

Adopts Sweeping Policy To Abolish Segregation

By PAUL ZDINAK

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Methodist Church, after a spirited debate, has adopted a sweeping policy on civil rights designed to persuade Methodists to abolish racial segregation in their churches and in communities in general.

Delegates to a worldwide General Conference of the Methodist Church approved the policy by a show of hands Monday night.

The policy is embodied in a report by the Committee on Christian Social Concerns. It is now church law but is not church law.

This means that the policy cannot be enforced by such measures as expulsion or censure.

Some of the highlights of the policy are:

—Pastors and church officials are to open their churches to persons of all races.

—Methodist bodies, organizations and individual Methodists are to use their influence to secure fair employment practices and non-segregated services in the corporations in which they hold investments.

—Equal rights should be provided for voting, law enforcement, education, employment, housing, and public accommodations.

—Elimination of racial segregation, including de facto segregation, in all public and Methodist schools.

The term "civil disobedience" was omitted from a substitute paragraph before the report came to a vote, before about 900 delegates.

The original version would have condoned civil disobedience for "extremist" purposes. Legal recourse is unavailable.

The substitute paragraph read in part:

"In some instances, where legal recourse is unavailable or inadequate for redress of grievances from laws or their application that, on their face, are unjust or immoral, the Christian conscience will obey God rather than man."

The chairman of the commission which drafted the report, Harold A. Bosley of New York City, told the conference that the substitute portion was not a weaker version. We do not intend to give a single inch in endorsing the principle of civil disobedience. The adoption of the policy came as the conference entered its second week in Pittsburgh.

Writer Muses Over Old Jeep Army Sent to Smithsonian

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI)—World War II is rapidly fading into history. Which is all right with me. Unfortunately, however, the veterans of that conflict are rapidly fading, too.

I have seldom felt more faded, old soldier-wise, than I did this week when my military alma mater, the U.S. Army, presented to the Smithsonian Institution a model of the original WW II jeep.

The doughy little vehicle will go on display later this month at the New York World's Fair and then will be permanently enshrined in the Smithsonian's collection of national keepsakes.

What faded me was the sudden realization that most of the 600,000 jeeps made between 1941 and 1945 have already passed on to that great wrecking yard in the sky.

The Army, which always did have trouble finding things had to search far and wide before it finally located this one in a military depot in Korea.

It was identified by its serial number — 20476135 — as a wartime model. But nothing of its military history or service record could be traced.

This prompted Lt. Gen. Frank S. Besson Jr., who made the presentation, to liken the jeep to the "Unknown Soldier" which conjures up an heroic image.

If his career could be documented, however, I suspect it would show that old 20476135 spent the war hauling gin to the officers' club at Camp Kilmer, N.J.

John Magruder of the Smithsonian staff recalled that someone once credited jeeps with having "changed the course of history." He thereupon fell to musing as to how history might have been influenced had the jeep been invented a few centuries earlier.

"They would greatly simplified the winning of the West," Magruder said. "Imagine a trail hand pulling into Dodge City and finding no place to park."

Or suppose that Paul Revere had made his famous midnight ride in a jeep. According to Magruder, the Longfellow poem commemorating that event might have read like this:

"It was two by the village clock
When he gunned his jeep into Concord town.
"He slammed his gear into four-wheel drive and set the farmers' dogs alive

"As he beeped his horn at an alarm
"For the country folks to be up and to arm"
All in all, it was a very impressive ceremony and, frankly I choked up. Too much nostalgia in the carburetor, I guess.

Job Prospects Called Better For Graduates

WASHINGTON (UPI) — For the 1964 college graduate job prospects are better in nearly all fields as the economy shows "growing promise" for the year ahead.

Labor Secretary W. Willard Wirtz said Sunday that demand for engineers will be strong despite slowdown in defense-related activities, and employers are offering annual salaries ranging from $6,000 to $7,200 for beginners in this field.

The outlook is particularly good also for chemists, physicists, mathematicians, accountants, statisticians and teachers, he said.

The cabinet officer sized up job prospects in an open letter to the 500,000 men and women who will be receiving bachelor's degrees in June. Another 100,000 are in line for advanced degrees.

None Injured As Plane Skids At Takeoff

ROCHESTER (UPI)—Twenty-four passengers and a crew of five escaped injury Monday as a United Airlines DC6B nosedived on takeoff from Rochester-Monroe County Airport.

The pilot, Francis N. Hyde of Washington, D. C., said "the nose wheel collapsed" sending the craft skidding the length of three football fields before it stopped with its tail "high in the air."

All passengers were able to file safely out the front door and through an emergency chute at the rear.

A UAL spokesman said passengers reacted so calmly that the stewardess actually "had to speed them up to get them off the plane."

"We heard this sort of crash and then all of a sudden we were just sort of grinding along."

The people were pretty calm about it and nobody got excited," said Eugene Pack of Buffalo, a passenger. "We just went out where the stewardess showed us."

Commercial air traffic was tied up for hours at the airport. The four-engine plane, bound for Chicago, came to rest about 100 yards from the end of the runway, near the spot where a Mohawk airliner crashed into a construction area last July 2, killing 7 and injuring more than 30.

The CAB will conduct an investigation.

Indians May Hunt

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla. (AP) — An Indian custom is responsible for the Oklahoma Wildlife Conservation Commission sending a law.

Richard Gibson, spokesman for the Shawnee Indian tribe, explained to commission members Monday that it was the custom of tribesmen to hunt 100 squirrels during a tribal ceremony near Little Axe, south of here, when trees leaf and the first full moon of the season appears.

The problem was that all this takes place before squirrel hunting season opens May 15. The commission consented to the hunt.

Adults on Relief To Perform Work

BINGHAMTON, N.Y. (AP) — A work program for qualified adults who are receiving relief payments from the Binghamton Welfare Department was approved unanimously Monday night by the 13-member City Council.

Under the program, adults on relief could be required — if physically able — to do work for the city, county or state, provided the work already was not being done by government employees.

Hospital Settles Six Claims After Babies Die

BINGHAMTON, N.Y. (AP) — The court books are closed in the tragic salt-sugar mishap that brought death to six babies at Binghamton General Hospital two years ago.

The State Supreme Court recently made the final awards of $7,000 each to Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bealo and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Walker of Binghamton. Parents of four other babies who died received $7,000 settlements earlier this year.

The money is to be paid by the hospital and Crotty Brothers Eastern Shores Inc., which had the hospital's food service contract.

Salt and sugar had been stored in identical cans in the hospital kitchen at the time of the mishap. Salt was accidentally poured into the babies' formulas. Five infants died before the illness was diagnosed as salt poisoning, and one died afterwards.

The hospital now has a new food management firm. Formulas are in individually packaged feedings and each is tested before being fed to a baby.

Hoover to Remain As Chief of FBI

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson isn't going to let J. Edgar Hoover retire when he reaches 70 next Jan. 3, the usual mandatory retirement age for government personnel.

White House sources said yesterday that Johnson intends to waive the 70-year retirement rule to allow the veteran FBI director to remain on the job.

This can be done by the President through an executive order. It has been done on several occasions in the past.

Hoover will have held the FBI post 40 years next Sunday. He was appointed on May 10, 1934, during the administration of President Calvin Coolidge. He has served under 13 attorneys general.
