

PROCRUSTINATION.

"Go thy way for this time: when I have a convenient season I will call for thee."

Alone he sat, and wept. That very night The Ambassador of God, with earnest zeal Of eloquence had warned him to repent, And like the Roman at Drusilla's side, Hearing the truth he trembled. Conscience wrought.

Yet in all our d. The struggle shook him sore. The dim lamp waned—the hour of midnight told: Prayer sought for entrance, but the heart had closed Its diamond valve. He threw him on his couch, And bade the Spirit of his God depart. And there was war within him, and he sigh'd— "Depart not utterly, tho' Blessed One! Return when youth is past, and make my soul Forever thine."

—With kindling bow he trod The haunts of pleasure, while the viol's voice, And Beauty's smile, his joyous pulses woke. To Love he knelt, and on his brow she hung Her freshest myrtle wreath. For gold he sought, And winged Wealth indulg'd him, till the world Pronounced him happy. Manhood's vigorous prime Swell'd to its climax, and his busy days And restless nights rove, like a tide away. Care struck deep root around him, and each shoot Still striking earthward, like the Indian tree Shot out with woven shades the eye of Heaven. When lo! a message from the Crucifix— "Look unto me, and live." Paving, he spake Of avarice and pride, and want of time, And duty to his children, and besought A longer space to do the work of Heaven. —God spake again, when Age had shed its snow: On his wan temples, and the palsied hand Struck from gold-gathering. But the night chain Of Habit bound him, and he still implored A MORE CONVENIENT SEASON.

See, my step Is firm and free—my unquench'd eye delights To view the pleasant world, and life with me May last for many years. In the calm hour Of lingering sickness, I can better fit For vast Eternity."

—Disease approach'd, And Reason fled. The maniac strove with Death And grappled like a fiend, with shrieks and cries, Till darkness snote his eye-balls, and thick ice Clos'd in around his heartstrings. The poor clay Lay vanquish'd and distorted. But the soul— THE SOUL, WHOSE PROMIS'D SEASON NEVER CAME To hearken to his Maker's call, had gone To weigh His sufferance with its own abuse, And hide the audit.

Mrs. Sigourney. Religious Intelligence.

RESIGNATION.

Forsake me not, O Lord, my God—be thou not far from me. I could not bear this lot of mine, I could not bear it but for thee, And for that sudden thought, of trust— Which thou didst bear on earth for me. O God! from thine eternal throne, Look down, and leave me not alone.

Show me that pale, that bleeding brow, Bright circled—not with crown of gold; Tell me that thro' who suffer now, Shall share with those joys untold— Feel thy rich love—partake thy grace, And know that, see thee, face to face.

Teach me to embrace this living fate (With patience, Son of God, for Thee: Oh! leave me not desolate: My only solace must be thou—) Then, who hast promised to bestow A balm, for 'o'en life's bitterest woe.

Alas! I shan't I could not bear, Did I not rest on thee: And that upon the anguish'd prayer: "Father remove this cup from me!" It could not be—each drop was Thine, And may thy will be done to mine.

NEW-YORK SUNDAY SCHOOL UNION.

The annual meeting was held in the Chatham-st. Chapel yesterday morning, at 11 o'clock. This Society is distinct from the N. York Sunday School Union, (the latter being an Auxiliary of the former), and has for its object "to perfect the Sunday School system in the twelve Southern-most counties of the State." The facts presented in the Report, a part of which was read at the meeting are highly encouraging. The whole number of Schools within the limits specified, which are connected with this Union, is 276, exclusive of those in the city. Number of teachers 2,228; Scholars about 14,000; volumes in the Libraries, 13,500. It should be observed that within the same limits there are various Schools connected with the Dutch, Episcopal and Methodist Unions. During the past year, 225 of the teachers, and 215 scholars have made a profession of religion.—Journal of Com.

NEW-YORK SUNDAY SCHOOL UNION.

The annual meeting was held at the Chatham-st. Chapel last evening, at half past 7 o'clock. This society is limited in its field of operations, to the city and county of New-York. It embraces 66 schools, upwards of 1800 teachers, and 11,293 scholars. The number of volumes in the libraries is 15,049. Two of the schools have been gathered from the pupils of the Five Points. There are also schools in the Alms House and Female Penitentiary. At the Five Points, or in that immediate neighborhood, about 200 children and adults have been brought under the influence of religion by means of Sabbath school instruction. The number of teachers in all the Schools who have made a profession of religion during the past year, and of scholars is 292. After the reading of the Report, the meeting was addressed by Rev. Dr. McAuley, of Philadelphia, T. R. Green, Esq. of New-York, Rev. Mr. B. of New-York, and a delegate of the Massachusetts Sabbath School Union, and Rev. Doctor Skinner, of Philadelphia, who appeared as a delegate from the American Sabbath School Union. The meeting broke up at a quarter past 10.—Id.

