Dream of Mustard Used in Place of Plasters or Liniments and Does Not Blister

Thousands are taking advantage of the generous offer made by the Cream of Mustard Company of South Norwalk, Conn., by sending for a jar of Cream of Mustard, which is the most powerful external preparation compounded. It is far superior to mustard plasters, turpentine, iodine or any liniment on the market. It relieves congestion, inflammation and pain almost instantly. It takes the place of plasters or liniments for colds, pains and aches.

"THE MIKADO"

The Mikado and Sullivan comic operas. It has been presented many times in this city, but it is safe to say that it has never appeared to better advantage than it will this summer as it is the favorite of all comic operas. Staged and directed by J. N. Murray, with a splendid cast of participants from leading musical comedy organizations, with a beautiful chorus and its own orchestra and with its wonderful costume effects, it will provide one of the noteworthy entertainments of the season. The fourth night of the Red path Chautauque.

PARIS "ALL RIGHT"
Hogday Is Delighted with Capital and Its Citizens.

H. C. Witter in Collier's Weekly. I know you are crazy to hear what I thought about Paris it being the first time I ever seen it. Will Joe all I can say is that Paris reminds me of Philadelphia with a bun on the streets is all crazy "no" and the main one is the Rue de la Paix. It's a whole lot like Broadway would be without the electric lights, theaters, hotels and cabarets. Every other place is a restaurant and the ones in between is cafes.

The people here are so stuck on their home town that they won't even go in doors to eat, but sit right out on the pavement, little tables for all their meals, so they can keep right on looking at dear Paris all the time, not to say the dames which parade in and down.

The girls in Paris are all knock-out, and none of them is too stuck up to give a guy a pleasant smile and pass the time of day. I must say that anybody which gets a lone come here, ain't got no one but himself to blame. Joe! The men is all in uniform and great little guys. I think us doughboys is makin' with the French better than they are. I'm a stranger here myself. I heard of it in a newspaper here myself. Am I right Joe?

I heard a lot of talk about Paris being up against it on account of the food, the people all downhearted, and food being so scarce, callin a tactic, stops on the way to buy, and a guy who disdains and delivers you personally, right outside the door, the white beggin' your pardon for not getting, you there sooner? Can you imagine any thing like that in New York? You go to a guy on Broadway and ask him how to get somewhere, and what does he do? He says, "I never heard tell of it. I'm a stranger here myself." Am I right Joe?

MAKES DIAMONDS FROM IRON.
Sir Charles A. Parsons Tells of Successful Experiments.

LONDON, May 3.—(Correspondence of The Associated Press.)—Real diamonds, artificially made, were exhibited in connection with the annual May lecture before the British Institute of Metals. The speaker, Sir Charles A. Parsons, who is widely known for his work in developing the turbine engine, told of experiments which showed that diamonds exist in iron.

The diamonds displayed were few and small, and it was stated that they were produced at enormous cost. Only the resources of a great engineering works made the experiments possible. However, the lecturer believed that with the advance of chemistry and electrical engineering it might some day be cheaper to make diamonds than dig them.

A method of making diamonds of commercial size and quantity was suggested by Sir Charles. His plan was to submit a large mass of iron, alloyed with other elements, to heat. After the molten metal had set, but when still at a temperature permeable to gas, it was subjected to a carbon monoxide at a pressure of about 1,000 atmospheres. Under this process, he believed, segregations forming into diamonds might take place slowly within the mass.

One source of diamonds might be attributed, he said, to prehistoric falls of meteors.

SENSE AND NONSENSE.
Father's Generosity.
"How are you getting along, my son?" asked the father visiting the camp at Yaphank.
"All right, father," replied the private.
"Treat you well, do they?"
"Oh, yes; first rate."
"Let you smoke?"
"Certainly they do."
"Well, come and have a cigar with me."
"I must call the Captain's father."
"Why, certainly; but I didn't know he smoked. Ask the general to come along, too, and have one."
An Apt Question.
"Boys," said a teacher to her Sunday school class, "can any of you quote a verse from the Scripture to prove that it is wrong to have two wives?"
A bright boy raised his hand.
"Well, Thomas," encouraged the teacher.
Thomas stood up. "No man can serve two masters," he said proudly.—Houston Chronicle.

ICE CREAM REAL FOOD.
Furnishes a Pleasant and Profitable Way of Responding to the Appeal for the Use of More Milk.

