EDITORIAL COMMENT.

The Message—Don't get scared, boys; I didn't mean it.

General Villa is one of the most talented financiers since the days of Captain Kidd.

It is predicted that the new anti-trust bills will be in shape by March 1. That will do for a starter.

Paris says new gowns will be more decollete. Well, that's better than taking any more off the other end.

President Huerta of Mexico keeps up pretty good courage and proposes to fight it out if it takes all summer.

Scientists claim that thinking aids digestion. As no ailment is more prevalent than indigestion, the inference is obvious.

Since Mr. Bryan is not a howling success as secretary of state, and he can't live on his salary, why doesn't he resign?

The Pennsylvania Railroad did not kill a passenger in 1913, which must make the New Haven smile with cynical superiority.

President Wilson is having some trouble with his Congress, but he will bring the recalcitrant members to time when he wants them.

The women of Chicago propose to have something to say about future elections in that city, judging from the 150,000 already registered.

President Wilson is opposed to the literary test for immigrants. But there will be a big fight in Congress for some sort of an educational qualification.

Commissioner Carlisle is right in demanding that the Highway Department be placed beyond the reach of politicians, and put on the merit system.

And now former Tammany boss, Richard Croker, residing in Ireland, has turned against Murphy. Perhaps Murphy can get back at Croker by asking, "Where did you get it?"

The United States Senate has passed a bill providing an emergency fund of $500,000, with which to fight hog cholera. It is said that ninety per cent of the hog deaths come from cholera.

If "General" Coxey really expects to lead an army of 500,000 unemployed men to Washington by May 1, he should soon open his recruiting stations. But presumably he merely made a noise like a man talking.

California does not object to Japan spending $600,000 for exhibit at the San Francisco fair. The State don't want the Japs to own any real estate, but all the money coming from the yellow fellows will be welcomed.

The World is moving in the way of temperance. A Pennsylvania company has made a ten per cent increase in wages to those employes who abstain from liquor. And Henry Ford will not permit any of his employes who use liquor to participate in his big division of profits.

Radium did not cure the cancer of Congressman Bremer of New Jersey. It did not destroy the cancer cells. The trial of radium in his case cost $6,000, but he had faith to the last that he would be cured. Mr. Bremer's disease was far advanced when radium was tried and no medical science could cure him.

Francis W. Bird, New York city county chairman of the Progressives, says any notion that Col. Roosevelt will be a candidate for governor of this State on the Republican ticket is utter folly. Possibly Mr. Bird does not know. The Colonel has been known to change his mind.

Judges have commenced sentencing reckless and drunken automobile drivers to prison. Fines do not act as any deterrent, and imprisonment will be the only thing that will bring the reckless individuals to their senses. Running over and killing people and then without stopping, put on more speed to escape is the limit of brutality.

After Congress has passed laws driving some hundreds of girls from the red light district in Washington, what will be done with them. Probably the unfortunates will be scattered over the city in apartment houses and other parts of the city. They will not leave Washington. The Congressmen should raise a fund sufficiently large to provide for them in some respectable calling if it is possible.

The New York Post makes this important statement about lifting the embargo on arms going into Mexico: "There is also the well grounded fear lest, if armed intervention is at last forced upon us, the very weapons we are furnishing to the Mexicans may be turned against our own troops." It is generally admitted that in case of intervention by the United States, the whole Mexican population, federals, revolutionists, bandits and Indians would unite to fight our troops.

Rev. Charles L. Quinn, pastor of the reformed Episcopal church of Greenport, N. Y., has been forced to resign because in conversation with one of his parishioners who was opposed to dancing, he said to him "As far as I could see there are things a damned sight worse than dancing." He said it was not swearing, as he used it in the dictionary sense of condemned, detestable, therefore he did not use damn as a swear word. But the members of his church would not let up on him so he had to go. Moral: Be careful what you say if you are a preacher.

