Local and Miscellaneous.

☞ The CARRIERS of this paper are not permitted to SELL or GIVE AWAY copies of the AMERICAN. We are compelled to give this notice because complaints are frequent of the non-receipt of the paper by subscribers, and we are led to believe the Carriers sometimes sell papers which were destined for subscribers. We will take it as a great favor if any selling of papers on the part of the Carrier is reported to us, as every such sale is contrary to our orders and a real loss to us. Single copies of the AMERICAN may be procured at the Counting Room.

☞ Fast men, like fast rivers, are generally the shallowest.

☞ The individual who "stood upon his own responsibility" is to be indicted for infanticide.

SMALL POX.—A gentleman from Syracuse informs us that the small pox is prevailing to a considerable extent in that city.

☞ The Utica Herald announces the appearance of counterfeit fives on the Oneida Bank of Utica, taken from the genuine by photographic process.

☞ Thomas Connolly is delivering his "Ups and Downs of life" before the good Citizens of Oswego.

☞ A roasted onion, bound on the wrist, over the pulse, will relieve the most inveterate toothache in a few minutes. The remedy is a simple one and is worth trying—remember it. So says the Syracuse Journal.

☞ We understand that a petition is in circulation and that a large number of names are attached thereto, urging that another one of our wealthy and well-to-do citizens way be appointed keeper at the North gate of the Prison. This candidate don't "mind the pay," but he wants a place where he can see folks, and be "kind and sociable like."

EDITOR IN LUCK.—Our friend and cotemporary, R. P. Stow, Local Editor of the Advertiser, we learn, has received the appointment of Keeper in the Prison, at the hands of the Inspectors. This is a judicious appointment, and although we regret his retirement from the fraternity, we cannot but wish him the greatest success in his new vocation.

ACCIDENT.—A young man named James McBurney, employed in the Red Mill, met with a severe accident on Monday last.—While standing on a ladder, oiling some part of the machinery, his coat sleeve was caught between two cog-wheels, but fortunately he had the presence of mind to turn his hand in such a manner that only his thumb was drawn between the wheels. His thumb was completely smashed nearly to the wrist, and he narrowly escaped losing the whole of his right hand.—Jordan Transcript.

LECTURES IN THE UNIVERSALIST CHURCH. To-morrow evening, Rev. Mr. Lee, will give the first of a course of Sunday evening Lectures, on Christian Characters. 1st Lecture, Theobold Mathew, the Christian Priest; 2d Baron Cuvier, the Christian Philosopher; 3d John Howard, the Christian Philanthropist; 4th Roger Williams, the Christian Planter; 5th William Wardsworth, the Christian Poet. Service in the afternoon as usual; no service in the morning.

"SIC TRANSIT GLORIA."—Samuel F. Harris, a live American, was appointed a Guard on the Prison by the Board of Inspectors last Tuesday afternoon. On the morning following, Harris was on hand for duty and while an Officer was conducting him to his post, a Messenger overtook them, and requested Mr. Harris' immediate appearance at the Hall. On arriving there he was politely informed that his services would no longer be required. His "Sam" proclivites had leaked out and his cakes consequently were "turned to dough." Glory enough for one day, thought Sam, so pocketing his discharge he left the Prison and sought to get an honest and respectable living in another quarter than in the employ of the State.

HOOP-DE-DOODLE-DO.—A PARODY:—

If a man would pass a woman
Going through the street,
Give all the sidewalk to the woman
When you chance to meet.

Going to the church, poor body—
Going to the church,
She couldn't get up through the aisle,
But stayed out on the porch,

Lady's skirts too big, poor lady—
Can't get in the seat;
She'll have to change her petticoat,
Or stay out in the street.

If a man be by a woman
Crowded from the walk;
If the man should "cuss" the woman,
Need the people talk?

Every man should have a sweetheart,
None, they'll say, has he:
And yet these precious coal-ots all
Are not alike to me.

Among the pile there is a maid
I "dearly love myself;"
But what is her circumference,
I'd be ashamed to tell.

RALPH WALDO EMERSON'S LECTURE.—Mr. Emerson is a perfect nondescript. Men have long been hesitating whether to regard him as an Infidel or Christian, a Conservative or Reformer, a Philosopher or Fanatic, a Scholar or Pedant. He has been called at different times all of these, and as strenuously has he been denied the appellation. He is a man of large erudition, yet no imitator. He is an original thinker, yet makes free use of his vast stores of learning. His mode of perceiving truth, and manner of expressing it, is novel, but he exhibits little creative genius, or great discovery.

Some of the thoughts of his lecture were the indices of the profoundest philosophy, while others were more fanciful than truthful. No one would judge him an eloquent speaker, yet he will draw large audiences.—He is even tedious, but you feel yourself in the presence of a master mind, and cannot fail to be interested. Defects in the tones of voice, in manner of address, such as his, would be insuperable obstacles in the way of popularity, to an ordinary thinker. His hesitancy, his occasionally rapid enunciation, his constrained, awkward action, would proscribe him as a lecturer, if he had not uncommon thoughts, and ideas worth listening to.

