Summer Pulpit Guest At St. Luke's—Former Seminarian Now Writing Church History

The board of St. Luke's Evangelical and Reformed Church, Seminary Avenue, has announced that Rev. William J. Hinke, D.D., Ph.D., professor emeritus of the Auburn Theological Seminary faculty, will be in charge of services on Sundays, July 8, 15 and 22, when the pastor, Rev. Dr. Ralph A. Philbrook, will be on vacation. Doctor Hinke will also be available for pastoral services upon appointment, according to announcement.

Doctor Hinke came to Auburn in 1909 to hold the chair in the department of semitic languages and religions, in which capacity he served until 1939 when he became a professor emeritus of Auburn Theological Seminary. In 1906 the University of Pennsylvania honored Doctor Hinke with the doctorate in philosophy. He held the University of Tiffin, O., honored Doctor Hinke in the same year with the doctorate in divinity.

Doctor Hinke has long been active in the Reformed Church in the United States, now merged with the former Evangelical Synod of North America, forming the Evangelical and Reformed Church with which St. Luke's Church is affiliated. Doctor Hinke served as minister in Trinity Church, Allentown, Pa., after which he became a faculty member at Ursinus College. Doctor Hinke, as historian of the Evangelical and Reformed Church, is now engaged in the process of gathering material for a history of the Evangelical and Reformed Church. Doctor Hinke gained world-wide distinction through such writings from his pen as "A New Boundary Stone of Nebuchadnezzar I. from Nippur" printed in 1907, and "Selected Babylonian Kudurra Inscriptions" published in 1911.

Doctor Hinke will occupy the St. Luke's pulpit on July 8, 15 and 22, at the 10:45 a. m. service.

CHURCH NEVER SO VULNERABLE PREACHER FINDS

But the Rev. Mr. Cloward Is Proud to Be in Service At Time When "It's So Difficult to Be a Christian"

"Never has the church been so vulnerable, and never has it been so difficult to be a Christian, as in this day when we have been forced to use means we abhor in order to obtain results which seem to us good; yet never have I been so proud to be in Christian service, or so sure that in our Gospel lies the hope of the world," said the Rev. Donald E. Cloward, former pulpit at the First Baptist morning worship service Sunday.

Quoting the late Wendell Willkie's testimony to the value of foreign missions, not only to the peoples benefited, but also to the success of the war effort itself and Dr. Henry VanDusen's book on what American boys are finding out about an enterprise which had been to many of them an important phrase, he went on to tell his Christian sentiment had been "a great factor in our national foreign policy."

"When President Roosevelt was urging the conference at Dumbarton Oaks, Stalin at first was indifferent, and Churchill was for postponing it till after the war. It was the backing of church people which encouraged the administration to continue its efforts.

"After the conference had done its work, 500 church leaders met at Cleveland to study the formula worked out, and to suggest improvements; and in the San Francisco charter many of these have had their effect. The leaders of many denominations have twice been called to Washington to have explained the importance of conference findings, once after Dumbarton Oaks, and again after the Bretton Woods monetary discussions, so that they might arouse Christian opinion to back them.

"Thousands of meetings have been held to study a new world order, and thousands of letters have come from Christian people to senators and other members of the government, and they have had their effect. It is our duty to let our representatives know how we feel about the need and the practical feasibility of new international understandings to promote peace and justice.

"The churches have joined with educators to ask that decision upon peacetime military training be postponed till after the war. But there is room for more widely distributed effort on the part of the membership as a whole."

Following the communion service, the Cloward family greeted a large number of their old friends and parishioners. Mr. Cloward will soon attend the conference at Green Lake, Wis., where Northern Baptists have acquired a valuable resort property for educational and recreational purposes.

The Knowledge That We Were There!

The war means a lot to us here at Columbia Rope. When we hear of a new beachhead established—a new island taken—a ship's crew rescued at sea—we know that we were there!

Our daily work provides our fighting men with many things essential to the drive on Tokyo. Rope is just one item—but Rope is a sinew of war! Rope lands invasion craft. Rope delivers K-Rations to isolated outposts. Rope obeys the hungry waters of the Pacific as their prey, as it pulls American sailors to safety.

When the stirring story of the heroic crewmen of the FRANKLIN was told—we took fresh pride in our role in that epic of the sea. For we were there!

Wherever Rope brings safety to our seamen—wherever Rope brings food and supplies to our soldiers—we of Columbia are there! Ours is a good job—an important job.

The Pacific is wide, the road to Tokyo long! The Navy needs more rope... We need more help! Won't you join us? Apply at employment office daily to 4:00 P. M. Saturday to 12:00 noon.
