Veterans receive increase benefit checks

Veterans receiving compensation for service-incurred injuries will receive an increase in their checks, according to James N. Lewis, State Veteran Counselor. The increase will average about fifteen percent.

The recently approved increase will be reflected in the checks eligible veterans receive on or about July first.

The counselor cited the following examples; a veteran rated as ten percent disabled and currently receiving $28 monthly will be increased to $32 monthly while the payment for a sixty percent rating increases from $179 to $211 monthly.

Compensation, the counselor explained, is payable to veterans who suffered wounds, injuries or diseases while serving with the armed forces, the amount being determined by the severity of the disability.

Veterans rated at fifty percent or more disabled also receive dependency allowances in direct proportion to their disability. These allowances have also been increased.

The counselor urged veterans receiving compensation to contact the local counseling center of the New York State Division of Veterans' Affairs.
