

SPORTITORIAL

By NAVARAC.

Four more days from now the Dallas Cowboys, the Cinderella team of the National Football Conference of the NFL, will meet their mean "stepmother" in the persons of the Pittsburgh Steelers, and by 4 p.m. E.S.T., they will most likely be heading back to Texas in the form of "pumpkins."

No one can doubt the Staubach-led Cowboys looked like champions two Sundays ago in winning the conference title. But the Texans have resembled champions a couple other times during the season; and another but—but not against the awesome giants from Steel City. Joe Greene and his fellow linemen, Jack Ham and his linebacking crew and Mel Blount & Co. in the secondary will have to be sunstruck in Miami before the Dallas offense is allowed to shift into even second gear.

So, unless Quarterback Terry Bradshaw and Fullback Franco Harris get hurt early or are by some miraculous deed held motionless, the Steelers should return to Pennsylvania with their second straight Super Bowl trophy; and a box of Havana cigars for owner Art Rooney to boot.

Navarac the Greek makes Pittsburgh a 14-point favorite; and we think that's being conservative.

He's a real sport who almost gets killed by an aimlessly (or aimfully) thrown whiskey bottle and jokes about it later. Armen Terzian, the field judge struck on the forehead by a whiskey bottle at the end of the Dallas-Minnesota game commented a few days ago: "They told me later it was a lousy brand of whiskey, too."

Locally, hockey fans are in for a treat Jan. 24 and they won't have to travel to the Onondaga County War Memorial for it. The Fulton Falcons, sponsored by Rowlee Construction, will host an all-star Canadian team from the Indian Reservation at 9:30 p.m. Saturday, Jan. 24, at the Fulton Recreation Center at Recreation Park. The Falcons, an all-star aggregation themselves, represent several teams from the Oswego County Hockey League. Sherm Brant, a transplanted Canadian, has arranged the match. It's a return engagement of a previous meeting between the two teams in Canada.

Fulton Softball official Don Smith has informed us that a limited number of openings are still available for teams wishing to enter the new softball league in Fulton for the upcoming season. Games will be played at Kiwanis field.

As part of the program, according to Smith, an over-35 league of 6 teams is also being planned with two teams already having entered. Four more are needed.

Present plans call for two 7-team slow-pitch leagues and the 6-team (over 35) league with four games each night. Further information may be obtained by calling Don Smith at 593-3310.
