Brown's letter in your issue of Wednesday night, and I fully agree with him that the citizens of Watertown will not be satisfied with Black river water, filled as it is with the sewage of Lowville, Carthage, and other villages on its banks, even after it is filtered.

I do not agree with him, however, in the idea that we do not need a filtration plant or in taking any steps to delay for a day the putting that plant in operation, provided our board of water commissioners will place that filter on the hill by the present reservoir, where it will probably be needed when we get a source of water supply other than Black river.

To my mind, City Engineer McComb's investigations have demonstrated that there is only one source from which Watertown can get a supply of water uncontaminated with sewage, without incurring a bond issue too great for a city of less than 100,000 inhabitants. That source is Deer river, above Copenhagen and from that river only by building dams and creating a large storage reservoir.

Engineer McComb's estimate of the cost of bringing water from Deer river is in round numbers $1,000,000. In that estimate he includes the cost of two reservoirs on Rutland hill at a total cost of $400,000. Those reservoirs, in these days of modern pressure-reducing valves, are, to my mind, unnecessary. Deducting this $400,000 from his estimate, would leave the cost $600,000, not too large a sum, I think, to pay for a gravity system supplying pure water to a city of the population of Watertown.

To put this system in working condition would doubtless take several years, and the sickness and deaths that the proposed filtration plant would save while this system was in process of construction would be worth all it would cost.

I am informed that the best authorities on municipal water supply are now advising that all water drawn from large storage reservoirs should be filtered, and we all know that Black river water in its best days would have been greatly improved by filtering.

For that reason I feel we ought not to delay the building of the filtration plant for even one day, but let it be built on the reservoir hill, where it will be of use when Watertown has a supply of water from some other source than Black river.

The power needed to operate the filter system could be easily transferred by electricity from the present pump house.

Do not let us go back to the point where our water board were five years ago, and travel over the same ground they have been over with their investigations only to arrive at the same conclusion that they have reached, viz., that there is no source from which a sufficient supply of water that will not need to be filtered can be reached without bonding our city more heavily than it can stand.

While perhaps I may not, as some, see the desirability of doubling the population of our city, I do not want to see it so heavily bonded that the consequent tax will drive away any of our present manufacturers or inhabitants.

N. P. WARDWELL.

The River a Big Sewer.

To the Times:

In reference to the proposition to install a filtration plant in the city of Watertown, it does seem as if an expression of the people should at once be procured by submitting the matter to them at a special election. Heretofore whenever any large expenditure of money has been made, the question has always been submitted and a vote taken thereon, and particularly in matters like the City hall, Mill street bridge, trunk sewers, High school and practically all the recent purchases made by the fire department.

The question of pure water is of far more importance than any of these matters, and one that apparently is being more thought of by the people. For myself personally, I think a great mistake will be made if any money is expended for trying to wash the waters of our river, and it has always seemed to me that the proposition is the same as if it were proposed to wash the waters coming directly from any of our large public sewers. It is a well-known fact that Black river is nothing but a large sewer, and the degree of filth running through the same is only less in proportion than that running through one of our own public sewers.

It may be that I have come in contact with only those who are opposed to the filtration plant, but I have been unable to meet any one interested in the question who is not emphatically opposed to it and have asked that I express my views on the subject in this way.

The growth and prosperity of our city depends more upon the question of pure water than any other matter now before the people. It is a question not for today, but for all time to come, and involves the health of not only ourselves, but of our children and their descendants.

The present epidemic of typhoid fever in the city of Ithaca, where over 700 people are at present afflicted, and where it has been necessary to turn the churches into hospitals, ought to impress upon the people of this city the great necessity for pure water, especially as the press items in relation to the epidemic at Ithaca all state that there is a filtration plant in connection with that system.

JOHN N. CARLISLE.

A CHEMIST'S VIEWS.

J. M. Adams Explains the Chemical Properties of Alum in Water Filtration—Several Objections to its Use.

To the Times:

There are several strong objections to the use of alum in the filtration of Black river water, which should be considered seriously before adoption. It may be used with much better results in hard water, which, by partial decomposition of alum, would take up the free sulphuric acid, but with such soft water as we have there must be necessarily quite an amount of free sulphuric acid, which in a number of years would badly affect the pipes. Alum is composed of alumina (basis of clay) with sulphuric acid, united with ammonia or potash, having two more parts of sulphuric acid.

The lime in the water, however little, separates this combination, also the iron and vegetable matters have this same effect, so that more or less acid must be eliminated which would be quite unfit for many purposes, even though but in small amounts. This is corrected in some filtration plants by adding soda, but this only complicates matters all the more. There is a danger of using too much alum or too little to just precipitate the foreign matters and any excess or deficiency would spoil the work entirely. The amount of organic matter varies so greatly between summer and winter that it would be hard to make a just estimate, there being at least ten times more in summer than in winter, and every rain storm varies the amount also very greatly.

