Glenda Mattonen Has Featured Role In Syracuse Little Theatre Production

KRISTINE ENGREN (l) AND GLENDA MATTONEN IN A SCENE FROM "NIGHT OF THE IGUANA"

Miss Glenda Mattonen of Clifford, N.Y., plays a featured role in "The Night of the Iguana", scheduled for April 21 and 22 at the University Regent Theatre in Syracuse.

One of Tennessee Williams' most famous plays, "Iguana" is being produced by Syracuse Little Theatre and will mark its tenth year of continuous major productions.

Miss Mattonen is now living in Syracuse while she works for the General Electric Co. and attends Onondaga Community College in the evening. Her mother, Mrs. Cecile Mattonen, lives on R.D. #2, Fulton. Glenda plays Miss Fellows, a straight-laced, man-hating school teacher, in charge of a busload of college girls taking a Mexican tour. Ric Murphy, the play's director, stars as the neurotic ex-minister, Shannon.

Her current role marks Glenda's first appearance with community theatre. At Mexico Academy High School, from which she was graduated in 1958, she appeared in several plays, doing character roles which included Mrs. Chauvenat in "Harvey."

At the end of the summer she will finish her third year at O.C.C. and will receive an Associate of Arts Degree. A psychology major, she then plans to transfer to University College of Syracuse U. to complete her four year degree. At G.E., she is secretary to R. L. Reed, Nike-X Program, Heavy Military Electronics Department.

Tickets for "Night of the Iguana" can be reserved through the University Regent Box office. Ticket prices are $2.50, $2.00 and $1.50, but discounts are available for groups of 15 or more. Persons interested in group tickets for a theatre party should contact Mrs. Joseph Lotito, 120 Scottholm Ter., Syracuse, N.Y. 446-6798.
