

THE AUBURN CITIZEN (LAW AND ORDER)

THE BATES FOR TWO EVENTS

Much interest is being shown in the public card party to be given by the Ladies' Auxiliary of Elks on Thursday evening, January 20. The date has been changed from January 27 to January 20 in order to accommodate those who wish to attend the dance and card party at Masonic Hall which will occur January 27.

The members of the auxiliary are competing for the prize to be given to the lady having the greatest number present at her tables. In addition to this special prize, there will be several other prizes awarded to the winners at the tables of bridge, "500" and bid euchre.

Due to the K. of C. hall being held February 7, a change has also been made in the next regular meeting night of the auxiliary. It will occur Monday evening, February 14 instead of February 7, at which time a special Valentine program will be given the members.

Those filling tables for the auxiliary card party Thursday evening, January 20, can notify Mrs. Thomas Walker 624-R stating what they wish to play and how many attending or one of the following members of the entertainment committee: Mrs. Will Hager, Mrs. John Underwood, Mrs. Arthur Rolling, Miss Emma Koonig, Mrs. C. H. Warrick, Mrs. Martin Welsh.

MOVIES TONIGHT AT FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CLUB HOUSE

The story of Columbian Rope will be told in film at the First Presbyterian Club House tonight at 8 o'clock and the interested people of Auburn, whether First Church people or not, are cordially given an invitation to come and see just how one of Auburn's leading products is turned out from the raw material brought from distant climes.

It is one of the epics that modern inventive genius is penning, and the public seldom has the chance to study the beauty of the production. Gardner Dines of the Columbia Rope Company will explain the pictures tonight. Four reels are needed to cover the trip from the Manila fields in the Philippine Islands to the great coils of rope that daily are shipped in carload lots from Auburn to all parts of the world. A Finger Lakes reel will also be shown.

THE SANDMAN STORY FOR TONIGHT

BETTY AND JOHN'S CHRISTMAS PRESENT

It was the night before Christmas and Betty and John had crept into bed with heavy little hearts, though they tried to be brave and not let their mother know how sad they were.

"There will be no turkey tomorrow," their mother had said. "I will make a nice meat pie for dinner and I am sorry you cannot have toys this year, for Santa Claus will have to bring the things you need most, and those are stockings and warm shoes."

The father of Betty and John was over the seas, fighting in the big war, and the children had been told that they must be brave because they were the children of a brave soldier, and that was the reason they were trying hard not to let the tears come, for they knew their mother had to work every day to support them.

"Perhaps if we are brave and don't cry," said John, "Santa will leave us just one little toy."

"If he doesn't," said Betty, "we ought not to mind because there are hundreds of children where father is that will have nothing for Christmas, not even a meat pie, and many of long years.

There was a turkey, after all, and all the good things to eat that the uncle could find, and then the next day all the toys that Santa would have brought if the children had not needed clothes the uncle bought until their mother said they would have to move if they bought any more.

"And that is just what we will do," said the Uncle, "for I am going to live with you until your husband comes home."

And such a nice home as the uncle bought; just what John and Betty had dreamed of but never expected to have, and there they all went to live, and mother had no more hard-work to do.

"Our new uncle was our Christmas present," Betty told John. "He was too big, I suspect, for Santa to get in his bag, so he sent him on the train."

"He sent him because we were brave and did not cry, I am sure," said John, "and I shall never cry about Christmas again, for I guess old Santa Claus knows how to send better presents than we can wish for."
