FARM AND GARDEN.

The Late Dairy Markets.

In response to the stronger markets of the interior early last week, prices in the city advanced rapidly to 10c., as there was a sharp demand for cheese for Wednesday's steamers, and only a small stock to choose from. After these orders had been filled, a lull came in the buying, and the later arrivals, while not so heavy as was expected, furnished plenty of stock for the room engaged on Saturday's steamers, and with this to choose from, shippers lowered their bids until 9¼c. became practically the top of the market. Perhaps this was made 1c. lower than it would have been if the country markets were not to be influenced the forepart of this week. New York has a trick of letting prices down a peg after the shippers have made their purchases, in order to prevent high prices in the country the following Monday.

The weather of last week was wet and cool, and famous for the growth of grass. Farmers say that the grass is rather watery, and has not as much solid substance in it as it would have if there had been less rain. At present it seems likely that our cool weather may be succeeded by a hot wave, such as we are very apt to get the middle and latter part of June. The ground is so wet, and the grass so vigorous, that a hot spell would probably not diminish the flow of milk for two or three weeks at least. We look for the flush to last thro' the present month, and for heavy sales in the interior throughout the month of July. We still hear occasional complaints from buyers who travel among the factories in regard to feeding potatoes to the cows, but farmers begin to find that the practice injures their milk, and the abundance of pasturage precludes the necessity of any other feed.

There is more or less comment among dealers as to the significance of the present advance. It is understood that the break on the Erie road the early part of last week prevented the arrival of western New York cheese, and hence shortened up the supply. This gave the impetus, because shippers who had steamer room engaged were obliged to take their purchases out of the small amount of stock on hand. But it was noticeable that as soon as that pinch was over, they became very cautious and stood off as much as possible. Still it appears that stock was pretty well cleaned up, until the belated cheese finally arrived. Heavy receipts this present week would probably cause a decline, and we are inclined to believe that the market will see somewhat lower prices.

Butter has made a slight gain during the week, but can hardly be quoted as firm at the advance. Only the very best grade of state production is rated at 18½c., everything else being subject to the buyer's view of value. Under grades are now said to be accumulating, and the usual process of putting into cold storage has begun. The finest dairy tubs are one cent lower than creamery pails, and command only 17½c. There seems to be little chance of improvement in the butter market for some time to come, as we are now getting the fresh grass make, which is about as fine as any we are likely to get this season. The cool weather also has been highly favorable for arrivals in the city, but with a change to hot weather it will be apt to have an unfavorable effect upon the quality of the butter received.

Following is our usual table of quotations for cheese:

	Receipts.	Exp.	Cable.	Fgn.	Price.
June 11, 1888	4,111	500		250	10c.
June 5, 1889	4,[illegible]	4,[illegible]	4 Cd.	200	9½c.
June 4, 1889	4,[illegible]	450	4s 9d.	300	9½c.

Utica, June 10.

The cheese market was slightly off today, and stands just where it did two weeks ago. New York advices were very discouraging to day, and buyers are anxious to get their cheese to the city early, lest a decline the latter part of the week should cause them a loss on their purchases. As a rule, also, salesmen were desirous to get rid of their stock even at the decline. Some have sold pretty close to the hoop, in order to be able to hold next week if they think it politic to do so. It was rumored that a fraction higher than anything quoted was obtained for a few lots, but no such quotation was given in. Probably 9½c. will seem full nigh before the week is over. That is about what shippers seem willing to pay this season, and such a price f. o. b. means about 7½c. in the country.

Following are the quotations for the day:

Lots.	Boxes.	Price.
7	700	9½c
96	9,154	9½c
28	2,689	9½c
25	2,640	9½c
23	2,197	9½c
179	16,382
	1,653	Com.
Total	18,010

Ruling price, 9½c. Transactions one year ago, 17,013 boxes, ruling price 8c. Two years ago 16,731 boxes, ruling price 9½c.

About the usual amount of butter sold at 17@20c., there being rather more than heretofore at the last named price.

Little Falls, June 10.

Cheese—The market to-day did not quite come up to expectations, either of buyers or salesmen. From favorable New York reports of the latter part of last week it was thought to-day's trade would show a firmer market; but dairymen may perhaps congratulate themselves that prices have not declined, sales being unchanged from last Monday. The hot muggy weather may have slight influence, but the trouble seems to lie back of that and with the shippers, who oppose any tendency to advance in prices. Factorymen showed no disposition to hold back stocks, as our list will readily show. The cheese henceforth sent from here will be wholly grass stock, and there is a strong feeling that we have seen lowest prices. The production is not as much as some expected, in fact this section we think dairymen have on an average fewer cows than they had last year. The transactions are:

Lots.	Boxes.	Price.
24	1,824	8c
61	5,485	8½c
1	149	9c
9	331	Com.
112	7,886
Farm dairies	630
Total	8,466

Farm dairies—There were 630 boxes farm cheese sold, the bulk at 8½c., the range being 8@8¾c., with but one lot at the latter price.

Butter—Sales of 20 packages of dairy butter were made at 16c., and 14 packages of creamery at same price.

Fulton, June 10.

Nineteen factories were represented, with 1,718 boxes of cheese, which sold at 7 7-16@8½c.

Canton, June 9.

