AN INDIAN POEM.

[The following verses have been popular for years, though their authorship is not generally known. It is believed that they are from the pen of Samsom Occom, the Indian preacher and poet of Dartamouth College, over 100 years ago.]

I.

When shall we three meet again?
When shall we three meet again?
Oft shall glowing hope expire,
Oft shall wearied love retire,
Oft shall death and sorrow reign,
Ere we three shall meet again.

II.

When around this useful pine
Moss doth creep and ivy twine;
When these burnished locks are gray,
Thinned by many a toil-spent day,
Here may this loved bower remain,
Here may we three meet again.

III.

Though in distant lands we sigh,
Parched beneath a hostile sky;
Though the deep between us rolls,
Friendship shall unite our souls;
Oft in fancy's rich domain,
There shall we three meet again.

IV.

When the dreams of life are fled;
When the wasted lap is dead;
When, in cold oblivion's shade,
Beauty, wealth and fame are laid;
When immortal spirits reign,
Then shall we three meet again.

A CYCLONE.

REPORTS OF A DESTRUCTIVE STORM IN THE SOUTHERN PART OF ERIE COUNTY.

Forests Blown Down by the Acre—Orchards Destroyed and Buildings Unroofed.

The town of Sardinia in the southern part of Erie County was visited by a destructive cyclone on Friday last, the like of which for ferocity and destructiveness has never been known in this part of the State. The destruction of the telegraph wires between that point and Buffalo has prevented earlier intelligence from reaching this city, and, we are indebted to Associate Justice Rogers for information concerning the catastrophe. It seems that about three o'clock Friday afternoon the farmers living in many parts of the town of Sardinia were frightened by the

SUDDEN FURY OF THE WIND,

which pounced upon them like a tiger, accompanied by a terrible roaring like the sound of thunder long-continued, uprooting trees, unroofing houses and working fearful destruction wherever it struck. What to do was a questions which could not be debated, and the excited people ran hither and thither as their fright directed them, some into cellars, others into their beds, while others rushed into the open air and threw themselves flat upon the ground,

MR. EDWARD SHERMAN

who lived upon the old Wilson Farm was among the latter. He lay down beneath a large apple tree and wound his arms about the trunk. Suddenly the whirlwind caught the tree in its embrace and twisted it square in two about a foot from the ground sweeping the upper part away and leaving the man at the base to congratulate himself over his narrow escape. The scenes about this farm are said to be beyond description. All the barns were unroofed by the wind and the cattle cowered into corners showing by their actions that they appreciated the danger in which they were placed.

THE COURSE of the wind was decidedly eccentric. It would pounce upon the land and sweep everything before it for a mile or so and then skip a section and then once more would seek the earth and uproot another patch, and so on. How far the damage extended we are at present unable to say. The cyclone, if such it were, could be plainly heard on the Rogers farm, four miles from where it struck. Those who heard it describe it like the sound of thunder and say it lasted for about fifteen minutes.

THE DESTRUCTIVENESS

of the storm was something unprecedented in in this part of the country. Wherever it struck there remained ruin and desolation. Forests and orchards were laid low by the acre, many of them leaving not a tree standing. Fences were swept away by the mile or broken into pieces and blown right and left, to resemble the snow fences along the railroad lines. Many houses rocked violently before the fury of the wind, and scarcely a chimney remained standing in the line of the wind's furious advance. No deaths to human beings occurred so far as heard from, though it is not impossible that the storm has victims to give it dignity and make it tragic.

A SAMPLE

of the work of destruction done in Sardinia will show how complete and devastating it was.

JOHN WEATHERLOW

had twenty-five acres of solid maple wood prostrated, several barns ruined and all his apple and cherry trees twisted into firewood. Not a stick was left standing in his orchards, and he said his farm would sell for $2,000 less after the storm than before.

THOMAS HOPKINS

counted 200 fine maple trees which had been laid low upon his farm.

SAMUEL GILLS

lost a fine sugar bush. His sugar house in which were stored a valuable lot of bobs and sugar and working tools was crushed beneath a couple of large maples, causing their complete destruction.

