A Year Later

In these first-baby-of-the-year photos you see in newspapers the new arrivals almost all look alike cribbed in their mothers' arms in hospital beds. If they're girls, they grow up to be attractive young ladies in most cases. Just to show you how last year's Patriot Baby of the Year looked like, Oscar Snyder has taken this charming portrait of Ellen Capeling, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Capeling of R. D. 1.

James Hanlon Honored by Elks on January 20

James B. Hanlon, District Deputy of the Central District of the New York State Elks will be welcomed at a homecoming to be given in his honor by Fulton Lodge 830 on Sunday, Jan. 20. Hanlon, a popular member of the Fulton Lodge was appointed to his position at the Elks National Convention held in Chicago last July.

As District Deputy Hanlon has made an inspection of all lodges in the district which includes ten lodges in central New York encompassing an area extending from Oswego north to Bondville and east to Little Falls. A report of his findings has been forwarded to National headquarters.

Hanlon has been a leader in many Elks activities. He is a Past Exalted Ruler of Fulton Lodge and for the past eight years has been Chairman of the New York State Youth Activities program. Under Hanlon's guidance that program has been adjudged the best in the United States. Also under Hanlon's supervision, Fulton Lodge has become nationally known for its excellent youth programs.

Joseph A. Fisticick heads the committee on arrangements.

CANCER DRESSINGS

Senior Citizens will make cancer dressings, Wednesday, Jan. 16 at 1 p.m. in their rooms. Anyone having clean white material is asked to contact Mrs. Thomas Nichols, Mrs. Mary Hall or Mrs. Fred Meldrum.

200 to Hear Towlson on New Routes 57 and 48

Reservations are being made for the luncheon to give citizens a "new look" at the new Fulton-Syracuse east side and west side highway plans, when, it is learned, have been considerably further advanced in the past year. Presenting the advanced plans and inviting any citizen cooperation in "smoothing the planning further" via any information that can be brought out at the luncheon will be New York State District Engineer Earle E. Towlson, the man who is to "get the job done." The luncheon is at 12:15 p.m. Friday, Jan. 25.

The report of the Fulton chamber of commerce dining room, where the luncheon will be held, is 200 places and the sale of ticket reservations will end at 200, the committee says. More than half of those have already been taken, it was learned last night.

In addition to city, village and county officials and the representatives at the State hotel at Albany, there will be interested parties here from neighboring counties. They, too, are following with closest scrutiny the unfolding of the entire wonderful new highway system now taking shape for Central New York of which the improved access to Oswego County communities is an important part.

Frank Ash of Fulton has arranged the citizens luncheon to hear Mr. Towlson. It is announced that the luncheon program will be a fast-moving affair, although time will be given Mr. Towlson to say all that Fultonians hope to hear now, and time will be granted for all earnest questions from the floor, it is announced.

A citizens' committee from whom tickets and further information may be obtained has been appointed as follows: F. Clifford Heath, chairman; Bruner W. Fox, Sherman M. Drohan, James Gillis, John W. Markert, William B. Mason, president; William B. Mason, president; Seymour J. Prowda and Claude L. Webb.

The center for telephone ticket reservations is the Fulton chamber of commerce offices, 582-4231.

Giant March of Dimes Bake Sale At Easy Bargain

A bake sale for the benefit of the March of Dimes will be held Friday at the Easy Bargain Center, Mrs. Moxey DeBenedictis, chairman of the March of Dimes bake sale, has announced that three bake sales to celebrate the 25th birthday anniversary of the March of Dimes will be held on three successive Fridays in January.

On Jan. 18, the bake sale will be held at Woolworth's and again on Jan. 25, at Easy Bargain Center. The baked items for sale will be donated by various organizations throughout the city, namely, the Women's Club of the Immaculate Conception Church, the Triangles Glee Club, the wives of Lions Club members, and the Chamber of Commerce Women's Club.

All proceeds will benefit the March of Dimes.

Business Good at P. O. Despite Short Postage Snafu

Assistant Postmaster Wald Chaffee strongly urged residents to be sure to place the correct postage rate on their mail to avoid the snafu that went into effect Monday. According to Chaffee, many letters and cards are being returned to the sender because of insufficient postage. The difference between the new and old rates must be collected from the addressee, the letter returned to the sender causing considerable delay. Rates now in effect for first class letters are five cents a piece and eight cents a piece for air mail. First class post cards are now five cents and six mail cards six cents. Sale of the new stamps, which began Monday, was considered good. Sprague and other post office employees were busy at the counter.

