IS THIS A GOOD TIME FOR A YOUNG MAN TO START FARMING?

We recently asked the Vocational Agriculture teachers of New York State this question. Ninety teachers replied. Over one-half of them said this is a good time. Over one-third qualified their answers so much that it is necessary to put them in the "maybe, if" group. The balance, about 5%, felt conditions are too unfavorable, or too unsettled to warrant a young man starting farming.

We asked these teachers what advice they would give young men who asked this question. Certain specific points of advice appeared many times in the answers. We list these points in order of their importance, as indicated by the frequency of their appearance in the answers:

ADEQUATE CAPITAL AND A GOOD CREDIT RATING appeared most often. Typical comments were: "at least 1/3 down" "stock and machinery paid for" "$5,000 in cash, cattle and machinery" "$30,000 backlog" "must have good credit standing" "no fear of borrowing money to do business on" "get control of necessary capital." This might be summarized by one reply which said, "if capital and credit rating are insufficient, a man would be foolish to try farming."

PROPER PERSONAL QUALIFICATIONS for the young man who wants to be a farmer were rated as next most important. This covers such factors as "good health," "willingness to work hard"—one added, "long hours" "a desire to farm so bad it hurts." These personal qualifications might be summarized as a deep attachment to life on the farm and a willingness to sacrifice for a few years, if necessary, to build a good farm business. All this coupled with sound physical health.

PRACTICAL FARM EXPERIENCE AND TECHNICAL AGRICULTURAL EDUCATION was ranked third. Typical comments were: "have farming skills" "enough education to take advantage of advancing technology" "experience on a successful farm." Education in the technical side of agriculture, and experience in day-to-day management of a farm business should be obtained before the young man launches out on his own.

OTHER FACTORS were listed but less frequently than those above. The importance of the help and cooperation of a good wife was mentioned frequently. "Good soil" "high quality livestock" "productive farm" "well organized business" and necessity of "taking care of military obligations" were mentioned by some.

Whether or not to "start farming now" is never a question that can be answered "yes" or "no." Sometimes are better than others for getting started in farming. But many persons who have waited for the best time are still waiting. We are inclined to agree with the majority of the Voc-Ag teachers that any time is a good time to start farming if a person can meet the three important requirements listed above.

Several replies mentioned the subject of Savings Bonds both as a means for accumulating a down payment, and for building a reserve for protection against unforeseeable emergency costs. We must certainly agree with these replies and feel that the Series E Savings Bond is well suited for both these purposes. P.S. Next month—a similar summary of reports from county bankers on this same question.

 to fit your milk house and your power and water supply
 The G.L.F. Ice Bank Bulk Milk Cooler is compact in size to fit your present milk house with a minimum of change. Its low pouring height is important when you figure how many cans you lift over a period of a year. Attached or remote installation of compressor also adds to the adaptability of the cooler unit to the size of your milk house. Because the compressor is a small, air cooled unit, 1 or 1 1/2 H.P., there is no need for heavy electric power; nor a special water supply. The compressor will heat your milk house, too—keep it above freezing in winter.

Uniform Rules-of-The-Road Law Goes Into Effect July 1

Groundwork is being laid by the State Traffic Commission for standardization of signs, signals and markings on all streets and highways throughout the State to meet requirements of the new uniform rules-of-the-road law which goes into effect next July 1.

Joseph P. Kelly, chairman of the Traffic Commission, said today that "steady progress is being made" toward wholesale revision of the State's manual of signs, signals and markings, which will for the first time apply after July 1 in all cities (except New York), villages, counties and towns of the State.

Goal is a completely uniform system of traffic control devices within the State, generally also matching the devices used in most other states.

Under the new rules of the road law, local municipalities continue to place and maintain traffic control devices on streets and highways under their jurisdiction "as they may deem necessary," but the municipalities will have to follow the State's standards after July 1.

Under present law, the State Traffic Commission merely "recommends" the sign, signal and marking procedures to be followed by localities.

"Many municipalities are already in general conformance with the present State standards," said Lloyd Maeder, director of the State Traffic Commission. "All of them have received the State manual since it was first issued in 1948 with the Commission's recommendation that it be followed. A number of municipalities did so."

"So that the localities can make the transition to the new uniform standards as easily and economically as possible, the law authorizes the continued use of any signs or signals in place, on hand or on order. When they are replaced, however, they will have to conform."

Another way in which the Commission is helping pave the way for the changeover to uniformity is by consultation with committees and individuals representing local government.

Proposed revisions of the State manual are being submitted to these groups and the Commission will consider their suggestions, adopting them in the final manual as far as practicable, Mr. Maeder said. He said present signs will be incorporated in the new manual where they are "acceptable and effectively used."

One of the major innovations in the manual will be provision for a new sign: "Yield Right of Way," which is authorized under the new rules of the road for use throughout the State after July 1. It is already in use in New York City.

The sign will be used at certain intersections, after July 1. In general, it means: Slow down—and stop, if necessary, and yield the right of way to a pedestrian legally crossing the road, or to any vehicle which is in the intersection or so close to it as to be "an immediate hazard."

Although the City of New York the Thruway Authority, park commissions and parkway authorities are not bound by the manual, representatives of these agencies are also being consulted in its revision so as to achieve a maximum of uniformity, Mr. Maeder said.

STRENGTH FOR THESE DAYS
 In Thee, O Lord, do I put my trust: let me never be put to confusion.—(Psalm 71, 1.)
 Those who put their trust in God, completely and without reservation—who say "Thy will, not mine, be done"—are wondrous faith, shall evermore be calm and strong, free from doubt and confusion.

Nearly 12 million children are taking part in the national school lunch program this year.