The theme of the lecture last evening, was, "The Elements of Success." He alluded to the defective or one sided view of success in life, which commonly obtained, such as excelling in a particular art, useful or otherwise, for which one has a special appetency; accomplishing some of the objects of living, as wealth, praise or pleasure, while perhaps more is to be attributed to our circumstances or mental constitution, than to an honest endeavor.

The first element of success, he termed self reliance. All progress is by development. The natural tendency is to imitation. We import our thoughts and science, as we do customs and the fashions. And when that is returned to society which has been received from it, it is generally diluted from the original.

The difference between primary and secondary men is, in the former, personal traits are developed, in the latter, they are molded, and put on the form of others. Every one has appetencies for superiority in a particular direction. It needs but to keep in our appropriate sphere, and secure self-development, to render success certain. Some men are like the many sided crystal, many exhibit excellencies in various ways, but many fail in trying to be what they are not, and for which they were never designed.

To represent the next element of success, the speaker coined a word for his own use. It was impressionability. It is not so much any single, great talent, as a fine sensibility of nature, that ministers to success. This was illustrated by reference to the capacity of receiving impressions from scenes in nature, associations among men, and representations of beauty, whether in nature or art. The ripe scholar, after toiling long in science or literature, will see more law, more music and harmony in nature, than he has found in books. Every deep man will find another deep man in the community, and the shallow minded can meet anywhere a Falstaff, or the village buffoon. The sublimest poetry is the language of the passions, but it is no better than the dull proverb, if there is no "music in the soul" of him who reads it.

The last mentioned element of success, he said, consists in the positiveness of human character. It is that which will not allow the individual to be satisfied with being simply the counterpart of something else.—It is that in the mental habitudes which does not rest in investigating a theory, and adopting or rejecting it, but pushes it beyond its present boundaries, and affirms of truth that lies beyond it. It is by the discovery and affirmation of truths and principles hereafter to be tested, that progress is made.

The delivery of the lecture to which we have referred, occupied an hour and a half. A portion of the audience had become weary, and some we saw "sleeping in church," but most seemed well entertained. There was food for thought in the lecture, and the thoughtful were pleased. There was material enough also for criticism, if any desired closely to examine some views presented, or to apply any of the rules of oratory to the Lecturer.

WILD CHERRY AT THE SOUTH.

Our Agent at Athens, Georgia, sends us the following Letter, with permission to publish:—

ATHENS, August 24.

Dear Sir: Having been afflicted for more than ten months with Chronic Inflammation of the Lungs, at times very severely, and having adopted many medicines without any but temporary relief, I purchased about three bottles of Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry, from the effects of which I obtained more relief than from all the medicines I had ever taken for that distressing disorder. I have, by the repeated use of this valuable Balsam, been more free from pressure for breath and oppression on the Lungs, than I had anticipated, and, indeed, conceive that I will be cured, by continuing its use, of this most disheartening malady. I do most cheerfully tender you this acknowledgment which you will use as your judgment dictates.

RELIEF AND HEALTH TO YOUR INFANTS

We have put up and sold this article for over ten years, and can say, in confidence and truth, of it, what we have never been able to say of any other article of medicine—NEVER HAS IT FAILED, IN A SINGLE INSTANCE TO EFFECT A CURE, when timely used. Never did we know an instance of dissatisfaction by any one who used it. On the contrary, all are delighted with its operations, and speak in terms of the highest commendation of its magic effects and medical virtues. We speak, in this matter, "what we do know," after ten years' experience, and pledge our reputation for the fulfilment of what we here declare.—In almost every case where the infant is suffering from pain and exhaustion, relief will be found in fifteen or twenty minutes after the syrup is administered.

This valuable preparation is the prescription of one of the MOST EXPERIENCED and SKILLFUL NURSES in New England, and has been used with never failing success, in

THOUSAND OF CASES,

It not only relieves the child from pain, but invigorates the stomach and bowels, corrects the acidity and gives tone and energy to the whole system. It will almost instantly relieve GRIPING IN THE BOWELS, AND WIND CHOLIC and overcome convulsions, which, if not speedily remedied, end in death. We believe it the best and surest remedy in the world, in all cases of dysentery and Diarrhea in children, whether it arises from teething, or from other causes. We would say to every mother who has a child suffering from any of the foregoing complaints—Do not let your own prejudices, nor the prejudices of others, stand between your suffering child and the relief that will be SURE—yes, ABSOLUTELY SURE—to follow the use of this medicine. If timely used. Full directions for using will accompany each bottle. None genuine unless the fac-simile of CURTIS & PERKINS, New York, is on the outside of the wrapper. Price 25 cts. per bottle.
