

Mexi-Go - Round

Had a nice clipping from Thelma Dailor. Back awhile we had a little "buzz session" (short one, by golly!) in the Post Office. Well, she said the article pointed out that Going Steady Is Not Hep but that "Going Steadily" goes steadily on with teenagers. The article, received by the kindness of Mrs. Dailor, goes on to say "Going Steady" means you confine your dating for the movies, the junior prom, and sodas at the local drug store to one boy -- or girl. All other competition is ruled out as long as the young couple agrees on the steady plan. Going Steadily though, means dating frequently -- two, three or four times a week, with two, three or four different fellows -- or girls. This currently is "in" with the younger set. The writer Gay Pauley got this information while attending America's Junior Miss Pageant in Mobile Ala, where she was a member of a five judge panel was interviewed separately, the 51 finalists, all high school seniors. -- (Many thanks, Thelma.)

Other patterns of teenage thinking and planning shaped up from the 51 who represented every state and the District of Columbia. If interested in hearing more, let me know; but this stands out, 'today's young girl is active in church and community life; usually is a volunteer with a hospital or with some service organization; at 17 or 18, her career plans center around service to others -- teaching, social welfare, nursing and medicine, physical or speech therapy.'