SEYMOUR SIMONS

had his barn completely unroofed and the chimneys carried away from his house. He bade good bye to all his fruit trees and timber binders.

THE JOHN WILSON FARM

suffered great damage from unroofed barns and orchards laid upon the ground.

SEWARD SEARS

had his house so badly shaken that all the dishes were broken and the family badly frightened, the latter expecting every moment to be killed. The barns were knocked into a bad shape and many cattle imprisoned. Yesterday a thousand men were at work upon this farm getting out cattle and putting things to rights.

JACOB BROMEN

lost twenty acres of timber and the South woods were badly shattered. Kirk Newton also had several acres of timber distroyed. Yesterday thousands of farmers visited the scene of the disaster and rendered all the assistance possible to their afflicted neighbors.

FIRE.—Shortly before five o'clock yesterday afternoon a fire broke out in the wood shed attached to the rear of the brick dwelling No. 633 Michigan street, owned by the Lutheran Trinity Church and occupied by Rev. Charles Gross. It was extinguished with a few pails of water, and there was no work for the Department when they arrived in response to an alarm which had been given from box No. 32. The damage done amounts to about five dollars. The fire originated from on overheated stove pipe.

POLICE RECORD.—Ten arrests were reported from the first, third, fifth and seventh precincts for the twenty-four hours ending this morning. Of this number, three were for drunkenness, two for disorderly conduct, two for assault and battery, two for petit larceny and one for false pretenses. The fines imposed by the watch-house justices aggregated ten dollars. Three cases were sent to the Police Court. Four persons were given lodging Saterday night.

WE ARE HIS WITNESSES.

Sermon at the Washington Street Baptist Church by Rev. Dr. Clark of Albion.

The pulpit of the Washington Street Baptist Church was occupied yesterday by Rev. J. W. B. Clark, D. D., of Albion. He preached in the morning from Acts, 5:32. "And we are His witnesses." Following is a

SYNOPSIS OF THE SERMON.

"Peter seemed to understand his duty. He remembered the words of his Lord. The resurrection was no sooner accomplished, than Jesus at the very first meeting with the apostles announced to them the purpose for which he had called them: "Ye are witnesses of these things."

This Commission did not expire with the death of the Apostles. As Christ prayed, not only for those who stood around him, but for all who should believe on him through their word, so the duties he laid upon them were to be rolled down from generation to generation to the end of time. These words of Peter have passed from mouth to mouth till it is our turn to take them up—"And we are His witnesses."

The Christian life serves the purpose of testimony. Its object is to prove something. There is a question about which there is some doubt yet in the minds of a portion of mankind. It is whether there is a divine power in the Gospel of Christ. The question is to be settled by the evidence of the Christian Church.

The truth to be established by Christian testimony is not always the same. In the days of the apostles the controversy turned on questions of fact. To-day, the historical facts of the gospel are not denied but their practical significance is ignored. Hence there is little need of argument upon the evidences of Christianity. Says Phillip Brooks: "The practical skepticism of to-day needs to be met not with argument, but a man." What is most needed is not evidence that the gospel is true, but that it is vital truth, with power to change the heart and ennoble the life. To this end there is still need of unflinching testimony to the doctrines of the gospel. The present tactics of the enemy are not to deny but to explain away. There may be detected even in the church a disposition to soften the more rugged features of the truth. And evidence is still wanted, that the religion of Jesus Christ is the same uncompromising religion it always was; that it accepts nothing less than a radical change of the human heart and a "life unspotted from the world."

It is to be noticed that oral testimony alone is not sufficient to determine these questions. We have learned from the kind of evidences Congressional Committees can evoke, that there is nothing in the land, so cheap and abundant as testimony. But whole cords of it have no appreciable effect upon the public judgment. Oral testimony is worthless unless corroborated by substantial character. It must weigh as much as it measures.

Such was the evidence of the men, who in the text pronounced themselves Christ's witnesses. No man dared try to impeach their testimony. They were not without their weaknesses but there was no such discount on their character, as would detract from the strength of their evidence. What such men said was believed.

