

ELECTRICITY HELPS SIGNS

OF THE TIMES

of old were dumb—now they talk, if they are the right kind, Electric Signs

As good as any by day, and the only ones that work at night. Does your sign work 24 hours a day? It does if it is electric.

Electric signs talk to the public and must be seen and heard. The show that you are alive and up-to-date, which attracts business to your place. "Dead ones" are out of date. Don't be a "dead one"—put out a talking sign NOW.

Sixty-eight patrons of the milk route covered for the Nestle's by Charles Foster for the past five years, tendered Mr. Foster a surprise visit last week and presented him with a silk umbrella in recognition of his satisfactory service. Mr. Foster retires from the route on April 1.

State Commissioner of Excise Clement reports that he has received $746.68 in payment of a judgment recovered in an action brought by him against Harrison Wells and the surety on his liquor tax bond. Wells trafficked in liquors at No. 583 South First street, and violated the Liquor Tax Law by selling liquor to minors.

Oswego finds itself in a peculiar predicament. Having invited the State Fireman's convention to meet within its gates, and having had the invitation accepted, it now hesitates and calls a public meeting to decide whether or not the windy city shall carry out the terms of the invitation. Evidently our neighboring city prefers to speed the coming guest rather than to welcome it.

Mrs. J. O'Brien, No. 414 Cayuga street has received a letter from Mrs. Martin, who with her family left for California a few weeks since. Mrs. Martin writes that the trip was pleasant and interesting, a not uninteresting feature being the fact that the train left the track between San Bernardino and Orange, Calif., without injuring anyone. The accident happened in an immense orange grove in full fruit and the owner gave the passengers all the oranges fresh from his trees, that they cared to take with them. Mrs. Martin and family are well and happy.

The Philathea Intermediate class of the Baptist church were very pleasantly entertained at the home of their teacher, Mrs. William Sylvester, last Wednesday evening, and the following officers were chosen for the year: President, Mrs. G. Clute; vice-president, M. Aubra Nichols; secretary and treasurer, Carla M. Fiske, assistant secretary and treasurer, Leila Knapp.

Mrs. Nettie Stoutenger, 23 years old, was taken to the county home by Commissioner of Charities A. W. Stoneburgh. She and her 5-year-old son were left destitute by her husband, Leonard Stoutenger, who disappeared about three weeks ago. Almost immediately upon the disappearance of her husband, application for assistance was made to the Department of Charities and the commissioner found a home for the boy with Mr. and Mrs. Charles House of No. 411 Utica street.

When the employes in the yarn department of the woolen mill reached the plant on Monday morning they were informed that an order had been received late on Saturday compelling the closing of the department until April 15. This action throws about 600 hands out. The mill has been running slack time for several months and this is the culmination of the trouble. As the Times understands it, the late financial stringency has nothing to do with the shut down, but the fact that union tailors refuse to cut cloth made in any of the mills in the combine, is responsible. This would seem a reasonable belief, inasmuch as the independent mills throughout the country are employed full time, so far as it is possible to ascertain. It is devoutly to be hoped that the difficulty, whatever it may be, will be speedily adjusted.
