Oriental Punishment.

J. T. Meadows, Esq., translator to Her Britannic Majesty's Consulate in China, recently read a paper before the Asiatic Society of London, upon executions in china. In the course of his paper the following account is given of the execution of thirty-four "rebels or banditti." The scene occurred at the ordinary place of executions, at Canton, where it is stated that more than five hundred human beings have been put to death within the past eight months; that Mr. Meadows was accompanied by two English residents at Canton; and that he found in the place, which he entered by a strongly guarded door, a few of the lower officials, but no visible preparations of any kind, except a cross at which the thirty-four criminals were to be cut up, and a fire of fragrant sandel wood burning before the shed where the Mandarins sat to superintend the executions, in order to conceal what is described as the "horrid effluvium" arising from the decomposed heads remaining there.

After waiting (says the account,) a considerable time, all the criminals were introduced, most of them walking to their places, but some carried in baskets, and tumbled out on the spot appointed for them, where they lay powerless, either from excess of fear or from treatment inflicted, during trial and imprisonment. A man stood behind each criminal, and placed him in a kneeling position, with his face toward the ground, holding him in this position by grasping his hands, which were bound behind his back. In case of resistance, which happens very rarely, the criminal's queue is held by a second assistant, and dragged forward by force, so as to keep the neck extended. When all the criminals were placed in the required positions, the executioner seized a sabre with both hands and proceeded to his work. In the present instance, the man was a mild looking soldier selected from the ranks of the army. The sword was a common sabre of three feet in length; and one of those employed on the occasion was laid on the society table. It appeared that there is no official weapon required, for the officers of the army, anxious to "flesh their swords," send them for the purpose to the executioner, who has thus a sufficient supply for his most extensive operations. The number decapitated on the occasion described was 33 and the executioner took up a fresh sword as soon as he felt the edge of the one employed becoming dull, which was usually the case after cutting off two or three heads.

When all was ready, the man stood firm with his legs somewhat apart. On hearing the word "pan" pronounced by the officer superintending, and after a short order to the criminal—"Dont move," he raised his sword straight up, and brought it rapidly down with the full strength of both arms, giving additional strength to the blow by dropping his body perpendicularly to a sitting posture. The horrid task was soon done, after cutting off the head of one victim, the man threw himself by a bound into a position by the side of the next; and in somewhat less than three minutes the thirty-three were headless—the head in every case but the first, being completely served at one blow. In three or four cases, where the criminals retained their full strength, the bodies, after decapitation, rose quite upright; and Mr. Meadows is satisfied that unless restrained by the man behind, they would have sprung into the air. When this part of the tragedy was over, the more horrible work of slow death was carried into effect upon the remaining criminal, who was bound to the cross as mentioned above. He was a strongly built man, apparently forty years old, who had escaped in the first instance, but who had voluntarily surrendered himself to certain death, in order to save from torture his wife and family, who had been seized by the Chinese government, with the cruel policy usual on such occasions. In this instance the flesh was cut from the forehead, breast and extremities of the sufferer with a short knife, which was on the table before the meeting; the body was immediately taken from the cross and the head cut off. The duration of the punishment was about four or five minutes. The bodies were then packed up in coffins and carried away."

Retaliation.

Some few years since, in the county of Penobscot, there lived a man by the name of H——, whose greatest pleasure was in tormenting others; his own family was generally the butt of his sport.

One cold blustering night, he retired to bed at an early hour, his wife being absent at a neighbor's. Some time after she returning, finding the door closed, she demanded admitance.

"Who are you?" cried Mr. H.

"You know who I am, let me in, it is very cold.

"Begone you strolling vagabond; I want nothing of you here."

"But I must come in."

"What is your name?"

You know my name—it is Mrs. H.

"Begone! Mrs. H. is a very likely woman; she never keeps such late hours as this."

Mrs. H. replied, if you don't let me in I will drown myself in the well.

"Do if you please," he replied.

She then took up a log and plunged it into the well, and returned to the side of the door.