A DRUNKARD ATTEMPTING TO POLLUTE HIS OFFENSE.

said to his child, a boy of only three years old, "We all have our failings; I have my failings, your mother has her failings; haven't you Charles?" "Yes sir; but I don't drink brandy."

THE VERSE-A-DAY SYSTEM.

Thursday, May 21.—21. Whom the heaven must receive until the times of restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began.

Friday, May 22.—22. For Moses truly said unto the fathers, A Prophet shall the Lord your God raise up unto you of your brethren, like unto me: him shall ye hear in all things whatsoever he shall say unto you.

Saturday, May 23.—23. And it shall come to pass, that every soul which will not hear that Prophet, shall be destroyed from among the people.

Sunday, May 24.—24. Yes, and all the prophets of the prophets, and of the covenant which God made with our fathers, saying unto Abraham, And in thy seed shall all the kindreds of the earth be blessed.

Tuesday, May 25.—25. Unto you first, God, having raised up his Son Jesus, sent him to bless you, in turning away every one of you from his iniquities.

Wednesday, May 26.—1. And as they spake unto the people, the priests, and the captain of the temple, and the Sadducees, came upon them.

UNION OF HONEST MEN.—It must be conceded by every intelligent and unprejudiced citizen, that the republic of the United States has never, since its origin, been entrusted to the management of a set of men so perfectly inadequate to the duties they have assumed, so miserably weak in all the essential attributes of statesman, and so utterly unprincipled and wicked in their official transactions, as those who now bear sway over the American people. These men came into power by means of gross artifice, and hypocritical profession, on their part; and an unhappy credulity and infatuation on the part of a majority of the people. Their deceptions have now become too manifest longer to impose upon enlightened men; their plodging so glaringly violated, and pretensions so utterly abandoned in practice, have exhibited them to the nation and to the world as false prophets and unfaithful stewards.

The course of conduct pursued by the Administration during the last three years, will leave upon our national annals an ineffaceable stigma. The Jackson dynasty has been distinguished only for incompetency, for imposture, and for rapine. In its anxiety to "reward friends and punish enemies," it has shown itself the engine of a party—not the agent of a whole people. A ferocious eagerness to secure the "spoils of office," and an avaricious desire to maintain political ascendancy, have predominated over every generous feeling of patriotism, and endangered the peace and stability of the Union. An old man, mentally and physically decrepit, at the head of public affairs, surrounded and controlled by a selfish cabal, resolved to make the most of their accidental dominion even at the hazard of uprooting every vital and long cherished institution of the land presents a spectacle which should cause this people to take the alarm. Such a state of things, in existence at this moment—every day increasing in turpitude and peril—and presenting in the future the most dreary images of disaster and disgrace, should arouse all whom it concerns to a consideration of the means which may yet be applied, to save our revered country from impending ruin.

Let every freeman then impress this truth upon his mind: that the demolition of this system of misrule can alone preserve the republic. The leading ignorance and iniquity of this administration are rapidly hurrying our constitution, and all that is dear to us as republicans, towards the abyss of destruction. Upon the instant downfall of the faction now in power, depends the fate of this agitated empire. Another four years reign of Jacksonism will carry us far beyond the landmarks established by our fathers; and posterity robbed of civil freedom, and subject to the consequences of a corrupt government, will ever mark this age with the deepest execration. There is no protection against this threatened extinction of our national being, but in a union of honest men. The political fraud and quackery of the times, can be eradicated through no other means. Those who have uniformly opposed the elevation of Gen. Jackson, and those who have more recently witnessed with disgust and abhorrence the enormities of his executive career, must join their forces for the salvation of the country; or we may bid a long farewell to the noble inheritance bequeathed by the heroes and sages of the revolution.

