HOLIDAY WEEK.

Everybody in this county must be prepared to take a holiday on Centennial week, commencing June 19, and abandon serious business to entertaining their friends and having a good time themselves.

The enthusiasm with which this enterprise has been taken hold of is a guarantee of success and a good time on "Old Home Week." The towns of the county have been well organized for months but have been looking toward the city to see what it would do.

It will be the greatest event Jefferson county ever saw. Everybody is interested and enthusiastic. It is a county with a romantic past, a splendid progressive present and a glorious future.

PUBLICITY REFORMS.

The home cleaning of the Equitable Life Assurance company seems now pretty thoroughly accomplished and the company ought to be a better insurance medium after it than it ever was before.

Probably the Equitable has not been doing different from other large life insurance companies. Investigation showed that the policy holders who furnished the capital had no control whatever over the use of their money.

All these things being made public have for a time paralyzed the business of the Equitable and been a great blow to the business of all life insurance companies through the loss of public confidence.

have an effect on the life insurance business generally. Policy holders in other great mutual companies will demand that their rights be recognized and there be a more mutual division of profits rather than what the officers choose to give after taking out for their enormous salaries and expenses.

HIS GREATEST TRIUMPH.

President Roosevelt holds up his hand to the warring nations and appeals for peace in the name of humanity. They have heard and are considering his words. There is not much doubt that Russia and Japan will agree to his suggestion and talk the matter over with each other with the purpose of arriving at a basis of peace.

It will be a strange fact of history if this strenuous president, this rough rider, this man who, it has been asserted, was a man of war and would plunge the country into all kinds of foreign difficulties, backed by the war lord of Germany, whose reputation is of the same character, should be the angel of peace to stop this terrible slaughter in Asia.

President Roosevelt has won many laurels as a writer, a reformer, as a civil officer, as a soldier, and as an executive, but it is his success in stopping the eastern war, in bringing peace, preventing a further shedding of more blood, preventing the making of more widows and orphans and desolate homes, he will have performed the greatest act of his whole career and the greatest service to humanity of which man is capable.

Albert T. Patrick, the New York lawyer under sentence of death for conspiring to kill William Nash Rice with a motive of securing his property through a forged will, has been denied a new trial by the court of appeals and the death sentence is continued.

The ordinance passed by the common council requiring a license for dancing halls, pavilions, etc., under the restriction of consents from neighboring property, is designed primarily to prevent such attempts as were recently made to encroach on the City park grounds, but is most valuable for a general purpose.

All the Russian people, those who suffer most, join with the people of the world in praying for peace. The great representative body, the Zemstvo, although having no official standing, is bringing the petition of the people into concrete form for presentation to the czar in a way which he can hardly resist.

If British experience with submarine destroyers is anything to go by, these boats are more dangerous to their crews than to an enemy. Three have been lost in a little over a year and very few of the crews survived. The A-1 sank the other day, being sunk by

No Appetite

Means loss of vitality, vigor or tone, and is often a precursor of prostrating sickness. This is why it is serious. The best thing you can do is to take the great, alterative and tonic Hood's Sarsaparilla.

internal explosion, the cause of which is not definitely known. All but four of the 18 officers and men were lost. As was lost off Queenstown Feb. 16 in the same way and six men lost their lives. The A-1 was lost during the manoeuvres off Portsmouth March 18 of last year, being run into while submerged by one of the warships and all on board, 11 officers and men, were drowned. It is evidently a most hazardous service.

Yale college wants $10,000,000 to add to its income producing funds which already amount to $7,000,000 to get even with Harvard's $17,000,000. Stanford university of California will still be ahead with $20,000,000. And yet, Elihu Yale, who endowed the Connecticut college with $5,500 or John Harvard, who started the Boston university with $1,500 and 800 books, never dreamed that so much money could be used. And perhaps the true purpose of education are no better served. One poor man's self-denial seems to count for more than millions out of the surplus of the rich.

The Colorado Springs chamber of commerce has been looking for an authentic portrait of Gen. Zebulon M. Pike, the discoverer of Pike's Peak. It had about determined that none existed when, after much investigation, an oil portrait was found in Independence Hall from the brush of Charles Willson Peale, who painted the portrait of Washington. They have ordered a copy for the city of Colorado Springs. Gen. Pike went to his death at the battle of York from Sackett Harbor and his remains are buried in the military cemetery at Madison Barracks. This county should have a copy of that painting.

Dr. Patton of Princeton, puts his opinion very strongly against the aristocracy of money and evidently refers to Rockefeller in saying: "I hate a cold blooded right living rascal who has accumulated his $40,000,000, teaches Sunday school regularly and within the range of the law drives his hard bargains every week day. If such men would ask what I thought of them I would congratulate them on keeping out of jail." If Rockefeller has expected to purchase good opinion with money he must be thoroughly disappointed.

In one month the political ring that has robbed Philadelphia for years has been broken. The Quaker city endured long in patience but when it became aroused it consumed the insolent plunderers with righteous indignation. Which shows again that the corrupt professional politician, however strongly he may have entrenched himself, if taken hold of by public opinion can be shaken to make his teeth rattle. That is what has happened in Philadelphia.