Mr. H. hearing the noise, rushed from the house, to save as he supposed, his drowning wife. She at the same time slipped in and closed the door after her. Mr. H almost naked demanded admittance

"Who are you?" she demanded

"You know who I am—let me in or I shall freeze."

"Begone you thievish rogue? I want nothing of you here."

"But I must come in."

"What is your name?"

"You know my name—it is Mr. H.

"Mr. H. is a very likely man, he don't keep such late hours."

Suffice it to say, after she had kept him in the cold until she was satisfied, she opened the door and let him in.

Hotels.

We mentioned, a few days since, that a proposition was being made for the erection of two spacious Hotels in this city—one on the east side, and the other on the west. The importance of such structures to the interests of Oswego at the present time cannot be too highly valued. We were forcibly struck with a remark which we heard made last summer by a passenger on one of the Ontario steamers. On approaching Oswego, he was surprised at the appearance of the city as he viewed it from the lake, and expressed himself warmly in regard to its marine facilities and business capacities.—The conversation having previously been upon the State Fair, a passenger casually remarked, that he saw no reason why Oswego should not be selected as a suitable and convenient place for the holding of the next Annual State Fair. To this the gentleman referred to quickly responded, "She has'nt accommodations, Sir, for the visitors who usually attend the State Fair; she has no large Hotels."

We believe that no hotels of their size are better conducted than those of Oswego. This is not our opinion alone, it is the opinion of all who have at any time enjoyed their hospitality. The fault is not with "mine hosts," but consists in the incapacity of the houses over which they preside.

But we trust another year will find Oswego with ample accommodations for the entertainment of all who choose to visit her—whether it be the multitude who usually attend the State Fair, or a larger number still. The necessity for such improvements has long been apparent; and this subject has not received the attention which its importance demands. Why it has not, we can't conceive. Surely, such establishments can not fail to pay well, when properly conducted. We hope soon to be called upon to announce the laying of the foundation stones of two mammoth hotels in Oswego, and in due time be able to congratulate our citizens upon their speedy and successful completion.

Telegraphic Dispatches.

On the first of April next, or as soon as business fairly commences, we shall re-commence taking telegraphic despatches. Our readers will bear in mind that in order to do this, as it involves a large outlay, it will be absolutely necessary that we receive promptly all amounts due us, together with as much patronage as our friends may kindly favor us with. With the aid of our telegraphic despatches containing the N. York Market, and a correct daily statement of the home and foreign Markets, we confidently hope to make the Journal a reliable and efficient Commercial Paper, and as such we commend it to our business men.

Body Found—Inquest and Verdict.

The body of John E. Vandermark, (not Vanderbecker as we stated) the unfortunate man who committed suicide, by throwing himself into the canal, on Sunday last, was found on Tuesday and an inquest held by Coroner Lewis.—The deceased was 29 years old. The Jury returned the following verdict:—

"That John E. Vandermark came to his death by throwing himself into the Oswego canal, in the City of Oswego, while in a state of temporary insanity, on the 14th day of March, 1852, and was drowned."

☞ The citizens of Oswego will no doubt be surprised to learn that our esteemed fellow citizen, Hon. Alvin Bronson, has assumed the active duties of Street Commissioner! We were not aware of his appointment until we read the following notice in the official paper last evening:

SEALED PROPOSALS are solicited on or before the 20th inst., for furnishing Lumber for the use of the Corporation of Oswego for the ensuing year. Dated Oswego, March 19, 1852.
ALVIN BRONSON, Street Com'r.

☞ We are requested to announce the return of Rev. Mr. Gallagher, Rector of the Church of the Evangelists, and consequently Divine Services may be expected, to-morrow, at their usual place of worship.

☞ The Milwaukee Sentinel says that a letter received in that city from Mr. M. Dousman, the patriarch of Mackinac, mentions that the past winter was the severest he has known for fifty years. On the 1st of February there was a snow storm which completely buried many of the houses. The ice is very thick in the Straits and the prospects for an early opening of navigation by no means promising.

