[illegible]S. R. FAIRGRIEVE - EDITOR

[illegible] this issue THE TIMES enters upon [illegible]teenth year of its existence under most favorable auspices, encouraged by the support that it has and still is receiving from its patrons and rejoicing in the fact that new names are being added to its subscription list, weekly. Special correspondents in Washington and New York by their letters constantly keep our readers posted with the matters of interest in these two great centres—the one the seat of our government, the other the Metropolis of our country—in a manner that could not be gleaned from general news. A brief summary of the events that have transpired during the week in the country, state and county, together with choice selections of literature and reading matter combine to make THE TIMES one of the best weeklies in the State.

In local matters, we shall relate events as they occur, giving our readers the result of our conclusions in regard to matters of interest to the community, using our best efforts to secure that which may be most advisable for the improvement, enterprise and general weal of our village. From an independent—not neutral—standpoint, we shall watch the transactions of all that interest themselves, officially or otherwise, in affairs that concern the village and with malice to none, shall interpret these transactions as their merits deserve.

THE excitement caused by the recent riot in Chicago has almost abated. Eleven persons dead and a large number wounded is one of the many results of this riot. The Knights of Labor together with the press and public unite in condemning the work of the anarchists and their leaders. The following is a sample of the editorials that appear in the Chicago papers:

"Let it be understood by all the world that the Knights of Labor have no affiliation, association, sympathy or respect for the band of cowardly murderers, cut-throats and robbers, known as Anarchist, who sneak thro' the country like midnight assassins, stirring up the passions of ignorant foreigners, unfurling the red flag of anarchy and causing riot and blood-shed. Parsons, Spies, Fielden, Most and their followers, sympathizers, aiders and abetors, should be summarily dealt with. They are entitled to no more consideration than wild beasts. The leaders are cowards and their followers are fools. Knights of Labor, boycott them. If any of the gang of scoundrels should by any mistake get access to our organization, expel them at once, brand them as outlaws and monsters; do not even permit yourselves to hold conversation with them. Treat them as they deserve to be treated, as human monstrosities, and not entitled to the sympathy or consideration of any person in the world. We are sure we express the sentiment of the entire organization when we say that Parsons, Spies, Fielden, Most and the whole gang of outlaws should be blotted from the surface of the earth."

DR. CALTHROP, the weather prophet of Syracuse, makes another public statement that on the 20th inst. Central New York will be visited by a storm followed by a cold wave.

A COMMENDABLE step has been taken in Philadelphia by the introduction of a bill into the common council providing for the licensing of news boys and bootblacks and also for their education. All under 18 years of age will be compelled to attend schools which are to be provided by the city, at least three hours a day except on Saturdays and Sundays. This looks like the work of some philanthropist and will do great good to a much neglected class, compelling them to accept chances of mental improvement which would otherwise pass by unobserved.

THOUSANDS OF PHYSICIANS all through the United States prescribe Warner's safe cure, in bottles of their own. You pay them from $1.50 to $3.00 a visit: you can buy Warner's safe cure, sixteen ounce bottles, for $1.25. Do not be imposed upon.

What Miss Cleveland Says.

The following from the Cincinnati Enquirer of Saturday is said to be a letter written by Miss Cleveland to a lady in that city:

DEAR MISS WILKINSON: I am in receipt of your favor, and am rather surprised at the tone of your letter. I certainly would not interfere with any matrimonial choice of my brother. I am a very warm friend of Miss Van Vechten, and although I am not so intimate with Miss Folsom, I esteem both as true types of American Womanhood. I am pained to read the gossip in the newspapers about the marriage although I am not prepaired to say that one will take place. It will greatly please me to be relieved from the duties of hostess at the President's house, which I have felt were imposed upon me, and which have greatly interfered with my literary pleasures and pursuits.

Sincerely yours,
ROSE CLEVELAND.

After landing with this result he fell back into the river and it was with the utmost exertion that he was rescued. [illegible] Washington, May [illegible]

While the country is shocked by the news of the bloody strikes in different Western cities, "All is quiet along the Potomac." Washington is indeed a quiet city considering that it is itself the scene of a strike. There are to be seen on the streets knots of men whose bearing and dress stamp them as workmen, and the fact that they are so assembled indicates that they are out of employment. This is the only evidence that they are on a strike. The labor troubles here seem to have developed into a lock-out, and it is already becoming a matter of doubt whether or not the work will be fully resumed this season.

The proceedings of the week in Congress have not been so interesting incharacter as usual, or perhaps I should say that events in Congressional committee rooms have been more interesting than those in the House and Senate. There was a little sensation in the House Judiciary Committee room while the Anti-Polygamy bill was being considered. Judge Baskin who is representing the Gentiles of Utah in advocacy of the bill, is a remarkably impressive old gentlemen. It was through his efforts that the Mountain Meadow massacre of settlers was traced to its perpetrators twenty years after its occurrence, and his experiences in Utah have been varied and thrilling. He read to the committee the affadavit of an English woman who stated she had been converted to Mormonism by her lover, who came to this country and returned to England as a Mormon missionary, finally bringing her back here with him. After entering the Mormon church and marrying according to the Mormon mode, she discovered that her marriage was a polygamous one. Upon this discovery she made revelations and gave descriptions that were revolting in character. At the conclusion of his remarks, the Judge pointed to a handsome young woman, sitting in the room beside Miss Kate Field, and announced that she was the victim to whom he alluded, and that she was ready to undergo cross-examination and verify the statements.

