FOR AND AGAINST ITS USE

OPINIONS OF PHYSICIANS ON THE ANTI-TOXINE QUESTION.

A Times Reporter interviews the Physicians of the City on this important question—Some are in Favor and Some Against—Write Some Say it is Useful and Beneficial in Cases of Diphtheria, Others Denounce it as a Fraud and Dangerous.

Anti-toxine, the latest invention in the medical line to come from Europe, is receiving more than its share of discussion through the medical journals and the daily press. It is a preparation used in cases of diphtheria and is injected into the blood. When it was first introduced it set the medical world agog and also the general public and its progress has been watched with no little degree of interest by every class of people throughout the land. The preparation is taken from the blood of horses and in many cases it has been successfully used, while in others, it is claimed, it has been the reverse. The members of the medical profession are divided in their opinions and while some are ready to swear by it others are denouncing it as a fraud and an imposition on the public and the medical profession. Thinking that the people of Oswego and vicinity would be interested in the matter, Times reporters visited different doctors in this city and received from them their opinions on anti-toxine and its treatment. From those interviews the reader can see just how the physicians feel and what they think of the preparation.

Dr. Eddy was very enthusiastic in its praise and said: "I believe in it and use it and have had excellent success, having never lost a case of diphtheria where anti-toxine has had a fair chance. I only saw one person who died where it was used and that was a patient who had been afflicted with the disease for nine days before the injection was given and who afterward had a physician who did not believe in its use. The patient lived eleven days after the injection was given and I believe life was prolonged that long by the use of the preparation. If an injection had been given every twenty-four hours, as it should have been, I believe the patient would have recovered. I also used it successfully in a case of membranous croup."

Dr. Keeney is not a strong advocate of anti-toxine and when asked said: "I feel that its use is attended with some danger and would not resort to it in the most malignant cases, if at all."

Dr. E. G. Manwarren said: "I am simply waiting. I have used it in two cases but in conjunction with other treatment and can not say which was successful. I have not used it sufficiently to warrant me in condemning or commending it. It is one of those things that has got to have further trial before its merits can be passed upon. The American physicians have talked it up and lauded it more than the European physicians have."

Dr. F. L. Cooley: "I think of it as I do of all new remedies that we haven't proved its value. Like Brown's sequand and other so-called specifics, time may prove it of little value."

Dr. J. T. Dwyer: "I have had but a limited experience with it, but it has come to stay and it has proved itself very useful and successful in the treatment of the diphtheria. I have never seen any of the bad effects which some physicians claim."

Dr. Byron DeWitt was very decided in his opinion and did not hesitate in condemning it. He said: "I think it is a worthless thing. Besides being dangerous, anti-toxine is taken from the blood of horses and as all animal matter will decompose and become deadly poison when exposed to air so will anti-toxine and every body who uses it does so at his peril. If one could be assured that when it is used it is fresh and decomposition has not taken place it would be harmless but useless."

Dr. E. L. Hinman: "I must say that I am very much opposed to its use. There was a case in West Fifth street where it was used and blood poisoning set in and I don't believe the patient would have died if anti-toxine had not been used. I think it is very depressing to the heart in many cases. The mortality from

HARD LINES FOR SAUTER.

WE WILL SOON STEP FROM THE FATIGUE PAN INTO THE FIRE.

Now Serving a Term for Burglary—His Term Has Nearly Expired and When Released an Officer from Here Will Be in Attendance to Take Him in Custody on an Indictment Found Against Him by an Oswego County Grand Jury.

The grand jury at Platski found an indictment against Albert Sauter for grand larceny in the first degree.

