THE WRONG MAN.

The New York [illegible], one of the [illegible] ardent Democratic papers in the State, thus editorially [illegible] the nomination of Charles B. Fairchild to be Superintendent of Public Works:

"It is hard to understand how Governor Robinson, who has shown such excellent judgment in most of his appointments and acts, came to nominate a man like Fairchild to an office for which he is totally unfit, and in which he would have utterly failed, bringing disgrace upon the State administration. Can it be that Governor Robinson's personal kindness and sympathy for this unfortunate young man have blinded him to the glaring incapacity and defects which are seen by everybody else? Certainly it cannot be from any outside and questionable pressure in order that the vast patronage which the superintendent has may be disposed of for corrupt political ends. That is what Governor Robinson's enemies say, but what those who know and respect him pronounce to be incredible. It is whispered that the appointment of Fairchild is part of a scheme to get control of political machinery and develop political sentiment to be used hereafter in giving direction to State and national politics. Of course Gov. Robinson knows nothing of these secret [illegible] and underhand operations [illegible] with ulterior designs. But he cannot be ignorant of the fact that Mr. Fairchild did his utmost, directly and indirectly, to secure his own renomination by the last State convention. Defeated there by an overwhelming vote, in spite of well laid schemes and a vast deal of manipulation, he tried to be revenged on the party by doing his utmost to defeat it at the polls. The fact that he entered into a conspiracy for this end is too plain now to require additional proof. The election returns show how he thrust his hand into the canvass to stab the party that raised him to a great office and gave him a splendid opportunity to distinguish himself. The fight he made in the convention, however questionable in some of its methods, might be excused. It is expected that candidates and their friends will exert themselves to the utmost in caucuses and conventions, for these are the battle-grounds on which a party must settle its disputes and determine its policy, unless it surrenders itself at discretion to a few managers or single autocrat. Mr Fairchild went outside of the convention, and attempted to wreak revenge on the party by conspiring to defeat its regular nominees. This fact of itself is reason enough why Governor Robinson should not have nominated him for office, and [illegible] any Democrat to vote for his confirmation. Besides treachery to the party, taken in connection with his manifest and admitted unfitness for the office, makes it impossible for any Democrat who has the interests of the state at heart to vote for him. Indeed, as his appointment would certainly bring disaster on the state administration, no friend of Governor Robinson can support his nominee, and if he is wise he will withdraw it before it is acted upon."

"Watch Tower," the Albany correspondent of the Buffalo Courier, thus expresses his fears about the canal committee: "I am also afraid as to the chairmanship of canals and very much fear that it will be Peck of Oswego, who was a member last year and is a great friend of Mr. Sloan, the speaker of last year. In fact he nominated Mr. Sloan, and this year seconded the nomination of Mr Husted for speaker, in a speech in exceedingly good taste."

An English correspondent says that Gen. Skobeleff's camp is the only Russian camp he saw that was camp, in the English sense of the word. All the [illegible] His one object in life is to be idolized by his men, and he succeeds. He appears to [illegible] ride gray horses, six of which have been killed under him since the war began. Being a rich man, [illegible] table, and all his brigadiers and colonels sit down with him twice daily, quite unlike Gourkho, of whom it is said that "he never dines," [illegible] writing and working all the rest of the day. These two are rivals in fame; but Skobeleff is a rich young [illegible] of thirty-four, with immense expectations, and Gourkho a father of a family, of forty-nine, who has nothing but his pay. Skobeleff is a [illegible] soldier, [illegible] perfect in his way. Gourkho, though a cavalry officer all his life, is no mere sabreur, but a thoughtful, intelligent man, who impresses you at once with a sense of mental power.

The New York [illegible] a few weeks ago contained an article relative to the great effect of rock candy and whiskey as a cure for pulmonary complaints, consumption and coughs. In the issue of the 3d instant is given another article upon the same subject, contributed by a correspondent, who says: "In Charleston I was recommended to take [illegible] and rock candy as a remedy. I commenced to take it and found it [illegible] relief. I left Charleston and came here to Augusta on the 14th inst., and on my arrival stopped at the Augusta Hotel, and here found, in the person of Mr. F. B. Sinall, the clerk, a living witness of this great southern cure. Three years ago he was abandoned by his physicians in [illegible], and they said that his left lung was entirely gone. He commenced on corn whiskey and rock candy, and in one year was entirely cured, and to-day is as healthy a man as [illegible] on the streets of Augusta. The preparation of the mixture is one pound of rock candy to one gallon of whiskey, or if not sweet enough, more is used, and if too sweet to suit the taste, less. It is universally adopted, both here and in Charleston, [illegible] large portion of the [illegible] of all [illegible]."