This is the quality of evidence the church needs to-day, evidence of conspicuous Christian example. It is none the less powerful for being unconsciously contributed. The mightiest forces in religion as in nature are not those that operate with most pretension and noise. The sun has made less noise this morning, warming up half the planetary system, than the servant kindling her morning fire. Thus the loudest pretensions and the longest exhortations often carry less conviction than the silent testimony of a pure godly life.

This is the kind of evidence most difficult to meet. Men may cavil with every thing else but the power of a holy life no skepticism can argue down. And this is a quality of testimony that every disciple can furnish. We could not all be Pauls if we wished. The Lord only wanted one like him, but he wants a whole army like you and me, to occupy the witness stand every day, giving in evidence before the world.

HOW THE RAIN HELPED THE FETE.

The rain of Thursday and Friday proved the means of lengthening out the little lawn fete given on the grounds of Mr. D. B. Castle for the benefit of the Willing Workers of the Westminster Presbyterian Church. On Thursday the fete was postponed, but when, on Friday evening, in spite of a gentle shower, numerous children were seen to hover about the edges of Mr. Castle's residence, the question of doing something for their entertainment arose. Wahle and his musicians were there, ready to do their share toward making the evening an entertaining one. "Punch and Judy" were there, and a very laughable Punch and Judy too. The ice cream was there, and the lemonade. And now the people were coming, and the lawn was wet and Chinese lanterns not to be thought of. At lengtht Mrs. Castle's kind heart solved the promblem. Ordering the parlors to be lighted and thrown open and the two locomotive headlights without to be put on duty, she gave Wahle his cue and announced the fete open. The children came, and danced, and laughed at the antics of Punch and Judy, and ate ice cream, and drank lemonade to their heart's content, and the treasury of the willing workers was the richer by a neat little sum in consequence.

But there were a large number of tickets sold to those who thought the fete would be again postponed and who had not enjoyed the parlor fete. These could not be disappointed; that was certain. Saturday night, the weather being on its good behavior, the lanterns were brought out and the trees garlanded with beautiful lights. The music was again on hand. Fresh ice cream and lemonade took the place of that which had been demolished. Punch and Judy were once more the centres of attraction and won a golden harvest for the treasury. Now the lawn blossomed children, with here and there an older person, until the little ones were as thick as daisies in a meadow. And a right jolly good time they had too and much wealth was garnered for aiding the heathen in Syria. To Mrs. Isaac Riley and the other ladies who helped her carry through the little enterprise great credit is due for the patience and perseverence with which they overcome the difficulties of wind and weather and gave the children the good time which had been promised them.

The Willing Workers is a society composed chiefly of the children of Westminster Church for the purpose of helping on the missionary cause. That the Workers have been faithful as well as willing is shown by their success. They have been supporting a mission school for over a year in Syria, and are now dividing their gifts between that and another country. It behooves the older members of the church to keep an eye upon this diligent little society, for they are doing a Christian work of no little importance, thanks to the energetic ladies who have it in charge.

PETIT LARCENY.

Yesterday morning a boatman named John Regan visited the saloon of Mary Hammett, No. 1,707 Niagara street, and called for something to drink. While Mrs. Hammett was absent from the room for a minute, he helped himself to a bottle of wine and a box of cigars, and left. He was subsequently arrested by officer Campbell, of the first precinct, taken before Justice Safford, convicted of petit larceny and fined ten dollars. Having no funds he went to the workhouse for twenty days.

BASE BALL.

THE BUFFALOS DEFEAT THE TROYS IN TWO CLOSELY CONTESTED GAMES—SCORES 4 TO 3 AND 5 TO 4—

Brilliant Playing—The League and National Schedules—Other Games—Notes, &c.