There were 53 factories represented, with 4,207 boxes of cheese, and 15 creameries with 719 tubs of butter. Sales yesterday as follows: 400 at 8 3-16c.; 250 at 8½c.; 350 contract at 8 7-16c.; 417 twins at 8¾c. Fifty two tubs of butter sold at 19c. One year ago cheese sold at 8 3-16@8½c. and butter at 20@21½c.

Dairy News and Markets.

The enterprise of the New York Commercial Bulletin is seen in no department more plainly than that of dairy produce. This season it has added to this department elaborate reports by telegraph from Montreal, giving not only that market, but the result of the interior Canadian boards of trade. Special telegrams from Liverpool to the Bulletin are also published daily. According to the Montreal correspondent, cheese sold last week at Ingersoll at 8¾c., and at Woodstock 2,700 boxes were sold at 8¾c. In fact the Canadian markets are all very firm, but just at present there does not seem to be a foreign outlet for stock bought at these prices. The Bulletin has a large constituency in all the centers where cheese is an important article of commerce.

—George A. Smith of the dairy commission exhibited at the Utica Board of trade yesterday a piece of cheese made by himself and W. W. Hall June 10, 1853, at the Bunding factory, Hubbardsville. It was cut from one of a batch made by the state experts at one of the cheese conferences held under the auspices of the state dairymen's association. The cheese was tried by many of the makers who are members of the board, and not one of them failed to pronounce it first class in every respect. The flavor was particularly clean and fine for a cheese that is a year old.

—Says the American Dairyman: This is the time to keep a keen eye out for milk fever. Puerperal fever is much easier to prevent than to cure. Once it has set its deadly fangs upon the victim, death alone is able to bring relief. For this reason do all in your power to keep the cow's system in a condition that will most successfully resist the disease. A light diet and open bowels will do this. Give no heating food such as corn meal, but a close cropped pasture well shaded, with an occasional dose of Epsom salts, if there are any signs of constipation. It is generally the best cows that are subject to this disease, and they are the ones you can least afford to lose and are worse all the trouble it may take to keep them well. The owner of the cows should not trust the care of those about to calve to hired men, but look closely after them himself.

—Le Prix Courent of Montreal says that the market at Woodstock, last week, was veritable surprise. Cheese sold at 8¾@8¾c., while at Montreal the same qualities were worth no more than 8¼c. To explain this rise, they pretend that this cheese had to be bought in order to complete a shipment being sent out this week, and sold to deliver in England.

—A friendly critic in Hoard's Dairyman remarks: One can hardly see the profitable argument of dairymen, that it does not pay to bountifully feed a cow during the whole period of her milk giving. Why should they content themselves with the flush feed of May and June, and then let cows and pastures dry up together? If it does not pay to feed a cow a full ration in August, why let her have her fill in June? Now that the feeding value of thinly planted fodder corn is being found out, why should not our dairy farmer provide himself with a first crop of oats and field peas sown together to feed at the best stage of their growth, and then attack the fodder corn, not a little "jag" a day, but a generous load? An acre of good land ought to be depended upon to supply 25 good loads per cow, ample for 25 cows for over three weeks; three acres lasting well toward three months. Whether or not the cow gives a big or a little mess in the summer months, the whole routine must be gone thro' with each 24 hours, and why not add one motion more, and provide the cow with enough to eat during the hot, fly stinging days, and not compel her to suffer torment on the one hand or hunger on the other?

—Yesterday's Bulletin says: The cable reports again noted fairly good weather in England, but a continuation of vermin on the vines in several districts and firmness to prices in London. Practically, the foreign situation is the same as for two or three days past, and has little or no pronounced bearing upon the local market. Holders, naturally, are firm on fine goods, in view of possible ultimate disaster to the English crop, and also place more or less confidence in the home conditions alone keeping prices up for the new arrivals at least. Shippers refuse to go a fraction above 21c., however, on the finest states, and only time sales to brewers are made at higher figures. The lower qualities fairly hold their own, although quieter now than during the fore part of the week. New York state crop of 1888, best shipping, 23c.; New York state, crop of 1888, good to prime, 21@22½c.; New York state, crop of 1888, common to fair, 17@20c.; New York state, crop of 1887, 7@10c.

—The Price Current reports that the general tone of the market has been a little stronger this week. Brewers have not materially increased their purchases, but dealers have bought several lots, and there has also been rather more from exporters. So far dates confirm previous reports of some vermin on the English plantations, but there is nothing alarming in the situation and the London market is quiet, but perhaps a shade firmer. The export business is still confined to one or two shippers, but is of sufficient magnitude to lend considerable strength to the position, especially as the bulk of the stock now on hand is of the best quality. Stocks of state hops are getting into comparatively small compass, and holders' views naturally stiffen as we enter the summer months. If brewers are not more heavily supplied than the trade generally believe there is no doubt but that all of the present crop will be used up before we enter the winter season. Prices to-day are very firm with 23c. bid for choice growths and holders asking 24c. State '87 and '88 are still plenty enough and without improvement. Odd red Pacifics are marked up another 1c., holders now generally asking 15@16c. for them. Prime to choice growth are steady at 20@22c. Cold weather is retarding the growth of the vine in this state, and some damage from recent heavy winds is reported, but the outlook at the present writing is not unfavorable.