Boss Murphy of Tammany Hall denies that he proposes to retire from the control of Tammany, and says "I shall stay here as long as I live." But he will be shorn of his great power if he has no patronage to deal out to his henchmen. The time has gone by when candidates for Supreme Court judges had to pay all the way from $10,000 to $25,000 to the Tammany leaders to be nominated and elected. The organization was effectually cleaned out at last fall's election, but only constant unanimity of all other parties will continue to keep Tammany down.

Wilson's Free Trade policies have thrown men enough out of jobs to form a ring of men forty yards apart from man to man around the world.

It has become so fashionable to modernize something that it is a wonder that these "modernizers" of the Bible didn't have Balaam ride on a motorcycle instead of an ass.

The earthquake shock felt in this section Tuesday, extended throughout the State, the New England States and was most severely felt in Canada, where some damage was done. The shocks in New York city were slight.

Democrats who have succeeded in getting their feet in the pie trough since Wilson came into power report that times are splendid. Others declare that there is sand in the prosperity sugar.

Senator Root takes the ground that to exempt our own coastwise vessels from Panama Canal tolls would violate our treaty with Great Britain, which says "The Canal shall be free to vessels of commerce and of war of all nations on terms of entire equality.

Woodrow spoke a parable when he declared "Nothing hampers business like uncertainty." Nobody on earth ever knows just what the Democratic party is going to do or what effect its laws are going to have. No wonder then that business halts every time Democracy gets hold of the ropes. Sure, Mike, nothing hampers like the hamper basket of Democracy.

Mr. Beardsley swears before the investigating committee that he paid the $25,000 contribution of the late Antony N. Brady, for the Sulzer campaign to Charles Murphy, Tammany Hall boss, at the request of Mr. Sulzer. The money was in $1,000 bills. From all accounts the late Governor Sulzer must have had a big sum of money contributed for his election. But the query now is what did Murphy do with the money.

Modern times are developing so many independent thinkers in religion, in politics, in science and on every subject, that all things in the world seem to be chaos. Some preachers of various denominations do not believe in the divinity of Jesus. Others have doubts about the authenticity of Genesis and think most of the old patriarchs, were a bad lot, that the account of the flood and the saving of old Noah and his sons are legends and that the miracles never happened. One thing is certain, and cannot be denied, and that is, if the precepts in the Bible were followed the world would be much better off than at present. All the critics in the universe cannot undo the good influence of the Bible.

The Berkshire Eagle says that a Pennsylvania concern has just closed an order with a New York sales agency for 5,000 automobiles which will be sold to the public at $695 each. Just what the quality of these car will be is a question, and it also is a question whether the Ford supremacy in cheap cars is not being threatened by the policy of the Ford company in sharing its abnormal profits with its employes instead of giving them to the public. The Ford concern is now pledged to pay almost twice as much for labor as its competitors, and why is it not possible for the latter to take advantage of the situation and put a car on the market as good as the Ford for a smaller price? There is no question about the attitude of the public in this matter. The public will buy the car that costs the least money, giving Mr. Ford's altruistic policy scarcely any consideration. It is money that talks in this connection as well as in anything else.

All of One Party.

There is one Republican on the Metropolitan Public Service Commission. His term expired February 1. He will not be reappointed.

When Governor Hughes appointed these two commissions he chose men of both parties. Under him there was never to exceed three from one party on either commission.

Governor Dix and Governor Sulzer chose only Democrats for the commission. If Governor Glynn follows the same rule with the vacancies which now call for his attention both commissions will be solidly Democratic.

When the Public Service Commission law was enacted there was no expectation that the commissions would ever become partisan bodies.—Syracuse Standard.

Tagging the Demon Rum.

The New York Sun says: Much of the alleged whiskey that is sold over bars in this State is rank poison and ought to be so labelled if a way to stop its sale cannot be devised. The gentle art of coloring wood alcohol in imitation of hot and fiery beverages has reached a high stage of development hereabout, and if the Anti-Saloon League's bill providing for a skull and crossbones on each container should effect a lessening in the traffic it would do some good.