True, the incontinent and selfish party against whom the HONEST MEN of the land may be arrayed, will cry out "coalition! coalition!" But the employment of this wretched slang will not avail. The day is passed, when all the falsehood once successfully conveyed through this cabalistic cant, might injure the cause of virtue. Those who use it in an odious sense, as applied to the suggested union, must either misapprehend, or willfully pervert the meaning of language. When Massachusetts and Virginia, New-York and Carolina, and the other wide-spread communities, existing prior to the revolution, united to rid the band of oppressors scarcely less tolerable, and certainly less disgraceful than those now inflicted upon this people, the Tories of that day, like those of the present, denounced the confederacy as a "corrupt coalition." The corruption of that day, as of this, can only be measured by its object. Is there "corruption" in any junction of men, though possessing diverse views in matters of inferior moment, when the glorious design of emancipating themselves from tyranny is common to each and every one? The very men who were four years since loud in their clamour respecting "coalition," have lived to give themselves the lie!—Some of them have recently told one of the abused subjects of that imputation, on the floor of Congress, that to him they now looked, as to the only individual who had it in his power to save the Union from dissolution! The staccato cry of "coalition" can frighten no citizen who is well-informed, and righteously disposed.

The crisis is indeed appalling. No man desirous of transmitting liberty, honour, and happiness to succeeding generations, can hesitate to cast aside all personal or local feeling—or refuse to sacrifice on the altar of public good, every private prejudice, that may hinder the grand object of all sincere patriots—the preservation of this last home of freedom! There is, without a question, a vast majority of the people, opposed, in various ways, to the despotism now triumphant. These, unapparently divided among themselves, on points of minor import—and while this division continues, the united minority held together by a common greediness for office and power, are rioting upon the life-blood of the body politic. Let the several classes of opponents of Jackson, then, meet together on ground which they can mutually occupy with like propriety and honour. Let them stand upon the broad ground of

THE COUNTRY. Let them resolve to unite in concert for the glorious purpose of crushing a system of misrule more infamous than enfranchisement man, at any former period of the world's history, has ever tolerated. Let them inquire of each other where is the strong man, by whose might this momentous object may be accomplished? And on this man, as the last hope of a sinking nation, let them UNITE, with one voice, ONE SOUL, ONE FIXED and firm determination to place him in the chair of state at the coming presidential election.—N. Y. Eve. Jour.

BOSTON LITERARY MAGAZINE.—The first number of the above work is this day published. The publication of another Magazine to the list of periodicals is a ready subject for public, and perhaps, by some, be considered as peculiarly for. Numerous, however, as such works are, it is believed by many that there is still an opening for another; and that one, which in its character shall take a middle course between the larger Magazines and the more ephemeral productions of the day, will, if offered upon terms that can be complied with by those of the most limited means, be well received by a large class of readers.

It is with these views that the publication of the BOSTON LITERARY MAGAZINE is undertaken.—The Proprietors and Editors are fully aware of the difficulties attending the commencement of such a work, and the constant exertions necessary to sustain it; and they are prepared to meet them.

The work is edited by an ASSOCIATION OF LITERARY GENTLEMEN, and devoted to subjects interesting to the general reader, which will be treated in such a manner as to be certain and instructive, without interfering with individual preferences in regard to disputed points either in religion or politics. Original Essays, Poetry, and tales; sketches of American Society; Biography; Character; Scientific and literary Intelligence, &c. &c., will find their appropriate place in its pages.

Arrangements have been made which will ensure the publication of the work for at least one year, and the publishers therefore, have no hesitation in respectfully soliciting a share of the public favor.

THE BOSTON LITERARY MAGAZINE will be published on the first of every month. It will be printed on large paper, of a good quality, with new type, and each number will contain 48 pages, large octavo size, making two sheets,—the postage being therefore, one third less than if printed in common octavo.

Persons sending payment for six copies in advance, will be entitled to a seventh copy gratis. Terms.—The price is $2.00 a year in advance, $2.50 in six months, and $3.00 at the end of the year, which will in no case be deviated from.

CLAPP & HULL, Publishers. Boston, May 1, 1832. 184 Washington st.

THE BOSTON MEDICAL AND SURGICAL JOURNAL.—This periodical has for many years enjoyed the favour of the medical profession of New England. It claims the honour of being the first, and still possesses the advantage of being the only weekly publication in the United States devoted exclusively to the interests of the Faculty. It was commenced in the year 1833, and has, under the management of different conductors, with slight alterations in its character, with various success, and the adoption of numerous improvements suggested by long experience, been continued without interruption to the present time.

The object of the Boston Medical and Surgical Journal, is not so much to present the musings of closet philosophers, as to offer facts and observations which are the result of, and will be useful in actual practice. How well this design has been accomplished thus far, is shown by the liberal subscription to the work, and the uniformity with which the thanks of the subscribers have been received with their pay.

