ALASKA GOLD SEEKERS.

Madness Seizes Them When the Hardships Grow Too Intense. Here is a typical illustration of the extreme hardships of the life in Alaska: Middleton was a young Frenchman, slight and small and accustomed to all the refinements of civilized life.

THE SPORTING WORLD.

Automobile races are attracting great attention in Europe, and especially in France. On June 11 the first contest for the international cup presented by James Gordon Bennett will be held.

WATSON AND HIS AUTOMOBILE. Some of them in nearing Dijon are formidable enough to "make any motor car".

The three composing the team which will defend the colors of France are Charbon, De Kayff and Girardot, each of whom has a record for absolute speed.

Great Bowling Tournament. The Champion of Champions bowling tournament will be held at the International tournament at Schuetzen park, Union Hill, N. J., during the week of July 15-22.

Stiff Corsets are unknown in France. French corsets are always supple and bendable, and this much accounts for the ease of French figures, which are never tightened excepting at the waist.

Women and Weather. "A good part of New England and perhaps elsewhere, when some common English seems to have led all to conclude to go shopping or visiting, it is customary for old people to say: 'Well, well, I guess it will rain tomorrow.'"

FEATURES OF FUTURE WARS.

Remarkable Predictions of a Frenchman Now Being Fulfilled. It is pointed out by R. E. C. Long that M. Block, in his work on future wars, which is said to have influenced the war when he decided to call together The Hague congress, predicted what would happen if two white races opposed each other.

That the war of the future would be a war of sieges and entrenched positions. That to carry out frontal attacks would be impossible without immense losses and great superiority in numbers.

That with equality in numbers modern war would last longer than past wars. That decisive victories would be rare, the beaten side immediately taking up fresh positions in the rear which would be prepared in advance.

That the artillery would be put out of action by sharpshooting riflemen, who would kill off horses and men. That adequate reconnaissance would be almost impossible and that an enemy's position would only be revealed by the volleys from their trenches.

That even then, owing to the use of smokeless powder, it would be impossible to locate them. That attempts to surprise an enemy would often result in counter surprise.

That the loss in officers would be abnormally large. That ambulance work, owing to the greater use of modern weapons, would have to be carried on under fire with the result of mutual accusations of abusing the Red Cross flag.

GOOD COOKERY.

NEARBY COOKERY. THE HALF-GROWN CHILD AT TABLE-HOT DINNER. By Christina Terhune Herrick. (Continued from last week.)

Most sensible parents observe a certain supervision over the meals of their little children. Such watchfulness is usually strict while the baby is toothless or teething, more indulgent when he becomes able to walk and talk, and is too often, entirely relaxed by the time the boy is two years old.

While the mistake of permitting a child complete freedom in the choice of his food may be less likely to have dangerous results when the subject has reached his ninth or tenth year, it is none the less a serious blunder. Up to that time he is in a degree guarded and guided. So long as imprudence in eating is liable to be followed by sudden and swift retribution in the shape of a sharp attack of indigestion, the mother will probably exercise a restraint over her child's food.

CREAM OF CHICKEN (NEW). Select a good fat fowl or chicken (a few fives more favor than a chicken), skin it and cut it up in a stewpan with a bunch of parsley; add enough good stock broth to cover and let it stew until the meat is cooked—and will come off the bones readily; if the broth has boiled low, add hot water and take out the fowl; take out the inside of a small loaf of stale bread and let it soak; take out the meat of the fowl and put it in a mortar; add the yolk of three hard-boiled eggs and pound to a pulp, putting in at the last the soaked bread crumbs.

CAULIFLOWER WITH FINE HERBS. Take a fine cauliflower, wash and cut it into slices of equal thickness and immerse in water for an hour and fry them in butter in an iron frying pan until a dark brown. When done remove the liver from the pan, add a little more butter and some chopped parsley, mushrooms and onions and fry the herbs until done; add a little flour, moisten with rich broth, or stock, if you have it, if not with warm water, and when a sauce of the right consistency is formed, put in the liver, warm oil, but do not let boil, season with salt, pepper and a little lemon juice, and serve very hot. This makes a nice entrée of a good breakfast dish.

STUFFED TURNIPS. Select one quart of medium sized turnips, peel and boil them in salted water until they are tender; drain, cut a slice from the top of each, scoop out half the middle with a teaspoon, mash the portion taken out with salt, pepper, butter and the yolk of an egg, add the turnip pulp, mix well, fill the holes with the mixture, put over with steam white of an egg; set them in a baking dish and brown in a hot oven. Serve hot.

CABBAGE, SOUTHERN STYLE. Slice one medium-sized cabbage, cutting out the heart; put it in a saucepan with boiling water to cover and boil fifteen minutes; drain well and add a dressing made of the following: Put in a small bowl one tablespoonful of vinegar, one of mustard, two tablespoonfuls of salad oil, salt and pepper to taste; when this is boiling hot add one teaspoonful of cream and one egg beaten together light; pour over the cabbage immediately; mix well and serve hot.

VEAL SCALLOP. Put a layer of chopped veal in a buttered dish, season well with salt, pepper and pieces of butter; straw over a layer of finely powdered macaroni, crumbled, moisten with milk, add another layer of veal, and so on until the dish is full; when full, pour over diluted veal gravy; cover the dish with a plate of cover and bake, removing the cover just before the veal is done, to allow the top to brown.

EGGS, NEWPORT STYLE. Boak one pint of bread crumbe in one pint of milk; beat eight eggs very light and mix with the bread crumbs. Have ready a saucepan in which you have melted two tablespoonfuls of butter, and pour in the egg mixture, season at the eggs are scrambled with salt and pepper. This dish should be cooked as quickly as possible without burning; serve on a hot platter with buttered toast.

SPICED APPLES. Pare and quarter eight pounds of apples; in porcelain lined kettle boil to gather one quart of vinegar, four pounds of sugar, an ounce of cinnamon and one-half ounce of cloves; put in the apples after the mixture has boiled a few minutes and cook until tender; remove the apples to a jar; boil down the syrup until thick and pour over the apples.

STEWED CALF'S LIVER. Cut into thin slices half a pound of calf's liver and the same quantity of fat bacon; lay the bacon in a layer at the bottom of a baking dish; then add the liver in a layer; season with salt and pepper; add one good-sized onion and one apple, both cut up; cover the dish and after the mixture has boiled a few minutes, add a little water and cook until tender; remove the apples to a jar; boil down the syrup until thick and pour over the apples.
