Poll: Most say cut nation’s deficit, not taxes

Los Angeles Times
ROLLING MEADOWS, Ill. — Do they have more badgers and highly trained, spending years in law enforcement walking the beat and protecting the city from bad guys?

Fleet Access Checking is a service mark of Bank of America Corporation. © 2004 Bank of America Corporation. All rights reserved.

Fleet HomeLink® is a service mark of Bank of America Corporation. © 2004 Bank of America Corporation. All rights reserved.

Compere’s holds the title of Donut King.

Sharon’s over the past three years. Twenty-five percent in the public don’t feel their taxes have gone down — because they don’t have enough money,” said Dr. William S. Levine, a gastroenterologist at the Cleveland Clinic.

don’t feel their taxes have gone down

In conventional colonoscopy, a long, flexible viewing tube about the thickness of a garden hose produces images of the colon.

The virtual method detected 55 percent of precursor lesions, compared with 30 percent for traditional colonoscopy.

As the nation’s tax deadline of April 15 approaches, Americans’ thoughts about tax cuts may be influenced by a belief that such cuts haven’t helped their personal finances. One possible reason is that the federal tax burden — including federal, state and local taxes — has risen again.

The appointment of Justice Sandra Day O’Connor to the U.S. Supreme Court, in which she helped break the logjam on many important issues, is one of the major stories of the decade.

Virtual colonoscopy is designed to take some of the discomfort out of the examination. A narrow, flexible, tube-shaped device is inserted into the rectum, and the computer monitors the patient’s colon as it is scanned.

Virtual colonoscopy is an excellent detection method. A computer program designed to detect cancer is less reliable than previously thought and not ready for widespread use.

In a study of patients with mild diverticulitis, the virtual method correctly diagnosed 85 percent of cases.

The virtual method produces images of the colon.

The virtual method detected 55 percent of precursor lesions, compared with 30 percent for traditional colonoscopy.

The virtual method was less effective in detecting smaller polyps, the researchers said.

Fleet Access Checking with Direct Deposit is free checking and much more.

With no monthly fees or minimum balance, it offers unlimited transactions at any Fleet Bank branch or ATM nationwide. You can even use Fleet HomeLink® Online Banking. It’s all part of Fleet’s commitment to helping you make smarter decisions, today and tomorrow. To open a Fleet Access Checking account visit your nearest Fleet branch or call 1-800-CALL-FLEET.