The weekly form in which the Journal is published, admits admirably well to the intervals of leisure for reading enjoyed by active practitioners of the Healing Art, and enables the editor to make it the earliest herald, on this side the Atlantic, of newly discovered remedies, of new and enlightened modes of practice, and in fact of all those lights which are shed and shedding so abundantly abroad on the advancing steps of Medical Science.

The original department is also enriched by many communications of rare value; and, under the editorial hand, there is given, weekly, a sketch of whatever of interest is going on in the medical world. A cursory glance at the volumes which have been already published, will fully justify the belief that in practical value, as well as in quantity of matter, the readers of this Journal are amply repaid for the low price at which it is afforded them.

By the general reader, or the more curious inquirer, in medical science, this work will not be found particularly interesting; but to those physicians who are in actual practice, and who seek for such information as will avail them at the bedside of their patients, no Medical Journal, it is believed, be more interesting or more useful. With this persuasion, it is now offered for the still more extended patronage of the American Faculty.

The Medical and Surgical Journal is published every Wednesday, each number containing sixteen large octavo pages, making 832 pages a year. It is also published on the 1st of each month in Monthly Parts, comprising the numbers of the preceding month. These are attached in a neatly printed cover containing the table of contents, medical advertisements, &c. and are promptly forwarded to those subscribers who prefer receiving the work in this manner. The price for either the weekly or monthly series is $3.00 a year in advance, $3.50 if not paid within six months, and $4.00 if not paid within the year.

Subscriptions received by the publishers, CLAPP & HULL, 184 Washington Street, Boston, Massachusetts,—to whom all Communications must be addressed, post-paid.

S. T. PRENTISS, Musician, begs leave to inform the inhabitants of Auburn and vicinity, that he intends to establish himself in the above business, with its various branches, in the Centre Buildings, where he will build to order, Organs of every description, suitable for the parlor or Church of the first quality of tone.

He will also keep PIANO FORTES for sale at factory prices.

From the experience he has had in the business, he hopes to merit the public patronage. N. B. Organs and Piano Fortes repaired and put in complete order at the shortest notice. April 4, 1832. 46ft

THE MONTHLY TRAVELLER, or Spirit of the Periodical Press, is published by Messrs. Badger & Porter, No 63, Court street, Boston, at $2 per year.

PROSPECTUS of a new volume, the first number to be issued on the seventh day of July next. Published weekly.

THE NEW-YORK MIRROR, A repository of polite Literature and the Arts, embellished with splendid Engravings on Steel, Copper, and Wood, and with popular Music, arranged for the Piano-forte, Harp, Guitar, &c. George P. Morris, Theodore S. Fay, Nathl P. Willis, Editors.

The first number of a new year (volume tenth) will be issued on the seventh day of July next. From the commencement of this paper, our humble endeavours have been unceasingly exerted to elevate the character of American periodical literature, and we trust we have not been altogether unsuccessful.

Our columns have been, and will continue to be, principally filled with original matter. Besides the writings of the editors, we are honoured with occasional contributions from a list of nearly two hundred native authors, which embraces many of the most distinguished and highly gifted literary men of the land.

In addition to our foreign correspondence, important sources are open to us for selections. The flattering and general testimonials of writers, scholars, and contemporary journals, on both sides of the Atlantic, warrant us in the assertion that there is no work which gives such valuable equivalents for the amount of subscription, or which possesses more strong and authentic claims to the efficient support of the American people.

Its steady and marked improvement furnishes a satisfactory pledge that its progress, in every department, will continue to keep pace with the increase of its already extensive circulation. We have received the certain and gratifying evidence that it is read and approved by the most intelligent classes throughout the United States.

ENGRAVINGS.—The embellishment for the tenth volume will be of the most costly and beautiful kind, consisting of full and super royal quarto plates, executed expressly for the work by the best artists. Besides this, some three thousand four hundred engravings issued during the year, which, if published separately, would amount to a volume of subscription for the Mirror. As a guarantee for the excellence of this department, it has been placed under the direction of Mr. R. W. Weir.

In addition to the above, there will be published a number of finely executed engravings on wood, also drawn and engraved for the work, and illustrative of curious and interesting subjects.

MUSIC.—Each number of the ensuing volume will contain a popular piece of Music, arranged with accompaniments for the piano-forte, harp, guitar, &c. At the expiration of the year, there will be four complete volumes issued, each of which, if published separately, would amount to a volume of subscription for the Mirror. As a guarantee for the excellence of this department, it has been placed under the direction of Mr. R. W. Weir.
