INTERVENTION IN ARMENIA.

The recent action of a sub-committee of the Senate committee on foreign affairs with respect to Armenia is something that would hardly have been expected of that body. It suggests that Congress recognize the independence of Armenia, and recommends that the President send a warship to Batum, the Armenian seaport, with a force of American marines and with arms and ammunition for the Armenians, to enable them to protect themselves against the Turks.

The official attitude of this Senate committee heretofore has always appeared to be flatly opposed to the United States mixing with the affairs of other nations and participating in their quarrels. Yet here is a recommendation that we go to a distant, powder-magazine region of the earth to help by force a nation with which we have no particular connection, against another with which, despite our antipathy to it, we have not been and are not now at war. It is proposed, too, that we do this purely on our own account, without the sanction of any other powers.

The proposal certainly sounds no less extreme and perilous and alien to our traditions, than would be the acceptance of a mandate to chaperon the republic of Armenia under the authority of the League of Nations.

TRUTH IN FABRIC.

The House ways and means committee has begun hearings on the "truth-in-fabric" bill recently introduced. The bill will require manufacturers to stamp upon every yard of woolen fabric made, and upon every garment made therefrom, its content of virgin wool, shoddy or cotton substitute. This would undoubtedly prevent deceit and profiteering in woolen fabrics and garments, and many of the advocates of the bill believe also that in the long run it will prove advantageous to American exporters of woolen products even when competing with goods not so marked.

The "truth-in-fabric" plan applies to woolen goods the same principles applied to food products by the pure food law. It would not prevent the manufacture or sale of goods containing wool substitutes or shoddy, but it would make it possible for the purchaser to know exactly what he was purchasing.

Agitation in favor of some such measure has developed rapidly because of the increasing use of substitutes in woolen cloth. The cloth containing shoddy or cotton does not wear so well nor furnish the warmth of cloth made from virgin wool yarn. Yet because little or no distinction is made by dealers in such cloth between the pure quality and the adulterated fabric, the cost of both has risen, and the consumer is helpless in making his purchases.

The national consumers' league favors the bill. So, too, do the wool-growers. Many manufacturers also are on the side of truth in fabric, because they know that fair dealing wins success of a more valuable and lasting type than comes from deception or dishonesty.

PUBLIC BUILDINGS.

A foreigner who admires America and Americans very much, but who is at the same time, not blind to a few national faults and weaknesses, commented recently on the fact that public and public buildings are so far apart. He believes that there are many beautiful buildings in America. But the people for whom those buildings were erected take very little real pleasure or satisfaction in them. They use the buildings when necessary, but rarely pause to enjoy the architecture or to feel a sense of pride and possession.

Whether it be bank, post office, church or museum, the building itself nearly always fails to become a vital part of the public's wealth. During the period of the building's erection the public is carefully kept outside. When the workmen are through for the day the doors are boarded up and ugly signs are posted announcing "No Admittance" or "Trespassers Will Be Prosecuted," or "Closed" or "Keep Out." Frequently a high board fence is erected to defy even the casual glance of interested passersby.

When the building is completed the public is coldly indifferent. It has acquired the habit of letting the place alone, and goes in only hurriedly to transact the business it has to do. Of course, it is impressive, stupendous

LIFT OFF CORNS WITH FINGERS

Doesn't hurt a bit and costs only few cents

Magic! Just drop a little Freezone on that touchy corn, instantly it stops aching, then you lift the corn off with the fingers. Truly! No humbug!

Try Freezone! Your druggist sells a tiny bottle for a few cents, sufficient to rid your feet of every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and calluses, without one particle of pain, soreness or irritation. Freezone is the discovery of a noted Cincinnati genius.

To protect the laborer's daily accomplishment from souvenir-hunting hands or from the accidental damage which might result from the unrestricted explorings of large numbers of curious citizens. Still there is much truth in the foreigner's criticism. The public should care more about its buildings while they are under construction and should feel more at home in them when they are done. If it is not wise to open up a half-built building for public inspection, at least there could be pictures of its various parts and daily reports of its progress and explanations of its finest features. Then it would become in fact as well as in name, a public building.

EDITORIAL BRIEFS.

Government officials say there's no use sending any more "Soviet Arks" to Russia, because there's no place for them to land. Maybe we'll be driven yet to re-establish friendly relations with revolutionary Russia, in order to have an outlet for our surplus Reds.

Fast airplanes don't seem to appeal much to the speed maniacs, after all. Up in the air they can't see or tell how fast they're going. There's more real speed sensation down on the earth, in a lowly flivver.

The mounting cost of gasoline will probably have little effect on the automobile industry. People don't think of the cost of "gas" when they buy a car; and after they have the car, of course they've got to have the fuel.

We won't get rid of profiteering entirely until we change human nature. There's a little of the profiteer in most everybody.

BELIEVES MARS SIGNALED.

Flammarion Also Thinks Sun Storms May Agitate Men.

PARIS, April 2.—Belief that the strange signals picked up by wireless stations recently come from the planet Mars is expressed by Camille Flammarion, the famous astronomer.

He thinks that interstellar communication may yet be realized, but is inclined to believe it will be accomplished by the use of some magnetic force which is not yet developed.

"Since the signals appear to be regular," he says, "it is improbable that they come from the sun, although our great luminary is displaying prodigious activity. It is possible, however, that the present chaotic conditions on earth may be traced to solar storms, which may have a reactive effect on the earth and the minds of men."

A Cure for Rheumatism.