In fact at the present time (winter) there is but little objection to the water and the addition of alum would not even make it any clearer, if so clear, as it is already, but it would be slightly milky. There cannot be a possibility of the water being entirely free from alum, no matter how little is used, and one part to a million may not do material harm, yet even that amount is objectionable. It can be detected by some solutions even though so little, as making the water comparatively hard and made more so according to the amount of alum used. The objection then would be in washing and laundry purposes, which would be a continual annoyance.

The color of the water comes from quite an amount of tannin from bark and leaves of the woods as they are decomposed uniting with a trace of iron from the rocks in the upper woods, the making tannate of iron. In order to precipitate all this the water would have to stand a long time and probably longer than the necessary demand would admit. There might be a too hasty work done and thus a defect or a carelessness in passing water not properly percolated and just as many bacteria get through as before in case of typhoid, etc. It is true that the particles of dirt contain the bacteria and without such bacteria can live but a short time, unless the water be exceedingly filthy or reduced in degree in hot weather. Muddy particles of organic matter are the carriers of bacteria and filtration is needed above all things else. The coagulation of alum would help in this respect. It is true, provided time and adaptation can be regulated to suit every condition, but will be so difficult that I fear it may be impracticable.

J. M. ADAMS.

Alson Abby.

Alson Abby was born in the town of Clayton, April 25, 1830, and died at his home in this village Jan. 27, 1903. He moved on the River road in May, 1857. He was married to Maria Derby, Aug. ..., 1853.

Mr. Abby had spent his whole life in this vicinity. He united with the M. E. church of this place when a young man, and has been an influential and zealous worker ever since holding the office of trustee, steward and class leader for 50 years. He always promptly responded to a call for help from any one of the neighborhood.

On Sept. 4, 1864, Mr. Abby enlisted in Co. E, 186th regiment, and served faithfully until the close of the war, receiving an honorable discharge. He died from disease contracted in the service.

The funeral services were largely attended at the M. E. church, Rev. ... W. Aylesworth officiating who preached a touching discourse.

Albert Dennis Post, G. A. R., of which Mr. Abby was a member, attended in a body. The casket was draped with the American flag. Much emotion was manifested by the large audience.

The life of Mr. Abby has been a benediction to the community. He leaves besides a widow, one brother, Dr. Charles Abby of Chicago, Ill., two sisters, Mrs. Chapin of Copenhagen and Mrs. P. B. Grant of Watertown.

The remains were placed in the vault at Clayton.

Mrs. Adela de Eastman Holmes.

Potsdam, Feb. 12.—Mrs. Adela de Eastman Holmes, wife of C. R. Holmes, owner and former proprietor of the Albion house, died at her home on Elm street yesterday at 11:30 a. m.

Mrs. Holmes had been a resident of Potsdam over 45 years, and was the daughter of Leo Eastman, one of the pioneer settlers of St. Lawrence county. She was a woman of strong character and sterling virtues, and was prominent in the social life of Potsdam and actively identified with every enterprise of public benefit. Perhaps no other woman could have been taken from the community who would have been more generally missed. Her decline has covered a period of two years, during which the resources of modern medical and surgical skill have been exhausted in her behalf. Her husband, and daughter, Miss Mildred Holmes, survive.

The funeral services will take place at the family home Saturday at 1:30 p.m. Rev. W. C. Robinson, former pastor of the Presbyterian church in Potsdam, now of the Park Central Presbyterian church of Syracuse, will officiate.

The interment will be made in the family lot in Bayside cemetery.

The correct name is Mrs. Sarah T. Thompson, who came to Carthage from Canada and was a widow of the late Almon Thompson, who died at his home on the State road several years ago. Upon his death, Mrs. Thompson moved to this village and resided on South James street, and subsequently moved to New York. Their only daughter died when they lived on the State road. A DEER KILLED

Clubbed to Death Near the Lake Shore—The Meat Divided Among the Neighbors—A Crime.

Mannsville, Feb. 13.—The deer that has been around here for several days, and whose life Game Protector Williams has worked so hard to save, by notifying the people of the law against killing deer and taking dogs from the track, was killed yesterday by a man named Christman, near the lake shore.

He put his dog on her track, and after she was tired out he and a neighbor clubbed her to death. Then they dressed her and divided the meat among their neighbors, thus making a whole neighborhood guilty of a crime.

Williams expects to have a crowd before Justice Beebe in a short time.

It is strange that people will violate a law of the state for the sake of killing something.