Sauter, who now is about twenty-one or twenty-two years of age, used to live in this city with his father Jno. Sauter, brewer at Weigan's brewery in East First street, between Mohawk and Ulton streets, and lived over the saloon of Barney Loughran, next door. One night Loughran went to bed in his rooms over the Sauter family's with something like sixty or seventy dollars in his pocket and in the morning the money was missing. It was supposed that burglars entered the house and had succeeded in making their escape. Not a shadow of suspicion was turned toward young Sauter and when his father moved to Cape Vincent, to work in a brewery to be started by Edward Kiley, the son accompanied him. They had been there but a short time before a jewelry store was broken into and robbed and the burglary was traced to young Sauter who confessed his crime and also confessed to having robbed Loughran, by going up stairs in his stocking feet to the saloon keeper's room and taking the roll of bank notes which were in his pants pocket, which he had seen there when the saloon keeper locked up for the night. On account of his youth the Jefferson county judge was lenient and gave the young man a light sentence in the Auburn state prison. The time for him to be liberated is near at hand and as he steps forth he will be confronted by an officer from this county who will take him under arrest and bring him to this county to be tried for the Loughran affair.

DR. SMITH.

A Remarkable Cure Made by Dr. Smith at the Doolittle House.

Wm. Q. Judd, aged 69 years. Gray hair and blue eyes, height 5 feet. 11 inches, weight 194 pounds, had always enjoyed good health until two years ago last summer when he purchased his winter supply of coal. Having a good pair of horses in the barn with little or nothing to do, it occurred to Mr. Judd that he would house his own coal. He went to the coal yard and commenced work. On making a trip home his wagon loaded with coal on ascending a short hill he met a team of horses and on turning out to give room for the team to pass he became alarmed least his wagon would be turned bottom upwards and jumped to the ground. In doing so he sustained an injury to his back that made a helpless cripple of him for a period of fourteen months. He could only walk across a level floor by the aid of two crutches. The most eminent physicians advised him to make his will and prepare to die. In this helpless and hopeless condition, he bearing of some of Dr. Smith's remarkable cures called on him and as strange as it may seem was cured by seven magnetic treatments. Dr. Smith removed his clothing, applied his magnetic instrument to his back and passed currents of magnetism through the spinal cord. He then gave him magnetic treatments with his hands and in less than six weeks Mr. Judd was a well man. Had we time and space we could relate scores and hundreds of cases equally as interesting that are being restored to health by these wonderful men. Consultations from 9 to 5 daily except Sundays. Go to the Doolittle House and be cured. It is your last opportunity. Dr. Smith and staff will remain in Oswego one year. Now is your time to regain your health. Do not put it off. Fees are less than they will ever be again. In two weeks prices will double.

She Couldn't Marry Three.

It sounds like a self-evident proposition that "She Couldn't Marry Three", but in the play of that name which Miss Lillian Kennedy brings to the Richardson Theatre Friday and Saturday, April 19 and 20, with special Saturday matinee, it is shown what a lot of trouble may fall upon a girl because she can only marry one man at a time. This most charming little comédie, Miss Kennedy, has created in this play a new type of maidenly sweetness. Bess Brandon, the heroine of the play, is a fisherman's daughter who is obliged to choose her husband from two good men and one bad one, who are courting her at once. She chooses wisely, an honest man, but the rejected rascal pursues her and him with fish-like malignity. There is plenty of excitement in the play, especially in the final climax where the villain tries to tie the hero to the railroad track upon which an express train is approaching. A real passenger locomotive steams upon the stage in this scene and for realism the tabernacle has never been beaten. The scenery showing some beautiful views of the seacoast has been specially painted for this production. Of course Miss Kennedy's songs and dances add greatly to the brightness of the play.

At St. Joseph's German church on Easter, a mass in E flat, composed by Miss Sara Russo, the accomplished organist, will be sung by a full choir. The music is at once original, melodious and appropriate to the solemn services of the catholic church. The choir of St. Joseph's is one of the largest and best drilled in the city, and the congregation and pastor are justly proud of it. Miss Russo, to whose rare musical talent, genius and untiring efforts are due mainly the high standing and excellency of the music of St. Joseph's church, formerly lived in Oswego and was organist of St. Peter's church in that city. Miss Russo was born in Palermo, Sicily, Italy, in 1855. She came to this country with her parents in 1867, living in New York 6 years. In 1874 her parents removed to Oswego, where she lived until recently called to be musical director of St. Joseph's. She received instruction with Prof. Frontelli of New York, Prof. Lavigne of Montreal, Canada, and Prof. Haerter of New York. Syracuse Evening News.