The morning game between the Buffalos and Troys on Saturday drew a small attendance to the grounds, but those who did witness the game were amply repaid for their enterprise. Both nines played in excellent style and many fine plays were effected. The feature of the game was McGunnigle's right field playing, he securing several difficult balls. The Buffalos took kindly to Bradley and in the first four innings hit him for seven safe hits, with a total of nine bases, but only one run was secured by this heavy hitting, however, as the Buffalos ran bases in a reckless manner and no one could hit safe when it was desirable. The visitors had improved their time and the end of the fourth innings showed them in the lead by three runs to one. The Buffalos secured one run in the fifth inning, however, and things came to be exceedingly interesting. Only three Troys reached first base during the remainder of the game, while their opponents kept getting men on the bases and they were eft standing their until the ninth innings, when Horning reached third base, after one man was out on a safe hit, Hawks' errors and a passed ball. He came home on Clapp's safe hit to the centre field. This tied the game and everybody was happy, but when Clapp stole second and went to third on Richardson's out then they were joyous, Eggler set them to shouting and yelling when he hit for two bases in the right field and brought Clapp home. The Troys came in and tried hard to tie the score and got a man for a third, base with but one out. McGunnigle prevented the man from scoring by a brilliant fly catch and the next man was easily disposed of. The following is

THE AFTERNOON GAME.

Eight hundred people were present at this game and in view of the close game in the morning many thought it would be an equally interesting contest, nor were they disappointed, for twelve innings were required to determine which would come out of the struggle victorious. The Buffalos won the toss and took their positions in the field. The first two Troy men were easily retired, but Broeder hit safe; Aaron Clapp's grounder to Walker left him in his fielding position, while the home club came in, but failed to reach first base. In the second innings one, two, three was the order, and the Buffalos were at the bat again, Broeder's muff of Hawkes's throw of Eggler's hit gave that player first and Fulmer sent him to third on a safe hit in the right field, Fulmer running down at the next pitch, Galvin hit a high bounder to Broeder, who when he secured it made a low throw to Reilly, but not in time to catch Eggler who scored, Fulmer running to third base on the same. Galvin ran down at the next pitch and both came home on Walker's sending the ball on a long drive over the right field fence. McGunnigle secured the next run in the fifth innings on Broeder's failure to stop Caskins's throw of Mac's hit, and he went to third and came home on Walker's safe hit. In the next innings the visitors by two safe hits, Fulmer's bad throw and muffs of flies by Galvin and Walker, gave them four runs and tied the score. In the seventh innings the Buffalos crept out of a big hole when the second and third bases were occupied and only one man was out, but a short fly to Fulmer and Broeders' inability to hit the ball did the business and everybody was happy. The Buffalos failed to score also. In the eighth innings, Reilley reached the first and Walker third base, but both were left. The ninth was but a repetition of the eighth innings, and the Buffalos started to play their first tenth innings at home. But both sides were disposed of and the eleventh innings began, but not a man reaching first on either side, it was necessary to tackle the twelfth. The Troys came to the bat, first and Hall reached second base. After one man was out it is needless to say he was left there. Eggler started in by fanning the air thrice and sat down. Fulmer caught one of his favorite low balls and sent it sailing down in the left field for three bases. Galvin not to be outdone put it in the same spot and went to third base while Fulmer trotted home amid a shouting that fairly made the stand tremble. McGunnigle hit a fly to Evans who captured it and sent it to Reilly in time to catch Galvin at the home-plate.

It is superfluous to mention individual playing as the score shows the brilliant work done by both sides.

A word of praise is due the umpiring of Mr. Charles E. Daniels. This gentleman gave his decisions in such a clear and impartial manner that not a single decision was questioned, although many of them were very close. The following is —Gray, the man who attempted to assassinate Edwin Booth in Chicago, is now pitcher of a base ball nine composed of lunatics of the Elgin (Ill.) asylum.

—The current number of the New York Clipper contains a cut and the base ball biography of Thomas York, left fielder of the Providence team.

—The Detroits have been put on a sure footing for the rest of the season by the assumption of the management by the Recreation park company, Manager Hollinger retiring. Libby will be captain; Shaunessy, the short-stop, will be retired, and Monagham of the Davenports engaged.

THE STATE SHOOT.

CLOSING DAY OF THE CONVENTION—ELEGANT PRIZES AND EXCELLENT SCORES.