The paving of Mill street, connecting with the Factory street pavement, is a good move and the city is enabled to do its part through the generosity of the manufacturing property there which needs a better roadway. It gives an opportunity, also, to test the merits of the bitulithic pavement, about which there has been so much dispute.

Vice-President Fairbanks is certainly on the way to succession to the presidency. A demerited man tried to shoot at him the other day while addressing a meeting at Flint, Mich.

AMUSEMENTS

Robt-Moore Stock Co. During the management of the Robt-Moore Stock Co. at the City opera house last week the special endeavor of the company will be to please and gratify the patrons and no expense has been spared that will add to the benefit of the public. Among the extra attractions that will be offered to the theatre goers of Watertown are such famous plays as "American Gentleman," and "The Escamote," as presented by Miss Nancy O'Neill during her recent tour of the country.

A Delightful Evening. A musical was given last evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lansing in Main street for the benefit of the Presbyterian church at Newton Falls. It is doubtful if any similar event in this city has ever been so thoroughly enjoyed. While the beautiful rooms were not overcrowded, the programme was a very attractive number of goodly sum, about $130.

The program could not have been more skillfully arranged to please. Twelve songs of childhood, chosen from the works of Robert Louis Stevenson, Lawrence Allen Tidens and others, have been set to music and arranged in a sort of suite by Liza Lebusan, and called "The Daisy Chain." It is even more pleasing than her earlier work, "Peregrin Garden." There are four quartets, two solos each for soprano, contralto, tenor and baritone. The work was given entire last Wednesday with the exception of the last quartet, "Blue Man's Buff." The singers were Mrs. Camp, Miss Lockwood, Messrs. Knowlton and Winslow, and locally the exception of Miss Lockwood, who is from Syracuse.

In the "Daisy Chain" which came first upon the program, Mrs. Camp sang "If No One Ever Marries Me" very sweetly, but the most artistic number of the whole evening was her solo "The Spring" and realistic rendering of "The Spring." Miss Lockwood's beautiful mezzo voice was heard to best advantage in "The Ship That Sailed Into the Sun." She sang it in her usual musically manner and gave it a dramatic force that was very effective. "The Moon" as sung by Mr. Knowlton was greatly enjoyed, as it was very artistically done. Both of Mr. Winslow's solos in the suite were splendidly sung, but the beautiful little song "Maiden and Cross" were such pleasures that it was most enthusiastically re-demanded. All the accompaniments in "Daisy Chain" were very delicately and beautifully played by Mrs. Valentine. The final chorus "Thank You Very Much indeed" was the best of the three songs.

After the suite Mrs. Camp sang Oscar Weil's "Autumn and Spring" a which Jesse C. Ayers played a very lovely and sympathetic violin obligato and George Camp accompanied in his own satisfactory manner. Then Miss Lockwood sang Dr. Arno's old English song "That Lass With the Delicate Air" so delightfully that she was obliged to respond with an encore. Mr. Winslow was accompanied in his next number, "The Bird Song" with a very artistic four hand accompaniment by Mrs. G. S. Knowlton and Mrs. Valentine.

INTERESTING DEMONSTRATION

CROWDS OF LADIES ATTEND THE GAS COOKERY LECTURES

Many Valuable Suggestions for Good Cooking at Smallest Possible Cost and Least Discomfort from Heat—A Seven-Course Dinner Cooked on a Gas Stove for 9 Cents.

The demonstration of the economical use of gas for cooking now being given in the Utia building by the Watertown Gas Co. is attracting much attention and a favorable comment among the ladies of this city, who fill every seat during the sessions. W. J. Daniels, an expert demonstrator of gas cooking appliances, looks after the interest of the Detroit Gas Co. makers of the celebrated "Jewel" stove, and is particularly happy in pointing out the many excellent qualities of these stoves, with their new high oven, which obviates the necessity of stooping to observe the work of the cook and their newly patented lock valve, which prevents all waste of gas. Mr. Daniels can prove that by use of this valve fully one-third of gas is saved.

But of more interest to the ladies than all else are the free lessons and demonstrations in cooking given by Miss J. F. Eversidge of Rochester, a teacher of domestic science. Miss Eversidge has given lessons in dietetic cooking in most of the more prominent hospitals of the country, and is considered one of the best in this line.

Thursday the lesson was on Boston cooking: yesterday on sponge cake and today a tempting strawberry shortcake was made. All ingredients are prepared in full view of the audience, and receipts given with explicit instructions.

Last evening, to demonstrate what can be done with a small amount of gas, the employees of the company with a few invited guests, enjoyed the following list of fare: Little neck clams, oysters on the half shell, fish, northern house steak, fried onions, French fried potatoes, asparagus, white dressing, shrimp salad.

Next week's lesson will be prepared and roasted, steaks broiled, in fact lessons will be given in all branches of the culinary art. The lessons are proving instructive and valuable, and are much appreciated by the ladies. The demonstration continues all next week.
