

Grand Opening Held at Book Store

HIKING THROUGH

THE BEAUTIFUL

An estimated 30 million regular hikers use the nation's present 280,000 miles of trails, but it's far from a sufficient amount.

To call attention to the trail shortage, thousands of hikers will take to their feet this year, says Jim Kern, president of the American Hiking Society (AHS). They will participate in a 14-month, 4,000-mile HikaNation program.

The hike is intended to encourage legislation now before Congress that would add a number of hiking trails to the present federal system.

Sponsors of the transcontinental journey are the American Hiking Society, the U.S. Department of Interior, and the makers of Postum instant grain beverage.

The nation's capital is the final destination of a troupe of about 60, who intend to make the entire cross-country journey. Along the way, they'll be joined by well-wishers from local hiking clubs and other walking fans, as HikaNation cuts a path through their native states. Nearly 8,000 joined HikaNation at its San Francisco send-off last spring.

Those interested in joining for a day, weekend or longer, should write HikaNation, 18600 S.W. 157th Ave., Miami, Florida 11387, or call 305-251-0484.
