THIRD BASEMAN COUGHLIN OF DETROIT.

(Pa.) Independent team in 1890 and with Bridgeport in 1900 and 1901. Here he blossomed forth as a pitcher. After playing in the east Dougherty decided to play on the Pacific coast, signing with the Los Angeles club of the California league. He easily led that league in batting, making the record of leading two leagues in batting within a year. Manager Collins had had his eye upon Dougherty for some time and induced him to join the Boston American team.

In 1904 he was transferred to the New York Americans, for which team he has since covered the left garden in excellent fashion.

William P. Coughlin, the noted third baseman of the Detroit club, was born in 1873 at Scranton, Pa. He began his professional career in 1893, when he was brought out by ex-player and umpire Larry Kerkick, who recommended him to the Pawtucket (R. I.) club, of which John F. Smith was then manager.

With the Pawtucket club Coughlin made such a great reputation that he was purchased by Manager Jimmy Manning's Kansas City club, which he served for three years. When the Kansas City team was transferred to Washington by the American league in 1901 Coughlin went with it and soon ranked as one of the star third basemen of the major leagues. He remained with the Washington club until the middle of the 1904 season, when his release was sold to the Detroit club for $8,000.

Patrick J. Flaherty, the clever south paw pitcher of the Pittsburg club, was born at Carnegie, Pa., on June 23, 1878, and learned to play ball on the lots of that town. He began his professional career in 1898 with the Jackson (Mich.) club. He was a member of the Paterson (N. J.) team of the Atlantic league in 1897 and 1898 and pitched for the Richmond club of the same organization in 1899.

He started the season of 1900 with Pittsburg and finished it with the Hartford club of the Eastern league. He did splendid service for Toronto in 1901 and was signed by Manager Clymer in 1902 when he organized the Louisville team. Embery made a wonderful record in the American association and was purchased by the Cincinnati club for 1903, but was later released to the Louisville club, from which he was purchased by Pittsburg last spring.

PITCHER FLAHERTY OF PITTSBURG.

Young Violinist.

Albert Spalding Highly Praised Abroad at His Debut.

That Albert Spalding, the sixteen year-old son of J. W. Spalding of New York city, is destined to become one of the most famous violinists of the day there seems to be little doubt.

Mr. Spalding made his professional debut recently at the Nouveau theater Paris, and on this occasion his rendition of Saint-Saens' "Concerto," Bach's "Chaconne," Beethoven's "Roumanze" and Sarasate's "Zigeunerweisen," a most difficult programme, held the full seating capacity of the theater spell bound.

Mr. Spalding is rich in capability plays with great sentiment and perfection of technique and at this early date is pronounced a "finished virtuoso."

Henry Mapleson of operatic fame (son of Colonel Mapleson, who brought out Patti) in a letter to young Spalding's parents says: "Let me again express to you my positive conviction that your son Albert is destined to occupy a very prominent position in the musical world. . . . I was delighted with his playing last night and saw at once the brilliant career open to him."

The European press comments following Albert Spalding's appearance are very flattering and bespeak for him a bright and successful future. The following are extracts:

The violinist Albert Spalding has just conquered the Parisian public. His name will henceforth be classed among those artists whom our music lovers cherish most. A born violinist of strong and healthy temperament, among the virtuosos of the first school, the morning of a remarkable career dawned upon the destiny of the young artist yesterday. —Le Gil Blas.

Mr. Spalding excited the applause of the public which crowded the Nouveau theater by the freedom of his style and the depth of his musical understanding. An American, young Albert Spalding, he is only sixteen years of age, has all the charm which the young men of his race possess. The violinist is firm is indeed indebted to the excellent lessons which the master, Jean Brullino, gave him in the conservatory in New York. But we must render to Caesar the things which are Caesar's—that is to say, we must tell that young Albert Spalding studied also at Florence, with Professor Chiti. It is likewise at Florence, at the age of ten, that he was introduced for the first time in a charity concert, in which he gained an enormous success, related in all the Italian press. Two years later he played again in a concert given at the Metropolitan Opera House of New York, then again at Florence, at Rome and at Livourne. He would then have been able, like so many others, to carry on the career of a little prodigy, but he preferred to perfect his art at fourteen he completed for the diploma as professor of the violin at the Conservatory of Bologna and obtained it with unanimity. —Le Figaro.

