FOR SALE, Montezuma Village lots.

THE lots in the village of Montezuma are now offered for sale, being surveyed of different sizes to suit purchasers. The natural advantages of this village are supposed to be greater than any village possesses on the Canal from Lake Erie to Utica. It must be the place of deposit for the produce from the Cayuga lake, the Seneca lake, the Cassate daigua lake and outlet, Mud creek, and the Seneca river. Its inexhaustible sources of salt water, of a far superior quality to that at Salina, will always render it a place of importance for the manufacture of that necessary and useful article. Its clay for making the different kinds of ware has been found to be excellent; and it is expected that the abundant supply of water to the Canal will afford a sufficiency of waste water for mill-seats, and all other necessary hydraulic purposes. The bridge over the Seneca river is now building, connecting it with a Turapike road to the east and west, which, with the rapid progress of the settlement in its immediate vicinity, must inevitably render it a place of the first importance in the western country. An opportunity is now afforded for persons to purchase who wish to settle in a growing village, or to vest their money in the purchase of property which will rapidly increase in value. More than fifty village lots have been sold this spring, and purchasers who wish to have a choice of standards are requested to call soon.

Enquire of Comfort Tyler and Peter Clarke, Esq's. at Montezuma, where a map of the village may be seen, or of Joseph Otis, James Davitt or James B. Clarke, New-York, committee for said company.

POETRY.

The following lines from Shakespeare, are often scribbled on Inn windows.

Who'er has travell'd life's dull round,
Whose'er his steps may have been,
Must sigh to think he still has found
The warmest welcome at an Inn.

The following parody is written beneath the above lines, at an Inn in the west.

Who'er has travell'd much about,
Must very often sigh to think,
That every Inn will turn him out,
Unless he's plenty of the chink.

MISCELLANY.

From a London paper.

AN UGLY WIFE OR A GIBBET.

The following amusing story is copied from a manuscript sheet of the Border Antiquities of England & Scotland, which is now in progress of publication, and to which Walter Scott is a contributor.

In the 17th century, the greater part of the property lying upon the river Etriche, belonging to Scott of Harden, who made his principal residence at Oakwood-Tower, a border house of strength still remaining upon that river, William Scott, (afterwards Sir William) son of the head of this family, undertook an expedition against the Murrays of Elhick, whose property lay at a few miles distant. He found his enemy upon their guard, was defeated and made prisoner, in the act of driving off the cattle, which he had collected for that purpose. Our hero, Sir Gideon Murray, conducted his prisoner to the castle, where his lady received him with congratulations upon his victory, and enquiries concerning the fate to which he had destined his prisoner:—"The gallows," answered Sir Gideon, for he is said already to have acquired the honor of knighthood, "to the gallows with the murderer."—"Hout ha, Sir Gideon," answered the considerate matron in her vernacular idiom, "would you hang the windsome young Laird of Harden, when ye have three ill-favored daughters to marry?"—"Right, right," answered the baron, who caught at the idea, "he shall either marry our daughter, mickle-mouthed Meg, or strap for it." Upon this alternative being proposed to the prisoner, he, upon the first offer, stoutly preferred the gibbet to mickle-mouthed Meg, for such was the nickname of the young lady, whose real name was Agnes. But at length, when he was literally led forth to execution, and saw no other chance of escape, he retracted his ungallant resolution, and preferred the typical noose of matrimony to the literal cord of hemp. Such is the tradition established in both families, and often peculiarly referred to on the borders. It may be necessary to add that mickle-mouthed Meg and her husband were a very happy pair, and had a very large family, to each of whom Sir William Scott bequeathed good estates, besides reserving a large one for the eldest.

HORRIBLE PHENOMENA! GALVANISM.

On the 4th of Nov. last, various galvanic experiments were made on the body of the murderer Clydsdale, by Dr. Ure, with a voltaic battery of 270 pairs of 4-inch plates. The results were truly appalling. On moving the rod from the hip to the heel, the knee being previously bent, the leg was thrown out with such violence, as nearly to overturn one of the assistants, who in vain attempted to prevent its extension!—In the 2d experiment the rod was applied to the phrenic nerve in the neck, when laborious breathing instantly commenced; the chest heaved and fell; the belly was protruded and collapsed, with the relaxing and retiring diaphragm; and it is thought, that but from the complete evacuation of the blood, pulsation might have occurred! In the 3d experiment, the supraorbital nerve was touched, when every muscle in the murderer's face "was thrown into fearful action." The scene was hideous—several of the spectators left the room, and one gentleman actually fainted from terror or sickness! In the fourth experiment the transmitting of the electrical power from the spinal marrow to the solar nerve, at the elbow, the fingers were instantly put in motion, and the agitation of the arm was so great that the specer seemed to point at the different spectators, some of whom tho't it had come to life! Dr. Ure appears to be of opinion, that had not incisions been made in the blood vessels of the neck, and the spinal marrow been incrated, the criminal might have been restored to life.—