After ten day's discussion the Senate passed the Post Office Appropriation bill, together with the amendmends appropriating $800,000 for subsidies to American vessels for carrying the mails. Senator Plumb, of Kansas, referring to the opposition of the Southern Senators to the subsidy amendment, took occasion to remark that the South was behind the times. It responded, he said, to the wishes and principles inculcated by Calhoun, enforced by Taucey and represented to-day by Jefferson Davis.

Senator Morgan of Alabama here interposed to comment upon the unfairness of this class of argument. He complained that it was made at so late a stage in the debate that the Southern men could have no opportunity to reply to it. As for himself, every name men tioned by the Senator from Kansas was consecrated in his memory as the name of an honorable and great man. He hoped the state of Kansas might sometime produce such a character as Mr. Calhoun or Mr. Taucey or Mr. Davis. Mr. Plumb answered that the South was to-day taking up the song where it left off in 1861, and he criticised the course of Senators who would ask for millions to improve the Mississippi for commerce but were not willing to vote anything to develope commerce from the mouth of the Mississippi to other lands.

Certain society circles have been much interested in an event which has just taken place in connection with the family of Colonel Jerome Bonaparte, who lives in this city, and who is a great nephew, you may remember of the 1st Napoleon. On Wednesday Col. Bonaparte's step-daughter, Miss Edgar, aged 20, who took the white veil a year ago, took the black veil and the perpetual vows of a nun—poverty, chastity, and obedience. She will be known in her religion, as Sister Mary de Sales. The young girl's action was a surprise to many. Not only was she much admired in fashionable circles, but her surroundings have always been most attractive, and her home on "K" Street is one of the handsomest in the city. She never had any fondness for society, however, and since she left school has been disposed to be a recluse in her elegant abode.

Utica Cheese Market.

Utica, May 10.

The market to-day was a repetition of last week, with the exception that the few guarantees offered were about 1c. lower. Most of the factories that were offered a guarantee of 9c. last week and refused it, were obliged to accept 8⅛@8¾c. if their goods were sold at all. The guarantee today was in most cases 7¾c., and in a few 8c., but as a rule the cheese went forward strictly on commission. We have never known two such market days as these. Telegrams came from New York saying that the market would probably be 8⅛ @8¾c. this week, but no buyer would make an out and out offer. The fact that there is no foreign demand renders buyers more cautious than ever before. They have always lost money in buying fodder cheese, and this year they have concluded to take the cheese on commission and let the factorymen get what they can out of the sales. In this way they claim that they (the buyers) will be in better shape to tackle grass cheese when that comes along. Transactions to-day comprise 2,550 boxes all consigned. This compares with 3,822 boxes one year ago, only 425 of which were consigned, the rest selling at 9@9¼@9½c. It is very possible that all the fodder cheese will go on consignment and no stock be bought outright until hay cheese is offered for sale.

Little Falls Cheese Market.

Little Falls, May 10.

The cheese market to-day has been dull and uninteresting, especially for buyers who were attempting to secure goods for the New York market. It is claimed that the prices paid by the home trade are higher than New York parties are authorized to offer. The result is that very little cheese is sold to the New York trade. The amount of business done to-day exceeds by nearly 1,000 boxes, the business of one week ago, but the prices are considerably lower, the bulk going out to-day at 8¼ cents, against 9¼ cents a week ago. The transactions were as follows: Three lots, of 506 boxes, at 6¾ to 8 cents; 13 lots, 494 boxes, at 8¾ cents; seven lots, 304 boxes, at 7¾ cents; six lots, 279 boxes, at 9 cents; 10 lots, 383 boxes, on commission; 200 boxes farm dairy sold at 4¼ to 8¼ cents, bulk at 8¾ cents.

Butter—Twenty-four packages of creamery butter sold at 21 to 23 cents; bulk at 21c; and 57 packages of farm dairy at 18 to 21 cents, bulk at 19 cents.

Pardee Medicine Co.

GENTLEMEN:—I cannot let the opportunity pass without testifying to my appreciation of your valuable medicine. As is well known to all this community, I was for years a great sufferer from inflammatory Rheumatism, at times being confined to the house for several weeks, and totally incabable of helping myself.

I have received attendance of several of our best physicians and have tried everything in the shape of Rheumatic medicine that was recommended, or that I could hear of, without benefit.

It was during one of these attacks that I was induced to try Dr. PARDEE'S RHEUMATIC REMEEY, and before I had finished the second bottle I was so much improved, that I felt no pain whatever. I continued its use and now I am as well as ever.

I take great pleasure in recommending it to all rheumatic sufferers, as I beit to be the very best article of the kind in this, or any other country.

I am gentlemen, your most respectfuly,

The Howe Ventilating Stove warms the room and keeps the air pure. It Ventilates the room at the same time that it heats it. Cold, fresh air is taken into the Stove through a pipe from the outside of the house. Fresh air passes into the Stove, is heated and passes into the room through the open top, while the foul, impure air being heavier than fresh, pure heated air drops dead to the floor, is forced into a flue in the Stove and is drawn through a small pipe in the smoke pipe into the chimney and escapes with the smoke.
