MISCELLANEOUS ITEMS.

A Portland correspondent reports that Friday afternoon while V. J. Chase was walking M. D. Austin in cutting wood, a tree lodged and fell, a large limb striking him a glancing blow on the head, then hitting his left shoulder, breaking the collar bone, dislocating the shoulder and other injuries may be fatal. He was rushed to Ogdensburg hospital.

The Portland "Courier and Freeman" says: Harley Andrews, wanted by the military authorities for desertion, was arrested at Portland last Friday by Officer William Smith, of this place. He was taken to Sackett Saturday by Chief Leamy. Andrews collected here last October and had a pass good for twenty-four hours. He had arranged his leave by some days and the military authorities sent out a description of him. He is a resident of this section.

League milk for January has been sold for $3.69 per hundred. This is for three per cent. milk at the 26-270 milk freight zone, with the usual differentials for freight and butterfat. The average price of butter for the period ending December 26th was $7.222. The average price for cheese in the same period was $9.123. The cost of production differential for January of 1920 cents, together with the value of skimmed milk and whey, was used in making the sale.

New York state is ready to take Mount Mory, highest peak in the state and make it a part of the forest preserve. The state land board has authorized State Comptroller Eugene M. Travis to sell $2,000,000 in forest preserve bonds. A part of the proceeds will be used to pay for the mountain tract. This will give the state entire control of the territory, which will be included in the Adirondack Forest Preserve. The purchase will be made from the Mt. Mory Iron Company, which has had holdings in the Adirondacks for a number of years and was at one time engaged in iron mining there. The company suspended operations in 1915 and since that time has been engaged mostly in the lumber business.

Massena had a drowning accident last week Monday in which the little six-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Archie Chase lost his life. The child returned from kindergarten and played about with his sled near his home for some time. When it began to grow dark and the sled did not come into the house his mother began a search of the neighborhood but was unable to find him. That evening's searchlight party was organized and went to the river nearby to continue the search. They found the child's sled part way up the bank and a hole in the ice not far from the bank told the story. The sled slipped down from the bank and the boy eventually left his sled and slid down on his feet but he struck his head. There is considerable current at that point and the body was found at midnight about four rods from where the child was broken. The father of the child is employed in the research department of the Alumnium Co.

Words and Music. The value of words is being up at least in Boston. There the courts have decided that the artistic value of the words and music of a poem are equal. At present in the United States and Canada the writer of the words of a song gets only a pittance of the credits or a small amount of credit. In England many of the most popular ballads have brought their writers no more than two or three guineas, while the composer goes on cashing his royalty checks for years. What measure public opinion apply to the two arts thus combined to make words so much less valuable than music is rather hard to understand. Verse writers might well send a little gold medal to the justly-mentioned citizen of Boston who has ruled it a false god.

Unusual Methods Used. With the end of the war have come many revelations of the unusual methods used by the Germans to spread their harmful propaganda in the countries arrayed against the central powers, and of the clever work which often resulted in a well-timed success. In one case, mentioned in Popular Mechanics Magazine, what appeared to be an old and worn copy of the works of Homer proved to be a volume of attacks on British rule in India. Only the first few pages of the book were printed in Greek, the remainder being printed in the language of the country. The volume was addressed to an educated Hindu capable of translating the Greek into an Indian dialect.

Steadfast Confidence. The Following Statement Should Form Complete Proof of Merit to Every St. Regis Falls Reader. Could stronger proof of the merit of any remedy be desired than the statements of grateful customers who say their confidence has been unshaken by lapse of time? These are the kind of statements that are appearing constantly in your local papers from Donan's Kidney Pills. They are true and confirmed, with new enthusiasm. Can any reader doubt the following? It's from a St. Regis Falls resident:

John Bushey, South Main St., says: "I used Donan's Kidney Pills for kidney trouble a few years ago and they cured me. I gave a public statement of that time and I am still highly recommending them." (Statement given January 10, 1918.)

On September 9, 1918 Mr. Bushey said: "I think just as much of Donan's Kidney Pills now as ever. When I have backache or other kidney trouble, Donan's always relieve me at once."

What the Editor Does. David R. Francis, former governor of Missouri, is credited with a statement concerning the local paper's value to its community which The Adirondack News is glad of an opportunity to print. The statement follows:

Each year the local editor gives from $500 to $1,000 in free-lance to the community in which he is located. No other agency can or will do this. The editor, in proportion to his means, does more for his own town than any ten other men, and in fairness he ought to be supported—not because you like him or admire his writings but because the local paper is the best investment a community can make.

It may not be brilliantly edited or crowded with thought, but financially it is of more benefit to the community than the preacher or teacher. Understand me, I do not mean morally, and yet on moral questions you will find most of the papers on the right side. To day the editor of the local paper does the most for the least money of any person on earth.

A Portland correspondent reports that Orson Lyman, a well known resident of this village, died suddenly while sitting, reading in his home Monday evening. Mr. Lyman had been apparently in his usual health. Death is believed to have been due to an attack of heart failure. Funeral services will be held Wednesday afternoon, the Rev. H. West officiating. Mr. Lyman was born in Bolton 28 years ago, the son of Colonel and Mary Lyman. He was engaged in the furniture and undertaking business here for some years and was also associated with L. R. Nye, now of Portland, in the operation of a box factory. He had retired from active life a few years ago. He is survived by his widow and one son, Rex Lyman.

To obtain the views of the various parts of the country on this matter, the various directors of the twelve federal reserve districts were asked to draw up such a creed and resolution. The following is a complete summary of their suggestions: "I believe that the stability and progress rest upon the industry and thrift of her people."

"I will work hard and live simply."

"I will spend less than I earn, I will use my earnings with care, I will save consistently, I will invest thoughtfully."

To increase the financial strength of my country and myself I will give government securities.

I will hold more than the obligation my country has upon me. I will do these things to insure the greatness of America's future."

CHRISTMAS 1919

The quantity of HOLIDAY GOODS on the market this year is far below normal.

I have however been able to secure a fair allotment of such goods and by augmenting the stock with the many USEFUL THINGS from the everyday staple lines that make such acceptable presents, the showing is very good.

You will not be disappointed if you look here early for your gifts. FRANK S. YOUNG.

FISH LIAR WORKS OVERTIME

Here is One Concerning a Salt Herring That is Challenge to the Imaginative. That is the worst of those fish stories. Somebody always comes along with a better one. Recently News told the V. A. D.'s story of the frozen fish that came to life in the cooking pot. This a correspondent—a naval officer, it should be said—easily puts that to shame.

An interesting experiment was tried some time ago. "He writes to the 'with an ordinary herring.' The fish was put into a large bowl of salt water and every day a small quantity of water was removed and an equal quantity of 'fresh' was substituted, until eventually the fish lived and thrived in purely fresh water. "He writes as so pleased with the success of his experiment that he then tried removing a very small quantity of water daily until the bowl was empty, and found that the herring did excellently, entirely without water, and as he was in the empty bowl he had put him in a cage. "Here he lived happily, hopping from perch to perch just like a bird, until one day some sudden noise startled him and he fell into his water trough and—was drowned!"