☞ A ridiculous story has been copied into some journals that at a recent Convention of the Temperance Men of Ohio, action was taken against the Maine Law. Such is not the case. Ireland.

The Earl of Clarendon had taken leave of Ireland. Lord Naas, the new Minister, was to be opposed in his election for Kildare.

The obsequies of the late Roman Catholic Archbishop of Dublin were celebrated with great pomp on the 2d inst.

The Catholic Defence Association had held another meeting, but it was of no great moment. The chief point was the system of proselytism pursued at Military schools.

Four Free Traders had offered themselves for the representation of Cork.

France.

The re-organization of the National Guard is going forward. A number of companies and several battallions had been already formed.

General Cavaignac had been elected for the third, the most important district in France.

For Lamartine although he had declined to stand, 711 votes had been recorded, against 1,806 for the Government candidate.

M. Becha's trial had terminated in a conviction, and he was fined 500 francs.

The persons who assisted in the circulation of his pamphlet, were each fined 150 francs.

M. Carnot did not obtain the required majority, so that the election in his district will have to be gone over again.

It is rumored that the Pope, at the request of Louis Napoleon, is going to raise the Bishop of Bordeaux to the dignity of a Cardinal.

The President is indisposed, with an acute rheumatism in the legs.

The charter of the Bank of France, having only four years to run, has been extended to fifteen. The Bank has reduced its discounts from four to three per cent.

Government was expected to apply for a loan shortly.

Railroad shares and bonds will be discounted as commercial.

The elections were nearly all in favor of the Government. Here and there only was an opposition member returned.

Portugal.

At the date of last advices all was quiet.

Count Thomar's appearance at Lisbon had created much surprise. He had not yet taken his seat in the Council Senate, of which he is a member.

Spain.

The dissolution of the Cortes was talked of. Should it be determined on, it is not likely to take place before July or August; and they, in that case will be convened in September or October.

The Duke and Dutchess de Montpensier are to visit England and return to Spain in July.

Denmark.

The new cholera and fever bill, which abolishes the absurd and injudicious quarantine system in Denmark, had passed the upper House by a majority of 32 to 6.

Italy.

Mr. Norris, the American Minister at Naples gave a grand ball on the evening of the 23d ult., in commemoration of the Birth Day of Washington.

His Excellency, Sir W. Kemble, and all the foreign Ministers, except the representative of Austria, were present.

Correspondence of the N. Y. Journal of Commerce.

Washington, March 16.

Congress is already called upon to create a new Territory in the region acquired from California. The inhabitants of Carson Valley, which lies between California and Utah, and is separated from the latter Territory by a desert of 800 miles in extent, ask for the establishment of a Territorial Government over that region, and propose for it the name of the Plata Territory, from the name of the tribe of Indians which inhabit it.

An interesting description of the country around Puget's Sound, in North Oregon, appears in the Intelligencer to-day, copied from a western paper. It is the new land of promise, because it is the farthest off land, of our possessions. A heavy emigration, by land and sea, is anticipated for this newly explored region.

Meanwhile, the Territory of New Mexico, which has but a population of 600 original citizens of the United States, is likely to receive a fresh impulse from the discovery of rich gold placers.

At the jubilee, recently held here by the directors and friends of the Illinois Central Railroad, it was stated, on the part of the directors, that the whole road would be completed within three years from this time. This road will be seven hundred miles long, the longest continuous road in the world. It will connect with the great Mobile road, and that will form a continued line of railroad from the Lakes to the Gulf of Mexico. The iron for one hundred and twenty miles of the road is already purchased and imported. Advertisements for proposals are about to be issued, from Chicago, South, 120 miles; from Fairport to Dubuque; from La Salle, South, 60 miles; and from Cairo, North.

Congress has, as it appears to many, found, at last, the best mode of disposing of the public lands—that is, to promote their settlement and cultivation. As Mr. Webster says, in his letter to Mr. Neal, "God gave the earth to man to be tilled."

The large grant of land for this Illinois road will be followed, after a while, by similar grants; and, while they secure the settlement of the country, they benefit the Government and landholders, by enhancing the value of the remaining lands.

