

City Council Votes 4-1 Quick Action on Arterial

City Council voted four to one yesterday in favor of quick action by the state on Auburn's arterial highway system. Field work has been done on the North Street portion.

Council asked the state Public Works Department to go ahead with that portion, and to begin work on planning, design and construction of the rest of the arterial project, or whatever parts of the whole plan the state believes could be handled as separate projects.

Councilman Charles B. Parker voted against the resolution proposed by Mayor Herbert T. Anderson.

Two other councilmen said their votes did not mean approval of the $10 million road project, but simply meant that they wanted to see the plans.

Mayor Herbert T. Anderson called for a start on part of the east-west highway two weeks ago. He said this "would commit the state as well as the city to the final completion of every phase of the plan."

The resolution, as passed yesterday, did not name the east-west highway. It merely urged that additional routes be started.

Councilman reemphasized "the State of its desire and ability to cooperate in the planning and construction" of the highway plan, and expressed "willingness to assume the financial obligations necessary . . . upon final approval of plans by this Council."

Councilman Thomas H. Brogan, voting "yes" at the meeting, said City Hall said "I am very interested in expediting the planning. When complete plans are submitted to the Council we will know the price tag on the project. At that time, this Council will finally accept or reject the project."

"I agree," said Councilman James G. Cuddy.

Parker voted "No" Again. Councilman Parker voted "no" without elaboration. Later, asked a reporter why he voted against the mayor's resolution, he answered:

"Consistency, my boy, consistency." He recalled that he had dissented from the first Council resolution approving the plan, on Jan. 16, 1958.

At that time, Mr. Parker said the plan was a "package deal" which had to be accepted or rejected as a whole.

He was particularly against the east-west route on which action was urged by the mayor. In his 1958 statement, he declared:

City Buys Piece of Property To Extend N. Seward Ave.

The city will pay $500 for the lot private property on the route that will extend North Seward Avenue to Grant Avenue.

City Council voted, in session yesterday at City Hall, to pay that amount to Mrs. Wallace P. Beardsley, owner of a property between Franklin Street and Grant Avenue.

North Seward Avenue now ends about halfway between those two routes. The avenue will be extended north west to meet Grant Avenue. Last week, Council told the city engineer to draw plans for the extension of the street, and for sewers along the route.

Council has already paid $2,000 for another property on the route. That land belonged to Soloway Enterprises, which owns a gas station at 126-144 Grant Ave.

In other sessions yesterday, Council gave permission to Angelo Castiglione, who is sealer of weights and measures as well as plumbing inspector, to attend the annual conference of the State Association of Weights and Measures. The meeting will be July 14, 15 and 16 in Rochester.

Welfare commissioner Robert M. Murphy was given permission to go to the annual institute workshop for welfare commissioners May 3 through 6 at Cornell University, Ithaca.

The meeting will be devoted to the administration of child welfare.

Mayor Herbert T. Anderson welcomed eight boys and girls, citizenship education students from Central High School, who attended the session. He introduced them to the Council and city officials.

City Council voted yesterday to give this amount to the committee planning the celebration.

Eugene F. Holzhauser of the committee asked Council for the money two weeks ago. He asked for $5,000, though.

Cayuga County is contributing $1,000 to the celebration. Mr. Holzhauser had asked the Board of Supervisors to give $5,000 too. The board voted the $1,000 contribution last week.

The celebration almost missed getting the city grant yesterday. After adjourning, Council was reminded that no action had been taken on Mr. Holzhauser's request. So the five men reconvened and voted to give the $2,500.

Construction of a gas station at the new shopping center, Auburn Plaza, on Grant Avenue was approved yesterday by City Council, in session at City Hall.

A permit to build the 13-store center, at a cost of $601,865, was issued Tuesday to Emil Muller Construction Co. of Rochester. Preliminary work on the 30-acre plot at 193 Grant Ave. was started last winter.

A public hearing on the station was set for yesterday's Council session. No one spoke at the hearing, however, and Council voted its approval without discussion.

Three city officials, city manager George F. Train, building inspector Glenn B. Adams, and Fire Chief Luke J. Bergan last week recommended that Council approve the station, "subject to final plans and specifications."

The application was submitted by Council on April 3. The station will be built at the northeast edge of the plaza property, which is on the west side of Grant Avenue, according to plans.

SCHOOL WINDOWS BROKEN. A complaint of broken windows at Seymour School is being investigated by police, they report. Officers said they learned six windows were broken at the school Wednesday night.

Thirty-six organizations met at the Union. Osborne Hall was rented for several dances and entertainments.

The Traveler's Aid, at the union since 1923, received requests from eight cities for information. Merchants were asked to advertise in the yearbook, "The Union News," for the first time in many years, and did so.

The Union sponsored a senior Girl Scout troop.

Mrs. Florence Main, cafeteria manager for many years, died on Dec. 2. The cafeteria committee, Mrs. Mackay as chairman, decided to lease the cafeteria to Roger Brown, president of Syracuse Food Corp. who took over on March 3.

140 Girls at Health Camp. The Union conducted Edgewater Health Camp for less privileged girls for eight weeks last summer. One hundred sixty girls camped there. Miss Evelyn Kimball gave her plans to the camp. A new cottage for the campers was opened. Some surplus food from the state was given to campers. Seven doctors volunteered their services to give campers a health checkup.

Miss Dorothy E. Hendrickson, house secretary, reported that nearly all rooms were rented during the year, 1958 were 179 transients.

Miss Hendrickson served the annual Christmas breakfast. Mrs. Hazel E. Schupp of Iowa gave the centerpiece in memory of her mother, Mrs. Ines E. Wood, who lived at the Union for 18 years.

Mrs. Noble, Mrs. Briggs and Mrs. Gebhard gave the food. Mrs. Woodruff gave the Christmas tree; Mrs. Osborne, a white poinsettia and Mrs. W.H. Kennedy, a red one.

The recreation department reported attendance at the swimming pool "was not as much as we had hoped for, due to so much illness and bad winter weather."

There were 84 private lessons; 4,730 attended class instruction and 2,344 came for plunges.

Mrs. Earl Wilson directed a summer swim campaign and winter classes and plunges. A new diving board was given by Mrs. Harold R. Metcalf. The Union board gave a new life preserver. The Columbian Rope Co. gave a polyethylene rope and the Union bought a new pump and cleaner.

The pool was open for women's plunges at 2 p.m. Monday through Friday. There was instruction at this hour on Tuesday. Mothers and children swam at this time on Thursday. There were classes Tuesday and Thursday evening.

Miss Gina D'Agostino was in charge of Saturday classes and plunges. Warren Smith started life saving classes March 7. Mrs. Bee Comstock and Mrs. Jessie Osborne worked at the desk of the pool.
