SHORT AND SNAPPY

A cub reporter on a certain small-town southern newspaper was sternly reproved by his editor for being verbose in preparing his stories. A little later he was dispatched to write up the death of a well-known local merchant who had suddenly expired.

Looking over the young man's shoulder an hour later, as he prepared his story, the editor read: "Howard Jones, prominent merchant of this city, was walking along the street this morning, when he suddenly clasped his hands to his heart and said, 'I'm going to die!' Then he leaned up against a fence and made good."

Add Shelf Units With One for the Corner

IF YOU want shelves on one side of the room only, one or more of the B units shown here with an A unit at each end is a smart combination. If you wish to run the shelves around two sides of the room, a corner unit, shown at C, will also be needed.

USE WITH OTHER UNITS OR USE AS A STAND FOR LAMP AND BOOKS

All of the units in the sketch are well proportioned with deep shelves and are especially designed to be made by the man who is handy with hammer and saw. Patterns are available with actual-size cutting guides for the curved shelves. Stock widths of lumber are used and the pattern lists all materials needed. Only the simplest hand tools are required.

The A and B units are made with pattern 270; the C unit for the corner with pattern 271. Patterns are 15 cents each or 25 cents for both patterns mailed to one address. Send requests for patterns direct to:

He Rang the Bell

Statesman Daniel Webster was a skilled orator and knew how to cope with unexpected situations. While addressing congress one afternoon, he noticed that it was exactly three o'clock by the large wall timepiece. Webster paused so that the clock's strikes would not interrupt his speech. But the unpredictable timepiece banged out more than a dozen times instead of the expected three. "Mr. President," Webster jestingly complained, "the clock is out of order. I have the floor."

Wrong Route

A lady got on a bus and took the only empty seat, next to a harmless looking stew. Soon she opened a map of Manchuria and began to study it. The drunk gazed at the map for a while and finally addressed the lady in an interested tone: "Sure you're on the right bus?" he asked.

DOUBLE TALK

Help!

Housewife--And how do you like the electric stove?
New Maid--It's real wonderful, ma'am. It hain't been out since I came here two weeks ago.

Tit for Tat

He--Say, how about a date?
She--I should say not!
He--I don't mean now. Just some dreary, wet afternoon when there's nobody else in town.

It's an Idea

Housewife--Are you really content to spend your life walking around the country?
Tramp--No, ma'am, I wish I had a car.

All Wound Up

Jack--Why is April better than November for a watch to keep time?
Mac--Because a spring is better than a fall.

Tailor Made

Mae--Aren't some of the women's hats really absurd.
Kay--Yes, but when some people put them on they do seem so appropriate.

Swing Shift

Mrs.--Hey, come back! You're walking in your sleep. Where do you think you're going?
Mr.--I suppose I was going to the office.

BIRD TALK

Joe--I spent $20 on a canary last week.
Bill--That's nothing. I spent 50 on a lark.

Four FFFF

Board--When were you born?
Draftee--(No answer).
Board--Look, when was your birthday?
Draftee--What do you care? You aren't going to give me anything.

Sounds Fishy

Joe--You say your brother has a job as a barpooner for the park department. Just what kind of work is that?
Bill--Well, he jabs up all the pieces of paper around the park.