It will be noticed that Mr. Webster, in the letter referred to, advocates, as he has heretofore done, the grant of a homestead to every head of a family, as the sole condition of actual settlement. Andrew Johnson's settlement bill will certainly pass the House, and I have no longer any doubt that it will also pass the Senate. It will, therefore, become a law at the close of [illegible] the act is to take effect imm[illegible] approval.

Wright's Cabinet Ware Rooms.

We recently visited the furniture ware-rooms of our friend Wright, on the east side, and were much surprised at the beauty and elegance of some articles of his own manufacture, which we noticed occupying conspicuous places among the manufacture of the eastern cities. He has a large stock of furniture mostly of his own manufacture, which will bear comparison with any cabinet-work in the state. One book-case which Mr. Wright has recently manufactured, particularly attracted our attention. It is a beautiful specimen of cabinet-work, and is valued at $70. Mr. Wright employs a goodly number of hands in the manufacture of furniture and within the past month has found it necessary to purchase a steam-engine to enable him to get up work in time to meet the demands of his customers.—This engine is now in successful operation, and the scene of activity which it presents—turning lathes, grindstones, and saws with great speed—is quite refreshing to the patrons of home-industry. We understand Mr. Wright intends to remove his stock into one of Doolittle's spacious stores, in a few days. We hope our citizens will give him a call when they need anything in his line. He is every way worthy of their patronage.

Legislative.

Senate, March 19th.

Numerous petitions were presented and referred. Several bills were reported; among them one by Mr. Conger, appropriating money to the Mexico Academy, in this county. The Senate then proceeded to discuss the resolution censuring the conduct of Mr. Pierce while in the chair, and was in session and still occupied in this discussion at last accounts.

Assembly March 19.

The House went into committee, Mr. Riley in the chair, on private claims, and disposed of some fifteen bills for the relief of various individuals, when it took recess to 4 o'clock, P. M.

The State Treasurer.

The following letter from W. L. Learned, Esq., the Counsel for Mr. Cook in the trial at Ithaca, we take from the columns of the Albany Atlas of yesterday. It explains the state of affairs in relation to the contested offices of State Treasurer:

To the Editors of the Albany Evening Atlas.

Gentlemen:—The article in your yesterday's paper, in relation to the suit of the people against James M. Cook, has just come to my notice. It seems to me fitted to produce erroneous impressions; and as one of the counsel of Mr. Cook, I should like to have you state a few facts as to the trial. The cause was not summed up to the jury by the counsel, or submitted to them by Judge Gray. On the contrary, he decided that there was no question of fact for them; and said that he would not express his opinion on the question of law. The verdict was entered by the direction of the Judge, and is not an intimation even of his opinion. The plaintiff's proceedings are strayed until the decision of the bill of exceptions to be made in the case.—Nothing, therefore, has been decided by the Jury, and nothing by the Judge, except as a matter of form.

Yours &c., W. L. LEARNED.

A Flood in the Genesee—Genesee Valley Canal Dam Destroyed.

The following communicates very bad news. The Dam which has been carried away, was a heavy structure; and was necessary to secure a supply of water for the Genesee Valley Canal. If, as our despatch supposes, it will be impossible to secure navigation in the Canal until mid-summer, the holders of lumber will be seriously affected:—

Special Telegraph to the Evening Journal.

Mount Morris, March 19th.

The Genesee Valley Dam, across the Genesee river, with the pier, was wholly carried away last night. Navigation of the Canal will be suspended till July or August, and the vast amount of lumber waiting shipment will be kept back.

Navigation of the Hudson River.

Hudson, March 19th.

The Steamer Columbia arrived here at 8 o'clock last evening, being the first boat up from New York this season.—For some miles her progress was retarded by floating ice. There is considerable ice floating down the river opposite this place this morning.

☞ It is rather a curious incident that when the Americans sent Dr. Franklin, a printer, as Minister to France, the Court of Versailles sent M. Girard, a book-binder, as Minister to Congress.
