ON THE STOCK MARKET

Submarine Crisis Still Reflected in Trading.

New York, Oct. 10, Wall Street, 10:30 a. m.—Further substantial recoveries from low levels of the preceding session were registered at today's opening. All branches of the list shared in the rise, with gains most marked, however, in Industrials and Equipments such as Hide and Leather, American Sugar, Republic Steel, Baldwin Locomotive, General Electric, Studebaker and Air Brake. There was unusual activity and strength in gas stocks, notably People's Gas and Columbia Gas. United States Steel rose over a point, and the active Metals and Rails were in demand with perceptible improvement in shipping issues.

Noon.—The record of the forenoon was one of steady gains on an increasing inquiry for investment issues, including prominent Rails. Union Pacific, Reading and Lehigh Valley were higher by 2 points, with 1 or more for New York Central, St. Paul, Atchison and various issues of the same division. The shipping group extended its gain to 2 points for Marine preferred and 3/4 for Atlantic, Gulf & West Indies. Coppers were 1 to 2 points higher, with greater gains for Zinc stocks, while Munitions and Equipments made further advances. People's Gas scored an extreme gain of 6 points, Hide and Leather preferred rose 7 and American Sugar 4 1/2. Bonds were firm.

1:30 p. m.—Moderate and low-priced Rails comprising the Western and Southwestern groups were unusually active in the early afternoon at gains of 2 to 4 points. Standard shares retained their early advantage and more in some instances.

THE SAFE OF GEORGE HAGEZ AND HIS PARTNER

Figures Largely in the Trial of the Former United States Court on Charge of Perjury Committed Last July.

That there were four lock drawers in the safe owned by George M. Hagez and his partner and which was used by them in their business, instead of but one, and that two of the drawers had the initials of Hagez and those of his partner enameled on the front, was the testimony of Harry Aaron, a representative of the Mosler Safe Company from whom the safe was ordered, and who laid out the plans for the building of the safe according to the specifications presented by Hagez and his associate when he was called to the witness stand in Federal Court this morning in the case of the United States government against Hagez.

The charge of perjury was brought following the trial of Hagez on the charge of looting his citizenship papers to his cousin, George Hodges of Buenos Ayres, to get into this country, which was held last July in Syracuse. At that time Hagez testified that the papers were in a drawer in the safe which was used in common by his partner and himself, and that there were only two drawers which locked in the safe. He stated that there was no lettering upon either. Subsequently it was shown that the safe had four lock drawers and that both Hagez and his partner had one with their initials upon it. This led to a charge of perjury being brought against Hagez, an indictment being returned by the Grand Jury last Thursday.

A Government Investigator.

The first witness called, when the actual trial was taken up this morning, was Herbert Hull, a government investigator who testified that he found the safe in the custody of a Mrs. St. John at Plattsburg. The four drawers were introduced as exhibits and were admitted as such by the court. Attorney John B. Kellas for the defense attempted to shake the witness' testimony in regard to the exact wording of Hagez's testimony at the July trial, in regard to the safe.

"Was Mr. Hagez asked 'How was the inside of that safe divided?'" queried the attorney.

"I think that was it," was the reply. Witness, however, could not remember positively. Witness also stated that there had been some sort of an answer by the defendant, but he was not sure just what it was. He was also in the dark as to whether it was Hagez or his partner who had broken a key to the drawer and which was brought out at the trial.

Assistant United States District Attorney Kellas in direct examination brought out emphatically the fact that the defendant had misstated the number of lock drawers in the safe, while upon cross examination Attorney Kellas attempted to secure an admission from the witness that Hagez at the former trial had been unfamiliar with the make-up of the safe. At the close of the cross examination the government endeavored to show that the Mrs. St. John, in whose keeping the safe was found, had been a client of Attorney John E. Judge of Plattsburg, who is appearing as counsel for the defense in the present case.

The Order for the Safe.