But who believes that any thirsty body would be dissuaded by the poison warning from introducing the stuff into his system? Men drink perfumes, hair tonics, and a thousand other liquids not intended as beverages in full knowledge of their poisonous qualities. The patrons of a barrel house are not sticklers for pure food labels on the kegs they empty. The customers of more expensive drinking places generally do not need to be told that alcohol is a "habit forming, irritant, narcotic poison." Common experience and their own observation have informed them pretty fully as to its properties and effects. They daily with it in reckless disregard of their own knowledge, either, without thought of its probable consequences, or else in confidence that they can draw the line of indulgence inside the margin of safety.

Compelling the Demon to wear a uniform will not frighten his victims. His is not a hidden or secret menace. Everybody knows how dangerous he is. Can any man who knows that tomorrow will bring him a head like a bushel basket be expected to shy from a bottle because it bears a poison label?

PROPOSED NEW PORK BARREL.

House Takes up Shackleford Bill Appropriating $25,000,000 for Good Roads.

Washington, Feb. 11.—With more than 100 members listed for speeches, the House tonight held its first of a series of three night sessions to debate the Shackleford good roads bill. Mr. Shackleford (Dem., Mo.) opening the discussion with an address, outlining the project. He explained that the bill proposed a maximum of $25,000,000 of appropriations by the national government, allotments to be conditioned upon equal appropriations, expenditures to be on a graded scale, ranging in three classes from $15 a mile for dirt roads, to $60 a mile for macadam roads.

Abraham Lincoln.

One hundred and five years ago today Abraham Lincoln was born in a log cabin in Hardin county, Kentucky. There was no pride of ancestry in his family. His parents were but pioneers in the wilderness. His mother was a woman of practical good sense and taught him to read and write. There were no common schools where he was born but he was a boy eager to learn and he borrowed some books such as Bunyan's Pilgrim Progress, a Life of Washington, and the Bible, and read them over and over until he was familiar with them all. His memory was very retentive and he could repeat whole chapters of the Bible almost literally. He was athletic from his youth to manhood. He stood six feet four inches high, and could out run, out wrestle, out jump any young men in the neighborhood. He could split more rails, and strike a harder blow with the woodman's ax than any of his associates. He spent his evenings in study, reading his books by the log fire in the big fire place.

He read law and was admitted to practice. When a young man he took a great interest in politics, and joined the whig party. He was elected to the State legislature in 1833 and re-elected, and during this period he moved to Springfield, Illinois, where he practiced law. In 1846 he was elected to Congress and served one term. The attempted repeal of the Missouri Compromise roused him to action and from that time on he was a strong and courageous opponent of the spread of slavery in the territories. He obtained a national reputation by his celebrated debate with Stephen A. Douglass, who was the big Democratic statesman of Illinois. Lincoln argued for freedom against the extension of slavery and to hear these great orators there assembled at some of the meetings as many as ten and fifteen thousand men. These debates when Lincoln argued so successfully that the government could exclude slavery from the territories, gave him a national reputation. In February, 1860, he was invited to New York to speak, and his great speech in Cooper Institute, where William Cullen Bryant presided made him famous, and prepared the way for his nomination by the Republicans for President at the National Convention in Chicago in the summer of 1860. He was elected President and the southern States refused to acknowledge him as their President and commenced to prepare for war with the government.

Lincoln's appeal to the south was for peace. He said in his inaugural, "In your hands, not mine are the momentous issues of civil war. You can have no conflict without being the aggressors. We are not enemies, but friends. We must not be enemies. Though passion may strain, it must not break the bonds of affection." But his appeal did no good. The rebels fired on Fort Sumpter and the war commenced, with four years of suffering, and sacrifices, with the loss of hundreds of thousands of noble lives and billions of money. But the great President was not permitted to live long after the immense army led by General Grant conquered Lee at Appomatox. He was assassinated by John Wilkes Booth in a Washington Theatre on April 15, 1865, and the whole country was in mourning for the martyr President.

