AMERICA'S STAND ON PACT PUZZLES

Paris, Jan. 6.—The attitude of the United States toward the treaty between Italy and France, Great Britain and Russia, relative to the eastern coast of the Adriatic, has not been clearly defined as far as known. When it came up recently, in the course of peace preliminaries, however, the United States did not indicate how it would stand when the treaty entered into consideration.

The first time was when the inter-allied conference framed the terms for the armistice between Italy and Austria. In stating the time to which the Austrian troops must retire, the armistice outlined the frontier as it is defined in the treaty. This was accepted by the inter-allied conference but it is understood that Colonel E. M. House, the American representative stated that the designation of the frontier as it stood in the treaty between the four nations was not to be taken as expressing any position by the United States on that treaty.

The same situation was again presented when American warships participated in the carrying out of naval clauses of the armistice with Austria. The occupation of ports was made largely under the supervision of the Italian navy which had a large number of warships along the eastern coast of the Adriatic. The Jugo-Slav element there manifested some opposition but owing to the delicacy of the issues involved, the question of America's attitude one way or the other was delayed.

Article 4 provides that in the future treaty of peace there will be given to Italy the Trentino, the whole of Southern Tyrol, the cities of Triest, Gorizia and Gradisca, the province of Istria and the Istrian Islands.

Article 5 gives Dalmatia and the Dalmatian Islands to Italy. Other articles deal with Albania and zones in Asiatic Turkey in case of Turkey being broken up.

PARIS EDITOR SUPPORTS PLAN FOR A LEAGUE OF NATIONS

Paris, Sunday, Jan. 5.—"It is not difficult to divine," says the Temps in editorial, "that President Wilson desires an equitable arrangement between the Italians and Jugo-Slavs and between the Italians and Greeks but even when he has mentioned the burning words "Balkans" he has never departed from his smiling cordiality and courteous reserve.

"Our comments, therefore, should observe the same discretion that he has shown in his remarks."

The editorial then supports Mr. Wilson's thesis, that a new system of equilibrium is inconceivable except by the creation of a league of nations by saying:

"We are thus brought to a subject which is most dear to us. A league of nations can be founded only on a close, permanent union of victorious peoples."

GOVERNOR SMITH SPEAKS FOR STATE

Albany, Jan. 6.—New York State will pay a formal tribute to the memory of Col. Theodore Roosevelt, one of its most illustrious sons.

Although most of the legislative leaders were absent from the city when word of the colonel's death was received, plans were immediately made for the introduction of suitable resolutions when the legislature reconvenes Wednesday night and for the appointment of committees to arrange for an appropriate memorial.

Flags on the capitol and all state buildings were ordered placed at half staff.

Sincere regret was expressed about the capitol by many of the older office holders who worked with the colonel when he was governor of the state.

Governor Smith immediately sent a telegram to Mrs. Roosevelt. He said his personal sentiments were reflected in the message. It follows:

"The people of the State of New York learn with deepest regret of the death of one of our most distinguished sons, Theodore Roosevelt, one time governor the state and president of the United States. He was for years a leading figure not only in this country but throughout the world. The record of his illustrious service will stand while the state lasts. The people in all walks of life extend to his bereaved family their sincere and heartfelt sympathy and take comfort in the belief that divine province makes all things even, and solves for the just man the mysteries of death as life everlasting."

SPARTACANS ON ANOTHER RAMPAGE

Amsterdam, Jan. 6.—The Spartacus group Sunday evening made another attempt to seize the reins of power in Berlin and occupy the office of the Wolff Bureau, the semi-official news agency.

The last telegram received here from the Wolff Bureau announced the seizure of its office.

Private advices say that the Spartacans occupied the offices of half a dozen big newspapers, including the Socialist Vorwaerts.

Amsterdam, Jan. 6.—A coup d'etat took place in Berlin, it is reported on the basis of advices from Berlin today.

There had been intimations that an overturn of some sort in the German capital was expected Saturday.

A telegram from Berlin today says the office of the Wolff Bureau, the semi official news agency, was occupied Sunday evening, but it does not state by whom the seizure was made.

FEDERALIZED RAILROADS NOT GOVERNED BY STATE BODIES

Washington, Jan. 6.—Orders of state commissions prescribing intrastate rates instead of those initiated by the director general and injunctions by state courts forbidding the application of the initiated rates to state shipments cannot be observed by railroads under federal control.

This announcement was made today by Director General McAdoo in a statement discussing litigation begun by several states to question the validity of rates initiated by him under the federal railroad control act.

The director general said he could not conceive that any state would be placed at a practical disadvantage by the initiated rates since the state itself or the commission of the state or any citizen were free to file a complaint before the interstate commerce commission against any rates considered unjust or unfair and have the issue determined in the light of the facts.

Berger Trial On.

Chicago, Jan. 6.—Argument was begun today in the trial of Victor L. Berger, congressman-elect of Milwaukee and four other Socialists who are charged with violation of the espionage act.

United States District Attorney Charles F. Clyne opened the argument for the prosecution.

GAMBREL vs. GABLE ROOFS

(National Crop Improvement Service.)

SHOULD a practical architect travel on a sleeping-car for miles in an unknown direction, he would, as soon as he looked out of the window, place himself by the prevailing style of architecture. Just as some localities have only one kind of dog, so others will adopt one style of barn which everybody builds. The average farmer never thinks of improving that plan in spite of the fact that at any lumber yard he can get a booklet containing plans and specifications of modern up-to-date structures which have been scientifically planned by the Agricultural Colleges and the Department at Washington.

These barn books are also supplied by the National Lumber Manufacturers' Association. They will be sent to anyone who will write to their office in Chicago.

One of the most vital mistakes made by the average farmer is to build the old-fashioned gable roof instead of the commodious gambrel roof. The expense is not much greater and there is no comparison in the loftroom.

A hundred-pound bale of hay measures 16x18x42 inches. In a barn 30x40 feet with a gable roof, 858 bales may be stored weighing 8,580 pounds.

Under a gambrel roof on a barn of the same dimensions 1,698 bales of hay can be stored, a difference of 840 bales or 42 tons. This illustration is shown in baled hay because of its established dimensions. In storing bulk hay the difference is just as great.

The local lumber yard should be a fascinating place for every farmer. There is always something to be built or repaired on the farm and the farmer should make a rule that instead of returning home with an empty wagon, to call around at the lumber yard and take home a few sacks of cement or material for his new chicken coop, sty, wagon shed or pens.

If all merchants were as friendly and helpful as the lumbermen the old time prejudice between town and country would be rapidly wiped out.

DREAM NIGHTS— SO TIRED MORNINGS

William Feek

Mr. Wm. Feek said: "For six years I suffered general debility. I had headaches a great deal in the top of my head and was dizzy. That came from catarrh, for mucus would drop down into my throat and make it hard for me to breathe. The rheumatism was in my hip and knee and nearly laid me up at times. I had trouble with my hands getting cold and numb. Nights I would dream and was restless so when morning came I would be more tired than when I went to bed. It was hard for me to urinate and often it was accompanied by a burning sensation.

"I got so bad that I decided to try GOLDINE and got 2 bottles. One of No. 1 and one of No. 2 and have been taking it ever since. Today I am better. I sleep fine and working steady. I thought I felt worse the first two or three days I was taking the medicine, but I stuck to it and now I am a different man. If you are interested and want to ask me more about GOLDINE I will be glad to tell you."