The Buffalos Capture Four More Prizes, Making Fourteen in All.

From our own Reporter.

ROCHESTER, July 12, 1879.—The last day's shooting of the New York State Association for the protection of fish and game took place to-day and by close attention to business the programme for the week was carried out in accordance with the original arrangements. Since the beginning of the Convention the weather each succeeding day seemed to be an improvement upon its predecessor, excepting perhaps occasional showers, but to-day capped the climax for perfection. The air was purity itself and scarce a cloud appeared during the entire day. The morning was quite cool; midday provided a heated temperature, and the middle and latter part of the afternoon the sun poured down with a fierceness which was almost insufferable. Notwithstanding this, however, the large crowd that assembled in the morning stood in their places manfully the whole day to witness the very interesting contests. Since the Convention opened the Buffalo men have been exceedingly successful and they go home to-night with fourteen victories clustering around them. They are well pleased with the result, of course, and it is a well defined fact that the Buffalo men can out-shoot all competitors of the Association.

THE PIERCE DIAMOND BADGE.

The work of the day opened at eight o'clock in the morning with the single trap shoot of fifteen single birds, at twenty-one yards rise, for the Pierce Diamond Badge. There were thirty-six entries, the elegant prize calling out many of the best marksmen. The entry was small, however, and probably would have been larger but for the unpropitious start made last evening. The birds used were tame and not at all what sportsmen like to shoot at. The contest lasted until nearly one o'clock, and the following is

The second prize consisting of two hundred and fifty pounds of shot was captured after a long struggle by Mr. J. P. Fisher of the Audubon Club of Buffalo.

THE DEAN RICHMOND TROPHY.

This contest attracted more attention than any other. It had been patiently waited for and when the time came to begin there was a flutter of excitement to see who would be the different contestants. This prize is always shot for by teams numbering three members of a club belonging to the Association, the entrance fees going to the club making the highest score. The trophy is held by the winning club in trust to be accounted for to the Association. There were twelve teams entered for this contest, the largest number ever known in the State Association. Twenty single birds twenty-one yards rise. The teams were composed of the best men in their respective clubs and were so well-known that most of the spectators could call them by name as they stepped to the score. The trophy was won last year by the Forester Club of Buffalo. The following is the list of teams and

By the score it will be seen that the Onondago Club of Syracuse was the winner by a score of fifty-three birds out of a possible sixty. The announcement made after some little time had been used in figuring up created quite a little tempest as the scores kept by several gentlemen did not agree. No less than three score-books kept by newspaper reporters gave Queen City Club of Buffalo a record of fifty-three the same as that given to the Onondagas. The official score only credited the Queen City's with fifty-two dead birds and the prize was awarded in accordance with those figures. There was a good deal of dissatisfaction, as the official scorer was not a good figurer, and hundreds of people who watched him, openly said he knew very little about what he was doing. It was difficult to take at best, as the men were called by numbers and not by names.

The Onondagas felt good over their victory and a good many other people as they did not wish to see so many prizes taken to Buffalo. I should almost charge the official scorer with that sort of a feeling only I do no not think him capable of so clever a scheme.

The second prize of 250 pounds of shot was divided between the Fountain Gun Club of Brooklyn and the Queen City's of Buffalo they both having the same score of fifty two dead birds.

THE PRESS SHOOT.

The press contest was shot by E. Redmond, E. Fox, E. Case and A. Crook and the four prizes taken in the order in which their names are given.

THE LIVINGSTON CUP.

This prize was contested for by four clubs who entered two men each. The rise was eighteen yards; double birds, fifteen pairs wild pigeons. Following is

The handsome prize was taken by the Foresters of Buffalo by a score of forty-seven dead birds. The Audubons were in close pursuit as will be seen by the score. The prize goes back to Buffalo as it was held by the Audubons since last year.

The second prize of two hundred and fifty pounds of shot was won by the Audubons of Buffalo.

As the last shot was fired and three cheers given for President Lamberton of Rochester, the sun sunk like a ball of fire behind the hills and the Convention was declared adjourned.