Chamber Plans Reorganization

New Appointments

Shown attending the initial meeting of the Fulton Common Council for 1963 last Thursday are two new city officials. Appointed by Mayor Rowlee last week were, left, Leon King as city engineer and Wil-lace Auser as city attorney. They took over posts vacated by Harry Andrews, who retired, and James Fannin, who resigned to become city judge.

A major reorganization of Fulton's Chamber of Commerce, which promises to lead to its becoming a more important voice in community affairs, has been announced by newly re-elected President William B. Mason.

Mr. Mason said the reorganization plan was adopted at a recent meeting of the Board of Directors of the Chamber and is designed to increase activity in both the civic and social aspects of the organization.

"The Chamber has come to be regarded mainly as a knife and fork club and the board feels that the time has come to channel more of our efforts into the direction of true Chamber of Commerce activities," said Mason.

He also released the newly-elected slate of officers of the Chamber. They are: Thomas J. Johnston, Jr., first vice president; Seymour Prowda, second vice president in charge of civic activities; John Demen-koff, second vice president in charge of social activities; Bernard Samuels, treasurer, and John C. Myers, executive secretary.

New committees formed and active are the Finance and Budget Committee headed by William Turnbridge, chairman, with H. C. Estabrook, Bruner Fox and James Gillis, associates.

Additional committees will be announced in the near future. Mason said that the Board of Directors hope to develop a program of increased activity in such areas as industrial expansion, community betterment and retail trade promotion. The Chamber president said that the program will be accomplished only if cooperation is received from members and other civic-minded citizens. He said that details of the reorganization plan will be released as soon as they are finalized.

FLYS TO FLORIDA Mrs. Fred Carter left by plane this week to spend a month's vacation with friends in Florida.

School of Missions to Be Conducted at State Street Church on Sunday

Boy Scouts Form Battle Lines For City Political Elections

The city is faced with what promises to be a vigorous political campaign. Junior grade celebrate National Scout Week that is as Fulton's Boy Scouts (Feb. 7 through 13) with their annual "Scout-in-Office" program.

Morgan is chairman of the caucus.

Nominations by each of the two parties will be for the offices of mayor, city judge and three county supervisors. The candidates are expected to campaign vigorously in Scout circles, as they have in the past. The election is scheduled for Saturday, Jan. 26. After the election is held and the results announced, the elected mayor and the aldermen representing each troop will meet to appoint other Scouts to 22 remaining offices.

The actual Scout-in-Office program will take place on Friday, Feb. 8, when Mayor Rowlee and other city officials will greet their Scout replacements for the remainder of the year.

THIS IS FULTON

A lady acquaintance of ours stopped in on S-First St. this week and said that every time she calls a certain cab company during a snow storm, the telephone is always busy. She says if we don't say something about it she is going to write a letter to the Editor about it. She says she hopes the cab company doesn't take the receiver off the line just because it happens to be so busy. We refuse to get embroiled.

One of the curious facts of life is the way the telephone has developed into a tyrant in the American way of life. This has nothing to do with the efficiency of the private telephone system or the cab companies of the world.

The disturbing thing is that our communal godsend is an annoyance in some ways, too. We try to take a Saturday afternoon nap and the telephone rings.

We are asleep at night and some juvenile blocks away keeps calling the children, so we transfer the phone into their bedroom. Now somebody keeps calling us at night and we grope our way into their bedroom to answer the call. We will never, of course, put a phone in the bedroom.

Phones multiply misinformation. A man can stub a toe and put that information through a five woman circuit, and in five consecutive phone calls he's ending up at the Mayo Clinic.

Phones create a personal status significance around here. A one-buzzer conversation between women means one is trying to sell a ticket to the other; a three-buzzer conversation means that they're good friends, or seem to be.

The fault is not with the telephone or the telephone company. The fault is with our use of it. Like the proverb about the horseman — whether the rider is riding the horse or the horse is riding the rider. It is the same with the telephone — are you using the telephone to fit in with your pattern of life or is it fitting you into its pattern.

Thanks Fulton -- You Broke B'mobile Record