Burton Holmes, the lecturer on travel, is at present in Oberammergau, attending the performance of the religious drama, entitled "The School of the Cross" which is being presented for the first time publicly this season.

The Passion play, for which Oberammergau has been noted for many generations, has been given regularly, with a few exceptions, on the even decades, but it is now the purpose of the people of Oberammergau to give to the "School of the Cross" every ten years, halfway between the performances of the Passion play.

The play dramatizes the life of King David, who will be the central figure in the piece, while parallel episodes in the life of Christ are interwoven as tableaux. In other words, the present play is just the reverse of the Passion play in that Old Testament scenes are reproduced in dramatic form, while the New Testament are given exclusively as tableaux.

Oberammergau, with its present dramatic production and with reminiscences of the Passion play, will form the subject for one of Mr. Holmes' travelogues to be given in the United States next fall.

Winford Goff, principal baritone and technical director of the Savage English Grand Opera company, sailed recently for Europe. Mr. Goff will visit London, Paris, Berlin, Milan and other musical centers with a view of engaging artists for Mr. Savage's English Grand Opera company.

Over $10,000,000 was spent in theater going last season in New York, and about 19,000,000 people attended the play during the course of the year. Despite this, big successes were few, "The College Widow" being the only comedy drama that ran the entire season in New York.

Major Muscovite.

Great Career of the Well Known Pacing Campaigner.

Chicago has claimed a pacer for a number of seasons past that has been always a noted and not seldom a sensational one. This is the brown stallion Major Muscovite, 2:07, by Muscovite, 2:18—Italy, by Uwharrie, owned by Eugene Sullivan, and already this season the spot light of prominence has found him, and he is in the full glare of his effulgence.

The reason is that at Baltimore recently he won the free for all pace for the first time over the half mile track at the Gentlemen's Driving park in 2:08 1/2. This is far the fastest mile race by a harness horse so far in 1905, and for a two lap track so early in the season it is a truly remarkable performance, especially for a horse whose best record is but 2:07 over a full track.

Major Muscovite is now nine years old and has been before the public since he was three. It was as a four-year-old that he first became a pacer star. That season Dick McCallahan campaigned him through the great western circuit with brilliant success. He captured the $5,000 annual pacing stake at the Minnesota state fair at Hamline, a rich event at Duluth, Ia., and numerous other good races and fettered the heaviest winning pacer in the west for that season.

The next year Dick tackled the grand circuit with him, and he showed well, but the extremely fast record that he had made forced him into a class replete with sensational horses—among them Dan Patch himself—and he was unable to repeat his previous year's successes. The next year he was given his present record of 2:07 at Reading, Mass., by McMahon in a race which he won at long odds.

In 1903 the Major was placed in the hands of Dan Clippinger, who still has him. The pair seem to hook up together with a degree of compatibility that is near perfection, and between them they have done a long series of remarkable things. Their campaign of last year has seen him or never been exceeded. It began at Baltimore in early June and was prolonged until November.

During the course of nineteen weeks Major Muscovite started in eighteen races, of which he won thirteen, was second in four and fourth in the remaining one. He covered a range of territory reaching from Baltimore north to Lewistown, Pa., and west to Chillicothe, Pa., and when he reached Chicago in November had traveled over 10,000 miles to fill his various engagements, which, with two exceptions,

Supplies of the cheese are fairly liberal, but there is some increase in the demand, and though buying is pretty closely confined to the operations of the larger dealers, and there is still an absence of any general disposition to buy for storage purposes, the most delicate continue to operate in a hand to mouth manner, only taking stock for current requirements. The movement, however, is satisfactory and the market steady on fancy grades. There is considerable complaint about quality showing defective from defect of the water which the cheese was being made and there is a larger percentage of rejected than usual. Buyers for storage and for export are buying in large quantities very closely. Large full cream condenses in light supply and, while none trade out as limited, there is a larger export interest and one such buyer has taken care to buy 500 boxes of large condense; one of the best of the lot is very little export demand except for occasional lots of cheap grades. Fine skins in fair request and steady.