Ice cream is a real food and not a delicacy only, says the State College of Agriculture in calling attention to the fact that serving ice cream is one way in which people may respond to the appeal to use more milk. As a dessert it is free, point out the food experts, from the heaviness of some puddings and pastries and its nutrition is the equal of many foods considered as staple articles of diet.

One quart of ice cream, of required standard, on an energy basis equals 3.75 pounds of strawberries, 5.11 pounds of bananas, 6.36 pounds of apples, 1 1/2 pounds round steak and 1 1/2 dozen eggs.

Give the children plenty of ice cream, advises the college, but be sure it is pure ice cream. Many families have their own freezers and use ice cream often as dessert. Its cost is no greater than pie and cake. It furnishes nourishment and helps dispose of abundant supply of milk now available.

LIGHTNING HITS BURNED; FIVE BURNED TO DEATH.
Children, ages ranging from three to nine years, die near Rome.

ROME, June 12.—During an electric storm early yesterday lightning struck a house five miles west of here in which were sleeping four children, three girls and one boy, whose ages ranged from three to nine years, were burned to death. The fifth child, a boy aged twelve, jumped from a second story window and escaped with slight burns. The father was badly injured, dying late yesterday. The mother and one child were away from home.

OPINION OF A SHEEP MAN ABOUT WAR-SAVINGS STAMPS.

The state director of War Savings in Nevada has forwarded the following letter to the state director in New York. The writer is a sheep herder, living in Washoe county:

"Dear Sir—A sheepman past the buckaroo camp coupl days ago and give us a paper from Reno and I see in the paper that old U. S. A. would pay four percent compound interest to sell War Stamps to get money to go lick them dars Duchmen now if you got them stamps in Reno write and tell me so. I only bin out to the r. r. out in six months when I went for some tobacco and made a bottle of hooch. We got a Chink cook hasn't been past the horse corral in four year and he got all his checks, and I can get him to buy them stamps. I got hundred sixty and thirty-five more next pay day. Now send me the strats dope because im going get this money for you. Address me tierlach, Nevada, and you better put it care—I may go back the buckaroo camp pretty soon."

A Minimum.
By BLISS CARMAN of the Vigilantes.
Decorations by C. E. Felix.
A quarter a day for yourself
And a quarter a week for the kid—
It's over forty dollars a year.
You spent twice that on baccy and ham.
When only beginning your man's career.
Did you think it dear?
A dime a day for yourself
And a dime a week for the kid—
It's over forty dollars a year.
You spent twice that on baccy and ham.
When only beginning your man's career.
Did you think it dear?
A nickel a day for yourself
And a nickel a week for the kid—
It's only twenty dollars a year.
To save your land from the Prussian sneer.
To save your home from torch and spear.
Do you think it's dear?

NEW WORDS TO AN OLD TUNE.
There was a man in our town
And he was wondrous wise;
Thrift-stamps he bought in quantity
And guarded well his prize.
And when his Thrift-card soon was filled,
With all his might and main
He saved to buy another one
And ill it is up again.
—By NORA A. SMITH.

BIDDING AGAINST THE GOVERNMENT

Patriotism really extends to every one of us in measuring our personal expenditure, and when we took the decision that we would enter this war, that we would send millions of men into the trenches if necessary, we took upon ourselves the responsibility of supporting them not with money alone but with personal sacrifice, with the foregoing of our command upon labor for luxury.

If you were looking for a chauffeur and saw a man driving an ambulance and knew that he was going on an errand of mercy, that he was going to someone suffering and perhaps save a life, you would not stop him and say, "I'm looking for a chauffeur; I will pay you more than the government is paying you to drive my car."

If you saw a girl working on a gas mask and knew that that mask might save a life you would not tell her you wanted a new hat, to stop the work and make you a hat.

If you saw a man at a lathe turning up a shell that was going to an instrument for progress of our army you wouldn't say, "But off that lathe, take out that shell and repair my automobile, make my boy a bicycle or do some other work that will produce something that will be pleasant for me to have."

That is what we are all doing when we thoughtlessly use our money for nonessentials, so that we are enjoying more than the government needs, more than it must have if we are to play our part in this war. That is the lesson that we must bring home to ourselves. We must analyze our personal expenditures, must carry on the lesson in others and must see that the whole country finally grasps it if we are to fight this fight as we should fight it.
