

OSWEGO WOMAN WINS HIGHEST OF COLLEGE HONORS

Miss Lydia E. Phoenix Receives Scholarship and Degree at Emerson

Miss Lydia E. Phoenix, for 20 years one of the well known figures of the Oswego Normal school faculty, where she was head of the Oral English department, was one of the three members of the June graduation class at Emerson College of Oratory in New England, where she has been a student for the past year, to win highest honors. Miss Phoenix also won the Proctor scholarship. She received her B. L. I. degree at the same time.

the following account of Miss Phoenix's work: The college is having published a new chart and outline of the Evolution of Expression and the Perfective Laws of Art, as planned and taught by Dr. Emerson. Chart and outline are the work of Miss Lydia E. Phoenix, an Emerson graduate. Together they present Dr. Emerson's philosophy of expression in condensed and convenient form. It is believed that the Phoenix chart and outline will prove a great boon to both teachers and students of expression. Miss Phoenix holds the B. L. I. degree and has been a teacher of expression for 20 years in the Oswego Normal school, Oswego, N. Y. The chart and outline are condensed into four pages. They show psychological relationships in the various steps. Selections for practice are given in connection with the outline of both Evolution of Expression and the Perfective Laws. Miss Phoenix has also written an

50 Per Cent Slump In June Weddings

This past June was an exceptionally poor month for brides—or grooms either for that matter. Only 17 licenses were issued in the 30 days. Compared to the 33 licenses issued last June, it statistics prove anything, marriage is becoming a less popular—or more expensive—institution.

Interesting account of her reactions to her year in Emerson as an "Old Grad" and her letter is carried in the same issue of the school paper. It follows:

"Emerson, a greater Emerson, and a still greater Emerson is the Yesterday, the Today and the Tomorrow of the Emerson College as seen by an alumna of 1893 who has just received her degree of B. L. I., and who has asked the privilege of telling the old alumni what the year has meant to her!

"Wonderful as the college was in the old days, it is far more wonderful today, with its expanded and vitally correlated curriculum, its higher standards of admission and graduation, and its greater opportunities for artistic development for every individual.

"Merited honors are given the college through the credits allowed its graduates by many colleges and universities and by the endorsement of its degree by other states.

"The students themselves are a remarkable body, unswerving in their devotion to the future Emerson through their ceaseless labors for the Endowment Fund.

"And back of all and through all is felt the spirit of the management and faculty, a unity of noble, thoroughly-trained men and women—artists who are led by the vision of the Still Greater Emerson, and are ever—

"Without halting, without rest, lifting better up to best."

"Inspiration and uplift await every alumnus who can return to the college for the B. L. I. degree—a degree which the college is empowered to give by the great Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Sincerely and cordially,
LYDIA ELLEN PHOENIX,
O. M., 1893; B. L. I., 1924