More than nine out of every ten cases of rheumatism are simply rheumatism of the muscles. All that is needed to effect a cure is a free application of Chamberlain's Liniment. Mrs. D. W. Page, Ilion, N. Y., writes: "About two months ago when my husband was suffering from rheumatism in his arms and shoulder, he was advised to try Chamberlain's Liniment. The first application of it gave him great relief, and in a few days he was entirely cured." For sale by all dealers.

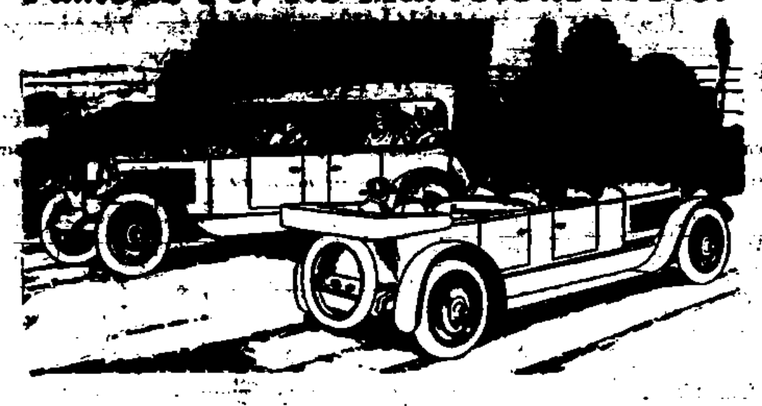
CHANDLER SIX
Famous For Its Marvelous Motor



Two Great Chandlers Right Out In Front

HERE are two Chandler Six models which the big and constantly expanding Chandler factory production has never been able to build in volume that could supply the demand of discriminating motor car purchasers. They are the Chandler Six Touring Car and Dispatch Car, the former a big, handsome, roomy, comfortable, real seven-passenger car; and the latter a trim, smaller car, suggestive in its appearance of all the good things of outdoor life. The Dispatch Car has a touch of snappy style in its clean lines, and is strikingly finished in the beautiful Chandler Rainbow Blue. It seats four persons in restful comfort.

Both the Chandler Six Touring and Dispatch Cars are mounted on the same standard Chandler chassis, developed, through seven years of manufacture, to a surpassing point of excellence and famous for its really marvelous motor. The Chandler Car is priced much lower than other cars which may, perhaps, compare with it.

HEALTH TALKS
BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

SAVE THE WRAPPER—13. CHAPPING.

Chapping may be properly attributed to catching cold in the skin. This is the first time I have ever admitted that it is possible to catch cold—it may be poor, but I am honest.

If chapping is a cold in the skin, the logical way to prevent chapping would be by avoiding exposure to cold air, cold weather, wind, drafts and all that sort of thing. And the most effective way I know of avoiding all that sort of thing is by just expiring and never inspiring any more. If you want to live of course you are not going to avoid exposure—you can't avoid it and live.

What's the use of talking about avoiding "undue"—the old logics always call it "undue" exposure—if you are talking to live folks? It might be advisable to caution an idiot about freezing to death, or a drunken man; but it is a shame to give fool advice to sane people. Fighting windmills is a sensible pastime compared with trying to avoid exposure to wind, cold dampness, drafts.

One whose skin chaps should waste no energy or gray matter contriving schemes to avoid exposure. He should strive rather to insulate his skin against the dissipation of natural heat. If a skin is kept nice and warm it will not chap.

Water is an excellent heat conductor. Therefore if the skin is not rubbed of its natural oil it will not chap. Too much soap, too much bathing, and the use of alcoholic lotions such as toilet water, bay rum, witch hazel, will favor chapping, because these things dissolve out the skin oil and leave the skin unprotected against chilling.

Chapping is a mild dermatitis, which means skin inflammation, or a mild eczema, which, I am ashamed to admit, is a "catarrhal" inflammation of the skin. Suit yourself about the technical name. But remember it is a slight cold settled in the skin. After saying that I feel that I must go and take a sup of tea.

If the skin is rough, dry or harsh, from too much soap or water or alcohol, or may be from a slow metabolism, it is well to oil it after washing and drying thoroughly. Use any neutral or bland oil, such as liquid petrolatum (purified mineral oil, paraffin oil), olive oil, sweet almond oil, cocoa butter, or freshly made cold cream—not the "greaseless" substitutes so frequently offered.

For the relief of chapping, aside from the preventive measures mentioned, this is a useful lotion:

Boric acid—3 teaspoonfuls.
Glycerine—2 ounces.
Tragacanth powder—half teaspoonful.
Water—10 ounces.

Boil and stir constantly till all dissolved. Apply after washing and before the skin is quite dry.

For chapped lips apply camphor ice.

Don't stay in out of the cold; dry the skin.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Camouflage for Scar.

When I was six years old I was operated on for harelip. The operation was a perfect success, except that there has always been a white scar at the line of the lip, which is very noticeable, as my complexion is rather ruddy. Can anything be done to improve that? (E. O. S.)

Answer—The scar may be tattooed with pink to blend with the adjacent skin. Of course that would be a procedure only for a surgeon or skin specialist.

Hopeless Case of Chronic Health.

When I exert myself, for instance to run up a flight or two of stairs or do a few gymnastic exercises, my heart beats or thumps forcibly against my ribs, and my pulse rate increases considerably for two or three minutes afterward. Can one have heart disease without knowing it? (G. E. K.)

Answer—One can scarcely have heart disease without being aware that the health and pedigree have diminished. If your heart is sound it should leave hard against your ribs after such exertion and beat faster for a minute or two afterward. If it continues beating faster than your normal pulse rate about three minutes after running up a flight of stairs or taking fifteen deep-knee flexions, then you should, at least, let your doctor look you over.
