FERRYBOAT GOES OVER HIGH DAM

Three Women Are Carried to Their Death in Hudson, Near Troy.

A heavy fog which obscured the river was responsible for the accident. The women, a mother and her two children, were sent to a ferryboat to cross the river from Vermont to the Hudson, when the ferryboat struck the dam and sank. The bodies of the mother and one child were recovered, but the fate of the second child is unknown. The crew of the ferryboat claimed that the accident was due to the heavy fog, and that they were unable to see the dam.
