Children of Tragedy
Foster Child Doesn’t Require a Palace

By CHARLOTTE AMES

Once there were children who grew up in foster homes in this country. They had no home or most of the time they had no home because their parents were not fit to take care of them. Now, however, the foster home has become a place of refuge for children who are not only not fit to take care of themselves but also for those who are actually living in the foster home. No longer do the children go to the foster home to live but rather they live there because they have nowhere else to go.

The foster home is a place of refuge for children who are not only not fit to take care of themselves but also for those who are actually living in the foster home. No longer do the children go to the foster home to live but rather they live there because they have nowhere else to go.

The foster home is a place of refuge for children who are not only not fit to take care of themselves but also for those who are actually living in the foster home. No longer do the children go to the foster home to live but rather they live there because they have nowhere else to go.

The foster home is a place of refuge for children who are not only not fit to take care of themselves but also for those who are actually living in the foster home. No longer do the children go to the foster home to live but rather they live there because they have nowhere else to go.

The foster home is a place of refuge for children who are not only not fit to take care of themselves but also for those who are actually living in the foster home. No longer do the children go to the foster home to live but rather they live there because they have nowhere else to go.

The foster home is a place of refuge for children who are not only not fit to take care of themselves but also for those who are actually living in the foster home. No longer do the children go to the foster home to live but rather they live there because they have nowhere else to go.

The foster home is a place of refuge for children who are not only not fit to take care of themselves but also for those who are actually living in the foster home. No longer do the children go to the foster home to live but rather they live there because they have nowhere else to go.

The foster home is a place of refuge for children who are not only not fit to take care of themselves but also for those who are actually living in the foster home. No longer do the children go to the foster home to live but rather they live there because they have nowhere else to go.

The foster home is a place of refuge for children who are not only not fit to take care of themselves but also for those who are actually living in the foster home. No longer do the children go to the foster home to live but rather they live there because they have nowhere else to go.

The foster home is a place of refuge for children who are not only not fit to take care of themselves but also for those who are actually living in the foster home. No longer do the children go to the foster home to live but rather they live there because they have nowhere else to go.

The foster home is a place of refuge for children who are not only not fit to take care of themselves but also for those who are actually living in the foster home. No longer do the children go to the foster home to live but rather they live there because they have nowhere else to go.

The foster home is a place of refuge for children who are not only not fit to take care of themselves but also for those who are actually living in the foster home. No longer do the children go to the foster home to live but rather they live there because they have nowhere else to go.

The foster home is a place of refuge for children who are not only not fit to take care of themselves but also for those who are actually living in the foster home. No longer do the children go to the foster home to live but rather they live there because they have nowhere else to go.

The foster home is a place of refuge for children who are not only not fit to take care of themselves but also for those who are actually living in the foster home. No longer do the children go to the foster home to live but rather they live there because they have nowhere else to go.

The foster home is a place of refuge for children who are not only not fit to take care of themselves but also for those who are actually living in the foster home. No longer do the children go to the foster home to live but rather they live there because they have nowhere else to go.

The foster home is a place of refuge for children who are not only not fit to take care of themselves but also for those who are actually living in the foster home. No longer do the children go to the foster home to live but rather they live there because they have nowhere else to go.

The foster home is a place of refuge for children who are not only not fit to take care of themselves but also for those who are actually living in the foster home. No longer do the children go to the foster home to live but rather they live there because they have nowhere else to go.

The foster home is a place of refuge for children who are not only not fit to take care of themselves but also for those who are actually living in the foster home. No longer do the children go to the foster home to live but rather they live there because they have nowhere else to go.

The foster home is a place of refuge for children who are not only not fit to take care of themselves but also for those who are actually living in the foster home. No longer do the children go to the foster home to live but rather they live there because they have nowhere else to go.

The foster home is a place of refuge for children who are not only not fit to take care of themselves but also for those who are actually living in the foster home. No longer do the children go to the foster home to live but rather they live there because they have nowhere else to go.

The foster home is a place of refuge for children who are not only not fit to take care of themselves but also for those who are actually living in the foster home. No longer do the children go to the foster home to live but rather they live there because they have nowhere else to go.

The foster home is a place of refuge for children who are not only not fit to take care of themselves but also for those who are actually living in the foster home. No longer do the children go to the foster home to live but rather they live there because they have nowhere else to go.

The foster home is a place of refuge for children who are not only not fit to take care of themselves but also for those who are actually living in the foster home. No longer do the children go to the foster home to live but rather they live there because they have nowhere else to go.

The foster home is a place of refuge for children who are not only not fit to take care of themselves but also for those who are actually living in the foster home. No longer do the children go to the foster home to live but rather they live there because they have nowhere else to go.

The foster home is a place of refuge for children who are not only not fit to take care of themselves but also for those who are actually living in the foster home. No longer do the children go to the foster home to live but rather they live there because they have nowhere else to go.

The foster home is a place of refuge for children who are not only not fit to take care of themselves but also for those who are actually living in the foster home. No longer do the children go to the foster home to live but rather they live there because they have nowhere else to go.

The foster home is a place of refuge for children who are not only not fit to take care of themselves but also for those who are actually living in the foster home. No longer do the children go to the foster home to live but rather they live there because they have nowhere else to go.

The foster home is a place of refuge for children who are not only not fit to take care of themselves but also for those who are actually living in the foster home. No longer do the children go to the foster home to live but rather they live there because they have nowhere else to go.

The foster home is a place of refuge for children who are not only not fit to take care of themselves but also for those who are actually living in the foster home. No longer do the children go to the foster home to live but rather they live there because they have nowhere else to go.

The foster home is a place of refuge for children who are not only not fit to take care of themselves but also for those who are actually living in the foster home. No longer do the children go to the foster home to live but rather they live there because they have nowhere else to go.

The foster home is a place of refuge for children who are not only not fit to take care of themselves but also for those who are actually living in the foster home. No longer do the children go to the foster home to live but rather they live there because they have nowhere else to go.