New Sleeves for Old
If your favorite wool dress is wearing out around the sleeves, here's a suggestion which will not only prolong its life, but also give it that new look. Take out the old sleeves and put in new ones, using the popular square armholes. These are set in on the dress a bit, and will cut out the weak, thin part of the garment.

Citrus Products Plentiful
With a good supply of citrus fruits rolling to market from Florida, Texas and California, and the supply of other fresh fruits very limited, now is the time to use oranges, grapefruit and tangerines liberally.

Bond Sales to Continue
United States Savings Bonds will continue on sale through most of the issuing agents who sold War bonds and Victory bonds during the past few years, according to the treasury department. There will be no organized bond drives, however. Savings bonds will be on sale at all times and will be exactly the same as the popular Series E war bond and the Series F and G Savings bonds available during the war.

Christians Called Atheists
Early Christians were called atheists by their enemies because they did not believe in the heathen gods.

FREE ENTERPRISE PROVEN BY AMERICAN PRODUCTION
Free enterprise made it possible for America to feed and equip her own people and her own armed forces, while fighting a war on two fronts, and also provide much of the food and equipment needed by her allies, including Russia.

THEORIES ARE NICE to think about but practical facts are hard to avoid.
FRANCE CONTROLS the Saar and there is coal there for the digging.

THE GLAMOUR of the big city bright lights; unusual things to do, places to go and things to see, would seem to offer inducements to those from the rural places. They do for a few days. Along with such attractions there is an intense loneliness. There soon comes a longing for the simplicity of the country home hearthstone, the cheery voice of a friend and neighbor with a kindly greeting. To those who have experienced such things they have an enduring value the glamour of the city cannot provide.

THE outside world is not permitted a free access view of conditions in Russia. Those from the outside who, by permission, get into the country are shown and told only what Marshal Stalin wants them to see and to hear. A limited number of American technicians have been employed in Russian industries. I have seen and talked with a few of these on their return. They do not condemn Russia, or its system of dictatorship government, but it is from them I have learned that "Russia of Today" tells only the theory and not the practice of communism. Without exception these technicians prefer the American way.

THE pioneer tales of early travel along what we know as the Oswego River, tell of a stopping place by the side of a waterfall. The Indians from the land of the Iroquois, skimmed over the rapids on their northward trek. The Jesuits and then the traders on their way from the lands at the north stopped at the waterfalls, carried their canoes, their furs, their food around the falls to the higher land above.

Succeeding years brought more and more traffic along the river. More and more people came to live by the side of the waterfalls. There was work to do caring for the boats; warehouses were built. Shops came and mills.

The canal was projected - new dams were built - and bridges spanned the river. America was growing...

A young engineer named Robert Fulton came back from England in the year 1806 to invent and build the first steam boat, "The Clermont". The world of transportation was revolutionized.

Twenty years after Robert Fulton died, a crisis arose in the village by the waterfalls. A new post office was established in 1835. A new name had to be found - a name that would bespeak progress - a name that all would know had to do with transportation - with trade - with progress.

Thus, it was that the village by the waterfalls, where so many had stopped on their water-borne journey - should be given the name of Fulton - the name of Robert Fulton - a name that has come through many generations - the name of a great American city - a good place in which to work, live and to prosper.

RUSSIA OF TODAY MUST BE READ AS PROPAGANDA
I HAVE NOT MADE a practice of answering criticism or commendations through this column. I do not intend to do that in the future.

There are 147 chapters of this honor society in the United States, with a membership of over 50,000. It is doubly an honor for the young ladies to attend since this will be the first meeting since the war emergency and they will be able to associate with girls representing all the states.

Miss Shirley Remington is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Max Remington of 366 South Fifth street, and a 1942 graduate of Fulton High school. She is a junior at the teachers college and secretary of the Epsilon Omega chapter of Kappa Delta Pi.

Miss Margaret Reynolds is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest F. Reynolds of the east river road, north, and a graduate of Fulton High school in 1942. She is a senior at the Oswego State Teachers college and is president of the Epsilon Omega chapter of Kappa Delta Pi.

There will be more pork than any other meat during the next few months, the American Meat Institute reports.

Beef, too, will be in better supply, especially the less demanded cuts. This means more beef for stew, pot pies, hamburger, meat loaf and chili con carne.

Veal and lamb will be in somewhat smaller supply. Lamb supplies will drop off gradually until late spring when the new crop will come in, the institute predicts.

There'll be somewhat less veal and lamb this year than last, but the decrease will be more than offset by the increase in beef and pork.
