the plan was easily fulfilled.

Some Negroes did not like the idea. They felt that the proposal would be different in a state of any size and that there is not enough minority group representation in the state legislature. The association's present makeup, according to Robert E. McCord, also failed to criticize the plan. "The Negroes seem to be satisfied with the proposal," he said. "They're happy with the proposal."