By universal consent the name of Abraham Lincoln will go down through all time with that of Washington, the two names standing as the grandest figures in our history. Washington freed the thirteen colonies from the tyranny of Great Britain, and Lincoln freed four millions of slaves, primarily as a war measure, but for the everlasting benefit of humanity. And on each birthday of Abraham Lincoln, his name seems to grow brighter and shines with increasing luster. All the world honors his memory and reveres his great name. "A name that shall live throughout all coming time, unbounded by country, by language, or clime."

John Ruskin's Creed.

John Ruskin condemned activities which are linked to cruelty. Cruel sport he held in the utmost detestation. Deep into his heart had sunk the noble moral which Wordsworth appended to his ballad of "Hartleap Well":

"One lesson, shepherd, let us two divide:
Never to blend our pleasure or our pride
With sorrow of the meanest thing that feels."

And Mr. Ruskin wrote in no doubtful terms concerning the cruel pleasures of English gentlemen. He held that they are absolutely shut out and ought to hold themselves shut out, from activities, whether for health or enjoyment, which necessitate the hunting, the coursing, the shooting of innocent bird or beast. A day on the moors shooting the beautiful birds of the air; a day on the coursing field, letting loose strong-limbed dogs on the feeble hare; worse still, a day in the pigeon cover, shooting down the helpless, defenseless captives there,—are days in his esteem, ill-spent, horrible to think of, and as degrading to the persons who so spend them as they are deathful to the poor creatures in whose sufferings their pleasures are sought.

And Still Another.

A new breakfast food, the invention of a Watertown man, is soon to appear on the market. George H. Mowe, a well known business man of that city, is the inventor and has just received from Washington a patent covering his family for some time. He plans been working on the new product for several years and has used it in his own family for some time. He plans to start within a short time the manufacture of this new product on an extensive scale. The new product is to be known as "Dad's Breakfast Food." It contains only corn and wheat and the secret of the product is in the preparation of the wheat bran.

Prof. H. F. Landon attended the second annual banquet of the St. Lawrence University Alumni Association of Northern New York at Watertown Friday night. Mr. Landon is a graduate of St. Lawrence and was one of the speakers at this banquet. While in college, Mr. Landon led the debating team and edited both the Laurentian, the college magazine and the Hill News, the college weekly. The Watertown Times of February 7th said: "President Gunnison, the guest of honor, paid a high tribute to Mr. Landon, saying that no student of St. Lawrence had ever done more to create valuable institutions for the university, and uphold its high moral standard than Mr. Landon."

A very largely attended and interesting meeting of Turin Grange was held Saturday. One application for membership by demit was received and two candidates were accepted by ballot. The lecturer presented the following programme: Vocal solo, "Love a little Girl Means You," Florence Allen. These questions were discussed: "Which is the most profitable, a cow that freshens the 1st of October, or one that freshens April 1st? Decided in favor of the October cow. "Which is the greatest nuisance, a man working in the house or a woman out of doors?" Answer both, "How many eggs ought a hen to produce in a year under normal conditions?" 112 was the largest number given by any member present. Short readings were given by Mr. and Mrs. Emerson Payne, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hoffman, Mrs. Alice Dewey, Arthur R. Miller, Karl Reibennacht, Harold Millard, Mrs. Albert Kidder, Mabel Meiss, Mrs. Willard Higby, Cornelia Holmes, Mrs. Charles Evans, Mrs. Wellington Kentner, Mrs. Hawley Kentner, Mrs. Amelia Allen, Mrs. Edward Millard, Mrs. E. E. Ragan, Alice Payne, Lauinia Wakefield, Lamoine Phillips, Mrs. Arthur Swackhamer, Herbert Higby, Mrs. Albert Williston, Frank Higby. A large number of very pleasing conundrums were read and guessed. The next meeting will be held Saturday, February 21st. Dinner will be served at 12 m. sharp and will be in charge of the male members of the order. Any male member who will contribute something toward the programme being arranged are requested to communicate with the master or secretary of the Grange. A question to be discussed at this meeting is: "What do you consider to be the most eloquent expression spoken or written by any person, and why?"

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.
