Freedom of speech is
Oct. 21 topic

A Syracuse television newsman will be among the panelists on hand for the public discussion of "Freedom of Speech: Where to Draw the Line," the final forum in this year's series of National Issues Forums in Oswego.

The forum will be at 7:30 p.m. on Oct. 21 in Room 107 of Lanigan Hall at SUNY at Oswego.

Dave Bullard, a reporter and producer with WTVH Channel 5 news in Syracuse, has agreed to help guide the discussion, which will consider whether Americans' freedom of speech should be more or less restricted than it now is.

Freedom of the press, the "Fairness Doctrine" of the Federal Communications Commission, pornography, censorship of textbooks and First Amendment questions raised during the recent Judge Robert Bork hearing are among the facets of the issue that are expected to come up during the Wednesday evening forum.

At least two other panelists remain to be selected for the forum, in which local citizens will be urged to express their views.

The forum will begin with the screening of a videotape outlining the issue of freedom of speech, and then the people attending will split up into small groups to discuss their own ideas.

At 8 p.m. the group will reassemble and the forum will go on the air at WRVO FM90, when the panel will field questions and comments from the radio and live audience.

Oswego's National Issues Forums, now in their fifth year, are part of a non-partisan nationwide network of public meetings on vital domestic policy issues. After the series of fall forums held in hundreds of communities across the nation, opinions expressed at the grassroots level are communicated to national policy makers by means of questionnaires and national conferences.

Booklets framing the issues are available in advance of the forums at the Division of Continuing Education, Room 610 of Calkin Hall at the SUNY College at Oswego. For information, call 341-2270.