The next witness called was Harry Aaron and he told of receiving the order for the safe, which called for four lock drawers, two of which were to bear the initials of the two partners. He explained the manner in which the safe had been divided, showing memorandum which he had made at the time in regard to the initials. He was still under direct examination when the court adjourned for noon recess.

It was exactly 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon when both the prosecution and the defense announced that they were satisfied with the jury. The court then informed the jurors that he was not going to exercise his right of looking them up, although it was an important case, but would put them upon their honor not to discuss the case with any one even among themselves, and not to listen to anyone else talking about it. He dwelt at length upon the duties of a juror when out of court, after which he announced a recess until 10 o'clock this morning.

When the first panel of jurors had been seated and sworn in, the work of challenging was taken up. Judge Ray announced that the government was entitled to six peremptory challenges and the defense to 10, and added that in order that each side might have an opportunity to present themselves the prosecution would be allowed to challenge one and then the defense one, or two as the case might be, until they had used up their number. Not a challenge was made for cause or favor by either side but the full limit of peremptory challenges were used. The jury as finally accepted was as follows:

The Jury Selected.

John O. Bruce, William C. Gates, Henry Sibus, Joseph French, W. J. Hager, A. L. Hemingway and F. W. McCrea of Auburn, R. R. Candee of Cayuga, F. C. Hall of Aurelius, Lawrence Lindsay of Martville and Smith Selover of Owasco.

In questioning the jurymen Assistant District Attorney Creg was especially particular in regard to the extent of the acquaintance which the prospective jurors had with City Judge Edgar S. Mosher, the only local attorney who Attorney Loy Kellas, who conducted the examination for the defense, emphasized the query as to the state of feeling the jurors had toward people of foreign birth and to the value they would place on their testimony.

During the time the jury was being secured, the defendant sat in his chair near his attorneys, holding his heavy cane tightly in his hand and shifting his eyes from the faces of the attorneys to the jury, but not as well as other incidents connected with the hargaining for and sale of the safe. Witness was positive regarding certain phrases which had been used but did not know whether Hagez or his partner had used them. He admitted, rather unwillingly, that he could not say for sure which of the partners had given him the order for the safe. This was a point in favor of the defense, their stand evidently being that the partner was the one who arranged for the making of the safe and that Hagez was not familiar with the interior.

Mrs. Lucy Arvill, "wife of the partner" was then called by the government. She testified that she had worked in the store in Malone as saleslady from May, 1911 until June, 1912. She was familiar with the safe. She said that she had often seen the inside of the safe and that there were four drawers in the center of the safe near the top. She also described the remainder of the interior. One of the drawers bore Hagez's initials and she said that she had seen both men visit the safe and open their private drawers at different times.

A CANADIAN DESERTER

Will Furnish Interesting Case for Argument Here.

Arguments in the case of Edward Dempster Griffin, the alleged deserter from the Canadian Army who is being held by Immigrant Inspector Peter J. Savage at Alexandria Bay, N. Y. on a charge of being illegally within the United States will be heard either late this afternoon or tomorrow morning before Judge Ray, when the writ of habeas corpus, which was issued October 2, is returnable. According to the claims of the Immigration authorities, Griffin is a member of the Canadian Army and as such is subject to deportation.

Griffin, according to the petition, was born at Rural Hill, Jefferson County, November 3, 1888 and lived for the greater part of his life in the United States. On June 30, 1916, he crossed into Canada, and at Gananoque, Ontario, enlisted in the Canadian Army, 156th battalion, Company B, being at the time under the influence of liquor furnished him by the recruiting office, that there were four drawers in the center of the safe near the top. She also described the remainder of the interior. One of the drawers bore Hagez's initials and she said that she had seen both men visit the safe and open their private drawers at different times.

He was granted a hearing before Inspector Savage in whose custody he is now held and a writ of habeas corpus, returnable in this city, was issued for him to show cause why he should not be deported to Canada.

Griffin is represented by Attorney John O'Leary of Clayton, and holds that he was lawfully within the United States and also that the United States Immigration Department lacked jurisdiction to issue a warrant for his arrest.
